"S-U-B-S-T-I-T-U-T-E" SPELLS
"INFERIORITY"

That is a safe general rule; in the case of CYPRESS as THE Greenhouse Lumber it is an absolute truism. Small wonder that those who urge the "substitute" have but the one cry, "cheaper." But the substitute is NOT "cheaper," except as to initial cost.

The only businesslike way to figure material costs in Greenhouse building is BY THE YEAR.

There's nothing consolingly "cheap" about repair and replacement bills. The truly cheapest greenhouse is the one that shows the least totals—at the end of a term of years—first cost and up-keep together.

By that rule CYPRESS for greenhouse construction has all other woods beaten at the start. It is the absolute cheapest, figured by the year of its life. If built of heart Cypress, with "Pecky" Cypress for certain parts, the wood cannot be substituted by any other material ever grown or made. Talk of a "substitute" is worse than bosh. It is not quite square. If contractors would say: "We can build you a greenhouse of cheaper wood," that would do, for the so-called "substitutes" are all cheaper in first cost. BUT MORE EXPENSIVE IN THE END. Do you care? You bet you do—you're a business man as well as a flower grower. "The Building Age," August, 1912, issue, page 409, in specifications for a small greenhouse says: "These timbers should be made of Cypress, for, on account of its straight grain, strength and durability, this has been found to be THE WOOD BEST ADAPTED FOR GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION."

GET ACTION on our Cypress Pocket Library; the booklets are absolutely free. Write for one, or a dozen. Vol. 3—(nothing but greenhouses) is the first one you want. CHASE A POSTAL AFTER IT. NOW. Also ask for Vol. 36, the book on carpentry, both instructive and interesting. Vol. 37 is the Silo Book.

It is not quite square. If contractors would say: "We can build you a greenhouse of cheaper wood," that would do, for the so-called "substitutes" are all cheaper in first cost. BUT MORE EXPENSIVE IN THE END. Do you care? You bet you do—you're a business man as well as a flower grower. "The Building Age," August, 1912, issue, page 409, in specifications for a small greenhouse says: "These timbers should be made of Cypress, for, on account of its straight grain, strength and durability, this has been found to be THE WOOD BEST ADAPTED FOR GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION."

GET ACTION on our Cypress Pocket Library; the booklets are absolutely free. Write for one, or a dozen. Vol. 3—(nothing but greenhouses) is the first one you want. CHASE A POSTAL AFTER IT. NOW. Also ask for Vol. 36, the book on carpentry, both instructive and interesting. Vol. 37 is the Silo Book.

This is the Newest Moninger Fitting. The Only Bolted Thru the Pipe Fitting.

Bolted Thru the Pipe OR Bolted Thru the Fitting?

LET US settle this bolted through talk now, so there will be no more "humbug." You may have read the advertisement of another greenhouse manufacturer, which was worded so that you were made to believe they had been making bolted through fittings for years that bolted through the pipe. They didn't say the bolt went through the fitting only and not through the pipe. They wanted you to think it was a fitting just like ours and that our idea was not new at all. You can't afford to let anybody put anything over as raw as that.

The truth is, our fitting bolts through the pipe. It is a brand-new, original idea. It was awarded the S. A. F. highest award at the 1914 Convention. It has never been made by anybody but us. It is made of steel and galvanized. Their fitting is the old cast iron split tee that clamps on, slips off and cracks.

Even an Adroit Lie can be Nailed

FREIGHT FREE IF YOU HURRY

Our annual freight offer expires January 20. This idea originated with us, but it too is being copied. Get in now with the people that do things. Imitation is the only course left for the fellow that can't do things himself.

384-page Catalogue, cloth-bound, weighs 2 lbs., covers everything for the greenhouse. Send for it. Estimates in detail and blue print plans sent free.

DORNER'S NOVELTIES FOR 1915

New Crimson Forcing Rose

HOOSIER BEAUTY—Color a bright crimson with darker shadings. A long bud, opening to a large full flower. A texture like velvet. Very fragrant. Keeping qualities are exceptionally good. A free, easy growing variety, throwing two to three foot stems; requires no pinching. Perfectly healthy, is not susceptible to mildew or black spot. Equal to any forcing rose in productiveness. We invite inspection of our stock.

Price, Own Root.....$30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000
Grafts..... 35.00 per 100; 300.00 per 1000

Two New Carnations

PINK SENSATION—An exceedingly large flower. A well defined pink in color. Size, 4 to 4½ inches. Keeping qualities unsurpassed. Has a stocky growth, a heavier foliage than ordinary and throws good long flower stems. A high grade commercial carnation.

GOOD CHEER—Color, pink, darker than Gloriosa. Size, 3 inches and over. Good keeping qualities. Extra long stems. Early and continuous flowering—a great producer.

Price.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

New White Chrysanthemum

EARLY FROST—A good commercial white mum for very early. A cross between Golden Glow and October Frost. Height, 3 feet. Pure white with an incurved petal, perfect form and full to the center. Has the Golden Glow habit to set early buds, which develop into perfect blooms.

Rooted cuttings or two-inch pot plants.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

F. Dorner & Sons Co. - La Fayette, Ind.

Crop Conditions

For those wishing to order here we announce the present conditions of crops of the different kinds of roses we grow.

KILLARNEY—Both Pink and White

Crops of these great staples, now and for several weeks to come, are heavy and of magnificent quality. Our Killarneys cut mostly in stems 12, 15, 18 and 24-inch, with a few longer if desired. Good foliage and fine color now on these kinds.

AMERICAN BEAUTY

We will have good cuts of Beauty of the long and medium stems all during January. We also cut some of the shorter ones, but in midwinter the shorter lengths are apt to be off-color, and not perfect buds, but the 18-inch and over are fine.

THE NOVELTY ROSES

Russell, Ophelia, Hadley and Shawyer are in small supply. We are cutting a fair amount daily of Hadley and Shawyer, but not many Ophelia and Russell. D'Arenberg and Richmond are in pretty good supply daily.

YELLOW ROSES—Ward and Sunburst

Sunburst is practically done for the winter. Ward is cutting in small quantity daily, but we can almost always supply some.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

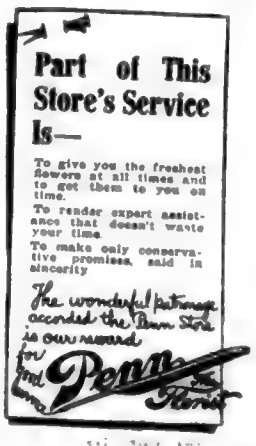
MAKING PRESTIGE AND POPULARITY

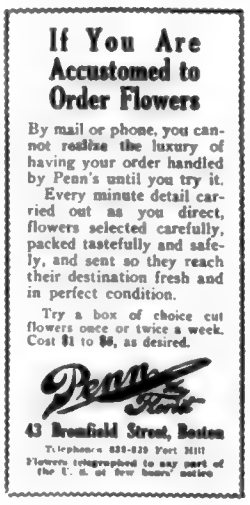
The psychological influence of advertising is apparent to every observer —one of the plainest manifestations of this reputation-building force. We all would rather be known as buying of the widely advertised house than from one nobody hears of; old customers are held, and new ones made, by advertising.

THE old hen don't stop scratching when the worms are scarce." Homely little statement of barnyard nature faking, isn't it. But when some genius employed it to point a lesson in business judgment he must have been inspired. And there's something in it worth thinking about by every florist in the land.

This little commentary is not a boost for the advertising value of these columns or any other, but merely to remind the average florist that he sometimes fails to profit by the wisdom of the fathers and that he is, perhaps, somewhat to blame for the accusation often launched at him that, however up-to-date he may be as a cultivator and as an artist, he is a trifle behind the times as a merchant.

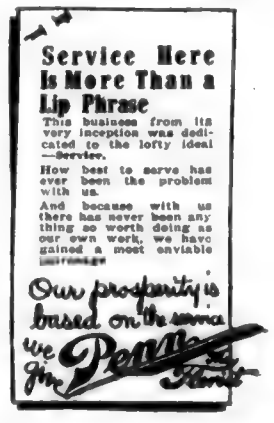


With few modifications, the essential place of the florist in the scheme of life is the same today as it was a generation ago, save that the quality and quantity of stock are far superior and the attention given to service goes far beyond olden days. Florists are no more commonly rich now than then, save that large volume sometimes gives an aggregate earning that brings independence.



Within twenty-five or thirty years thousands of men have grown rich through the power of advertising, and a florist here and there has learned the lesson and himself resorted to the printed appeal, with the result that such houses have usually gained the lead in the distributive field. But, as a rule, florists do not advertise. They say it's no use; they've nothing to advertise. They have concluded that worms are scarce and the only thing to do is to wait till they're more plenty.

But it does pay to advertise. It pays in more ways than in merely selling goods. It stamps the advertiser as doing something aggressive to get ahead. It places him in the position of control, and his influence is extended into channels of which he had no actual knowledge whatever.



Advertising is salesmanship, but it possesses the advantage of having a far wider range than that of the salesman. The salesman may have the ear of hundreds; the advertising goes to thousands and tens of thousands, reaches unsuspected quarters and brings from the wide unknown an answering interest from places wholly unthought of. It is a powerful maker of reputation and popularity. Florists as a rule have certain families as customers and are content working those openings over and over again, without the slightest suspicion that there may be thousands of other openings for trade with people who have never known of the house, its name and wares till it threw them broadcast to the whole world.

Then again, there is the foolish notion that it is unethical to go after the competitor's customers. Competitors own no customers beyond the time they can hold them, and if there is any field for competition it is perfectly logical and ethical to go after trade wherever it can be found. Price isn't the sole thing to catch trade with. There are as many ways to advertise as there are to sell goods; advertising is a dragnet to catch whoever may come along. Connections are always changing. The buyer who may be on the best of terms with your competitor today may change his feelings toward him tomorrow and may need only the right psychological hint as to where to find a new connection. An advertisement may give it to him. The florist such a seeker for safe harbor may be looking for is the one with aggressiveness enough to let himself be known; one who is foraging afield rather than moving in the old ruts. You never can tell who may read your advertisement or how it will impress him. The chances are too good to be lost.

In a practical and technical way the florist has lost several laps in the game of merchandising. He has made little use of the most effective of all modern means of interesting the buying public in his merchandise—has ignored the possibility of making the public use more roses.

It is said that staple goods cannot be sold by advertising. Martindale disproved that with tea, and a recent advertiser handling rice has uncovered a marvelous field for increased business. Probably he took a part of it away from someone who didn't advertise. The new buyer is not the only reader of advertising.

"I've got nothing to advertise," says the florist. Ridiculous! If he's got anything to sell, he's got something to advertise. Advertising is nothing but salesmanship. If he's got any talking points about his goods, or his service, or his superior supply, or his more favorable prices, or his ability to make quick delivery, or his superior skill in selection, or packing, or the uniformity of quality and packing, or freshness of goods, he's something to advertise. He argues these things with everyone who will listen—why not go further and tell it to all who read the printed page?

Can you think of anything less "salable" than space in an office building. Down in lower New York they are erecting the biggest office building in the world, in a district where office space has been woefully overproduced in the last few years. More than one owner of a skyscraper discovered that the "worms" were growing mighty scarce. Offices to rent certainly offer the least imaginable field for strong advertising appeal. All offices are alike, from an advertising standpoint. But not all salesmanship was apparently alike, for the Equitable found a way to hit human interest right between the eyes. It found a way to make renters think and then tie their thoughts up to that building.

All across the front on Broadway were scaffoldings; ordinarily blots on the landscape, but in this case turned into things of startling power. With millions of people passing along Broadway, why not make the scaffolding pay? Whom would the advertising aim at? The unknown, but very human reader. All men are alike in fundamentals and you never can tell when a single thought may ripen into strong appeal. And so the genius went to work painting clever little panels all over the scaffolding. They are the talk of lower Broadway and the Equitable has proved a serious competitor for established office buildings.

Here are a few of the shafts of psychological ammunition:

The man who regards his business address as a side issue is side-tracking his business.

Call up John 535—opportunity's new 'phone number.

The man who locates in the Equitable building will travel in distinguished company.

An Equitable building lease is an asset; an asset to us, it is true, but no less an asset to you.

We will not make a concession to one tenant and deny it to another. Our name is not Equitable for nothing.

No matter how good your present quarters are, it will pay you to investigate the Equitable.

Equitable service will not follow precedents; it will create them.

The Equitable building has four sides to it; but there are no two ways about its advantages.

Not one of those arguments in itself represents the power to rent a room. It isn't an ordinarily comprehensible reason. But every one of them appeals to the logic of a business man with an appeal which creates a certain kind of sympathy with the enterprise. It clings, and whenever it rises in memory it is invariably associated with the Equitable building. Inevitably its influence is constructive and some of the attraction remains till the moment arrives when its victim is looking for offices. Then it pays.

A few florists make use of the printed word to influence the minds of the masses, as Penn, of Boston, is doing in the series of ads reproduced on the preceding page, but the majority still say they "have nothing to advertise."

There isn't a florist—wholesale or retail—who has anything to sell who has nothing to advertise. Are they doing it? Are they reaching out to quarters unknown which may spell opportunity to them? Or are they comfortably sitting still in a comfortable rut and leaving others to speed ahead in the race? Look over the trade. Some houses are complacent and prosperous; others are going to seed; and still others are reaching out and forging ahead with unmistakable effect.

Once in a while one hears it said that a florist can't force trade. If so, he has failed to install the right kind of pushers. No line of business presents such positive and permanent encouragement for successful exploitation as the florists' trade. The hundred million people of America, with better buying power than any people on earth, are a sure element of demand. The share each florist gets rests with himself. If he is satisfied, very well. What's the use of trying to get ahead of his competitor?

Only remember the lesson of the old hen. When the worms are scarce she doesn't stop scratching. She might scratch out a few if she keeps at it.

FORMOSAS FOR EASTER.

I have a batch of Formosa lilies which were potted up as soon as received, September 1. Most of them are about eight inches high and are kept in a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees during the day and 60 degrees at night. As I have not grown this variety before, I would like to know if they will be all right for Easter this year. If not, what would you advise doing with them? A. L. B.

Your lilies are a little early for Easter, which comes next year early in April. You can, however, hold a good many of them, but the temperature must be reduced; 52 to 55 degrees at night will suffice. You must see the flower buds six weeks before Easter. If the plants do not come along fast enough give them more heat a little later in the winter. The Formosa lily is variable. Some plants will grow five feet high, others only one-fourth as much. Some stalks carry only a solitary flower, others ten or a dozen. It naturally grows somewhat tall and for this reason it has greater value as a cut flower than as a pot plant. It is one of the cleanest and most satisfactory of all forcing lilies for cutting.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cattleya Trianæ.

Cattleya Trianæ is the standard winter cattleya for the florist. A good cut is always ready for the holidays, while cut flowers can be had right up to the end of March. It is an easy variety to grow and any commercial grower who wants winter cattleya flowers should grow a few. The price, fortunately, is low and well within the reach of all. One point to remember with reference to Trianæ is not to aim to get large, heavy, dark green plants by using too much shade. Such plants may win plaudits from your friends, but you will be surprised at flowering time to find that on big, fat bulbs, which should throw sheaths with three to five flowers each, only a solitary flower will often come. Give plenty of light during the growing season, especially in the fall, and you will get the flowers. Keep the plants in flower where they can get a little shade; also let the atmosphere about them be dry, to prevent the petals from spotting.

Cattleya Percivaliana.

The flowers of Cattleya Percivaliana come so as to fill the gap between labiata and Trianæ. They are much smaller than those of Trianæ and will not sell well in competition with the larger flowers. The flowers of Percivaliana, however, are showy, of a deep rose color, with rich crimson and purple lips. It is most floriferous and makes one of the finest of all cattleyas for a Christmas plant. It grows well with labiata and Trianæ and, like them, wants a place as near the glass as possible. This, also, is an inexpensive cattleya and is specially useful for florists who have a good home trade.

Dendrobium Wardianum.

Dendrobium Wardianum now has the nodes well made up; some have buds spread out and a few will have flowers open early in January. A little more water at the root can be given as the flowers open, but be careful on this score, as this dendrobe, if kept moist, will start off to grow again with a rush which we want to postpone for at least a few weeks. Plants on which nodes are just forming can be given a light spraying daily and a slightly warmer house. While D. Wardianum is leafless when in bloom, it produces such quantities of its beautiful flowers along the pseudo-bulbs that the lack of leaves is hardly noticeable.

Dendrobium Formosum Giganteum.

Some plants of Dendrobium formosum giganteum are always to be had at Christmas. The clusters of large, pure white flowers with orange yellow lips, above the rich, dark green foliaged pseudo-bulbs, make a delightful picture. These dendrobium flowers bring as much money as cattleyas in late fall and early winter. In fact, many people when buying them think they are cattleyas. This Burmese dendrobe needs a brisk, moist heat in order to do well, and no one should attempt its culture who cannot give it these conditions. It succeeds well either on a light bench or suspended near the glass.

Dendrobium Nobile.

Dendrobium nobile, flowering in winter and early spring, is one of our oldest and best varieties. It can be grown and flowered by anyone owning a greenhouse. It does not run out as do some orchids, is easily propagated, flowers profusely and is splendid either as a pot plant or for cutting. There is a great variation in its coloring, from rose or deep purple to the purest white. The price is low and no one need be afraid to attempt its culture. To flower to perfection, the plants must have had a dry, sunny location for a couple of months or more past, and now on many bulbs the nodes will be plumping up. Be careful to go lightly on watering while the nodes are small, or these are likely to develop growths instead of flowers.

To increase D. nobile, old pseudobulbs which have flowered can be cut in short lengths and laid on a bed of sphagnum where they will be in the shade, but where they can get a good bottom heat. If lightly sprayed from time to time, these will soon start throwing out roots and later growths, which can be potted several together in 4-inch or 5-inch pots or pans of moss and fern fiber. A year later they will make nice plants. Growths which have started in lieu of flowers on blooming plants can be left until they are fairly well matured and then potted up in the same way.

Lælias.

This is the season when lælias make a notable showing. L. anceps, with its colored and white flowers; L. autumnalis, with its beautiful pale rose flowers, finely perfumed, and L. Gouldiana, the splendid natural hybrid between anceps and autumnalis, are a beautiful trio now in bloom. These Mexican lælias while flowering do well at the cool end of the cattleya house, but while growing they need a cool, airy greenhouse, little shade and a good spraying daily. If grown in baskets or pans close to the glass, they are sure to flower well. The white forms of anceps, such as Stella, Sanderiana, Schrœderiana, etc., are quite cheap, have even more vigor than the colored type and have stronger flower spikes with larger blooms. They also keep much better when cut.

CARE OF GOLDFISH.

I should like to get some information about goldfish. I have a cement tank, six feet in diameter and eighteen inches deep, which I want to fill with fish. How many will it hold? How many and what kinds of aquatic plants could I put in the tank that would be harmless to the fish? How many fish can I raise from a pair of old ones in one year? What is the best food for the fish and how often should they be fed? H. A. C.

The tank mentioned will hold from 100 to 300, according to the size of the fish. It would be best to begin with 100 and observe the result. If the fish continually come to the surface and gasp for air, overcrowding is indicated. A cement tank such as you mention should be filled with water, which should be allowed to stand for a few days, and then emptied and filled with fresh water before the fish are put in.

Good aquarium plants are: Cabomba, myriophyllum, anacharis and ludwigia. Cabomba is a summer plant and myriophyllum a winter aquarium plant. Eichhornia, water hyacinths, can also be used.

From a pair of good breeders 100 or more fish can be raised in a year, depending on the age of the breeders. Success can be had with fish that measure three to four inches long.

The best and safest food is the wafer and natural fish food, which can be purchased from any fish dealer either in packages or in bulk. Follow directions printed on the box. Fish should be fed in winter about every other day, and sparingly; in summer they may be fed every day.

A salt bath, one teaspoonful of salt to each gallon of water, is good as a remedy for sick fish and as a means of keeping fish in good health.

KILEY KILLS CREDITS.

Kiley, of Paris (Texas, not France), has declared war—he will do no more credit business, spending a large part of his time making collections. This is the announcement he is mailing to his customers:

CASH

Being head over heels in debt, I must put on a life preserver—business type—

You can help me. I am going to do business on a cash basis.

Why?

Because I do not for an instant question your credit, but for two reasons, viz.:

I want to take my discounts, which are generous. Because some have the second, fifth, tenth, twelfth, fifteenth, twentieth, and so on, for paying bills, which necessitates going over the same territory repeatedly, losing from two to five working days a month. If I can save this time, I can produce better stock for the same money.

1915 MODEL

Of Doing Business

This will entail no annoyance to you. You may phone your order as heretofore. On filling same, I will mail you a statement with addressed envelope. Inclose your check and drop letter in mail box. This will entirely do away with the annoyance of collectors—perhaps at a time when you're indisposed—and help me to give you better service. Try this system, and your and my reward will be satisfaction.

FLOWERGRAMS

Odd word, isn't it?

Definition: A flowergram is an assortment of flowers, suitably arranged in the highest style of the art, sent to sweetheart, wife, mother or sister, on the occasion of her birthday, anniversary or for some social function or perhaps the more sympathetic occasion—a funeral—by telegraph.

My correspondents are the best florists of this great nation, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, Central and South America.

Prompt and efficient service guaranteed.

The Review fears Mr. Kiley is getting in bad, perhaps not with his customers on the cash proposition, but with Charles Henry Fox through the unauthorized use of the word "flowergram." Mr. Fox coined it and copyrighted it; he is entitled to be consulted as to its use and credit when it appears.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Boston, Mass.—Frank W. Houghton has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities are scheduled at $6,164. There are no assets.

Aberdeen, S. D.—Charles A. Spink, proprietor of the Aberdeen Greenhouse and at one time justice of the peace here, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with Referee C. N. Harris. No assets are shown above exemptions. The first meeting of creditors will be held December 26.

TIME TO SOW ASTER.

Will you please tell me when to sow aster seed so as to have the plants ready for bedding out next spring?

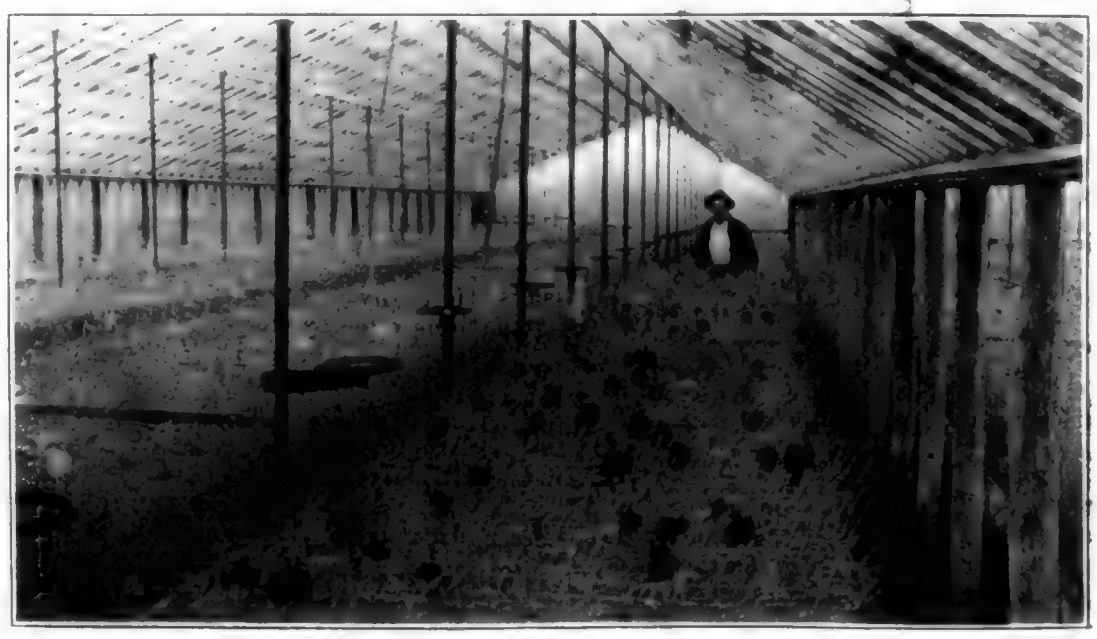
J. Y.

If you want strong plants to set out from May 1 to May 15, sow the seed the first week in March. C. W.

Wrentham, Mass.—Samuel A. Wing has had such good results with a liquid cutworm destroyer he has used for two or three years that he is putting it on the market.

Carnations

PROPAGATING CUTTINGS.



Start After Holiday Rush.

While carnation specialists begin propagating carnations in December and some even start as early as November, the average grower does not care to start so early. The chances are that during the Christmas rush the carnation cuttings are apt to be forgotten at some critical time and failure will more often result. While, of course, some of the slower growing sorts may be slightly benefited by this early start, especially where extremely early planting is practiced, experience has taught us that, unless it is intended to bench quite early and especial attention is given this early propagated stock, its chances for making good are less than those of cuttings that are rooted in January and February. Far be it from me to discourage the specialist in making an early start. I believe in starting early, and I need only state that a large part of our next year's stock is in sand right now. But I am writing now for the benefit of the beginner and those who have not made enough progress in carnation growing to be specialists or experts, and these include a host of retailers who grow a house or two of carnations along with a variety of other stock. On such places I have noticed that the early propagated stock is apt to suffer for want of attention and by May 1 is in poorer condition than the later cuttings. So I would suggest that you prepare to start in right after the holiday rush has passed.

If you have a special propagating house, you will, of course, root the cuttings there, but be sure you use the cool end. The temperature should never be higher than in the growing houses. If you have no special house for this purpose, select a bench that can be well protected from both sun and draft, as either one will be ruinous to the cuttings in the early stages. Be sure the bench is thoroughly cleaned before the sand is put on. Wash all the wood parts clean with the hose and allow to dry before applying a good coat of hot lime wash. Do not use a bench in which the boards are half rotted, as you would be sure to have trouble with fungus. Rather build a new bench. We have for several seasons used a brick bottom bench and find it quite satisfactory. The cuttings seem to root sooner, and the sand can be dried off more quickly after the cuttings are rooted, thus enabling us to get them out of the sand sooner than was possible on the wooden bench. I take it for granted that you have provided suitable sand for this work. Do not make the mistake of using the same sand for more than one batch of cuttings. It is about the poorest economy imaginable. Unless you have a never-failing source of supply, I would suggest that you get in a large part of what you will need during the propagating season. A few days of delay might cause you serious loss during the height of the propagating season.

The Question of Varieties.

In your preliminary arrangements you will be confronted with the question of what to propagate. If you bought some of the new varieties, as every grower who tries to keep abreast of the times does, you will have to decide whether or not any of them are good enough to displace some of the old stand-bys, either as a whole or in part. Up to the present time there seems to be nothing in sight that is likely to displace the Enchantress family with the small retail grower. He finds they fill his wants better than most other varieties, and they do so uniformly well that until that trio of Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress and White Enchantress go bad, as they undoubtedly will some day, they will be grown. And now is added Enchantress Supreme, which is certainly a superior sport of old Enchantress, and it is already supplanting that variety wherever it was tried out. The specialist and the large wholesale grower, however, find that some of the other varieties are returning them more money than the Enchantress varieties and that for shipping purposes some of them are far and away ahead. They find that Pink Delight will ship twice as far as Enchantress and come out better at the end of the journey. The same may be said of Mrs. C. W. Ward. White Wonder is fast taking the place of White Enchantress among all classes of growers, and Matchless bids fair to demand a share of the bench room in the future. It is a great keeper and should prove a fine shipper. Then, too, the larger grower needs more variety in color. He needs scarlet in quantity, especially at Christmas; and crimson, yellow and variegated, to say nothing of that exquisite pure pink shade of Gloriosa. Many of the smaller growers have lost patience with this variety on account of its disinclination to make a plant in the field. We find that it does need special attention to get good plants, but we also know that fine plants can be produced with proper handling. We are inclined to think that the prevailing idea of its making poor plants is largely imaginary, because it makes no grass and a plant with the same number of flower shoots as a plant of Enchantress will appear much smaller. We have here a bed of Gloriosa, the cut from which is within half a bloom per plant of another bed of Rose-pink Enchantress, and it will pass that variety within the next month, judging by their present gait. Every hill is a single plant, too, but even if we had to double or treble the plants, I don't believe we would want to give it up yet.

System Insures Success.

If you have a new variety in moderate quantity that is making good, you will want to work up as much stock as possible without impairing its vigor. Instead of chopping off the whole tops evenly, we find a better plan is to take off only those shoots which have not begun to run up. These make good cuttings and after that we take off the breaks as they reach the proper size. In this way we get nearly the whole season's cut of blooms and nearly as many cuttings, besides conserving the vigor of the stock. The sooner you do this with these varieties, the more stock you will be able to provide for next season. If, perchance, your stock of some of the standard sorts is in poor condition, try changing the stock for another year. There are plenty of rooted cutting specialists who can supply you stock that is healthy and vigorous, which will give you better returns and less worry than to try to doctor up a lot of sickly cuttings.

Don't start propagating without a definite plan in view, as some growers do. They simply take off what side shoot cuttings they can get from each variety, and by planting-out time they find themselves short of some varieties and long on others. Figure up what you need to plant your beds and then decide on how many you need of each variety. Keep this list handy, where you can refer to it frequently. Then work to that end from the start. There is nothing that brings success like system. A. F. J. Baur.

SOLID BEDS VERSUS BENCHES.

Do carnation growers who operate on a fairly large scale favor benches or ground beds? Also, which do rose growers prefer, ground beds or benches? S. H.

While there are many growers of roses and carnations who use ground beds, by far the greater number prefer benches. The ground beds produce, in the hands of a capable grower, as fine stock as can be grown on benches, but on raised tables the grower has his plants under better control and can time his crops more exactly, or at least such is the general belief.

BLOOMS NOT KEEPING WELL.

What is the matter with my blooms of Chrysanthemum Helen Frick? They have splendid form, color and size, but they are soft when cut and unfit to ship after being in water twelve to twenty-four or forty-eight hours. I grow all the standard mums, but Helen Frick and President Roosevelt are the only ones that give trouble in this respect. Are these varieties generally as unsatisfactory as I have found them?

H. J. R.

Helen Frick and Roosevelt are both dwarf in growth, and in order to get sufficient length of stem you have no doubt been cutting down low, where the stem is woody and hard. The blooms do not draw water well through this hard wood, and for that reason the longer they stand after being cut, the softer they become. By making a long, slashing cut at the bottom of the stem, or by splitting the stem about two inches before placing in water, most of the varieties may be made to draw better. We have found this fall that by merely slashing off the bark here and there along that part of the stem which will be immersed in water, even the hardest-stemmed varieties may be made to draw water satisfactorily.

Carnation Nebraska.

NEBRASKA IN LINCOLN.

C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, Neb., who has grown both Victory and Beacon, has largely displaced these two by his own red seedling, of which 900 plants are shown in the bench at the right in the illustration on page 12. This is a seedling raised from a cross of Victory and Beacon. The flowers are large, of good color and well formed, but, best of all, the seedling, according to Mr. Frey, shows two points of marked superiority to either of the parents. He asserts with emphasis, and refuses to qualify the statement, that the variety will give two flowers to one of Enchantress; and he says he never has seen a split calyx on it. He says that in Lincoln he can sell red carnations every day in the year, right along with white or pink, and that he intends planting the new variety heavily next year. He has named it Nebraska. In the picture it is shown with White Enchantress occupying the other benches in the house.

THRIPS ON ARAUCARIAS.

I am enclosing a few leaves of an Araucaria excelsa for inspection. The leaves commence to rot at the base and a little later turn yellow and die. In this way the three lower branches have been nearly stripped of their leaves. The plant is about 8 years old. It is in an 8-inch pot and stands four and a half feet high. It was repotted last spring and the soil was of a sandy nature, containing about one-fifth decayed horse manure. From that time its growth has been slow and about two months ago the leaves began to fall. I keep it rather moist and it gets the benefit of the afternoon sun only. The temperature is never below 50 degrees or over 70 degrees. If you could suggest a change of treatment, the favor would be greatly appreciated. F. K.

The specimens in question show indications of thrips, an insect that is quite partial to araucarias and soon does them much injury. Vigorous syringing is the best preventive to use against the thrips, and by way of immediate treatment the plant should be well sprayed with nicotine solution. With regular syringing and a night temperature of 50 degrees, there should be little trouble from thrips on the araucaria, but sometimes these destructive pests get a start before they are noticed. W. H. T.

FORCING RHODODENDRONS.

How should rhododendrons be treated to have them for Easter plants?

W. B. W.

Keep the plants in any cold pit or frame until February 10, then place in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night. Spray freely until the flower buds show color. They can be forced more quickly if necessary, but it is better not to force them too hard.

MRS. RUSSELL'S RECORD.

It is a regular thing to hear it stated that the cut blooms of the Mrs. Russell rose must be sold at a good price or it will not pay. In this connection it will be of interest to note the record of two houses of Russell at Plant A of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill. One of these houses was planted in March, with early grafts, getting a good start, and up to December 15 had given a cut that averaged fifteen blooms per plant. The adjoining house was not planted until about a month later and December 15 had given an average of eleven blooms per plant. Considering the prices at which Russell has sold in the Chicago market this season, it is little wonder growers are going in heavily for it next year. August Poehlmann is quoted as saying, December 15, that the company had orders for 165,000 grafted plants of Russell for spring delivery.

OWN-ROOT OR GRAFTED.

I am a beginner at rose growing, having heretofore devoted my space to lettuce and carnations, so I shall appreciate information as to which is the best, own-root or grafted plants of Killarney? S. H.

By far the greater part of the roses grown under glass in the United States are on their own roots; indeed, the records of the Federal Horticultural Board show that the total importations of rose stocks last year were only 3,556,380, although, of course, a large number of grafted plants are run two or more years before being replaced with young stock. While the majority of growers, especially the smaller ones who practice the false economy of propagating their own stock, still use own-root plants, the biggest and most successful rose specialists as a rule use a large percentage of grafted stock. Alex. Montgomery, Jr., made out a strong case for grafts in his monograph, "The History and Culture of Grafted Roses for Forcing," published a few years ago by The Review. In the course of his series of articles Mr. Montgomery said:

"It seems to be the general opinion, among those who have never grown grafted stock, that the superiority over own-root is chiefly during the early autumn months. In order to dispel any such notion, I shall give the figures of the cut by months from a house of own-root roses, and also from the same house when planted with grafts. This is not a special case but only one of many which could be quoted to support our contention in favor of the Manetti. While these figures do not, of course, take into consideration the quality of the flowers, still, assuming that the grades are at least equal, and I believe it is generally admitted that they are, they present evidence which ought to satisfy the most skeptical.

Month	Own-root	Grafted
August	6,899	8,653
September	11,317	20,950
October	11,614	9,325
November	10,373	16,558
December	5,829	8,503
January	7,277	10,653
February	4,958	6,775
March	7,634	9,997
April	10,009	13,602
May	13,834	20,813
June	12,991	16,624
Total	102,735	142,453

"This is an interesting record for several reasons. It shows the same bench space to have produced practically forty per cent more flowers on grafted than on own-root plants, an increase calculated to command the consideration of even the most successful growers of own-root stock; and it shows the increase to be well distributed through the season, the month of December, for instance, showing an increased cut of nearly fifty per cent as compared with the house of own-root plants."

GRAFTS OF MRS RUSSELL.

The Review recently suggested to a concern that is growing Mrs. Russell rose in quantity that it would pay to advertise young stock, which is in good demand. The reply may be of value to the trade, although probably not written for publication:

"Your favor of December 18 at hand, suggesting advertising grafted plants of Mrs. Chas. Russell rose. We will have but few of these to offer this year, as we expect to plant a considerably larger quantity ourselves and do not find it profitable to graft this rose at the prevailing market rates. We have found that it is a difficult rose to graft and that it ought to bring $30 per thousand more than the price that it is now offered at. Under these circumstances we do not think it advisable to advertise this rose."

MULTIPLICATION.

Quite a few growers have found Killarney Brilliant a problem; it has seemed much more inclined to drop its foliage than to bear bloom. The flower is all right; the trouble is in the plant. Some growers are quick to pronounce a verdict against a variety, but the man who wants to be sure he is right will not decide Killarney Brilliant is not a money-maker until he has tried it quite a little longer. If one may hazard a guess as to what is the matter, the propagator overworked it. The disseminator is quoted as saying his original stock consisted of twelve plants brought from Ireland. The next year he had 800, the third year 32,000, and from these he is said to have supplied the trade with over 300,000 plants or eyes. Surely, if these figures are even approximately correct, the disseminator is right in believing it did quite well by him.

Killarney Brilliant is more than likely to recover its strength and behave itself as soon as it has had a season or two in the hands of propagators who are not pressed for time the way the introducer of a popular novelty always is. Give it time.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Meeting of Executive Committee.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society had a full meeting at the office of Traendly & Schenck, in New York city, December 14.

Thomas Roland, on behalf of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, extended an invitation to the American Rose Society to hold its annual exhibition and meeting in Boston, March 25 to 28, and the invitation was accepted.

The exhibit in pots and tubs is to be made March 25 and cut roses are to be staged on Friday, March 26. The committee to act with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in preparing a premium list consists of Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., and Alex. Montgomery, Natick, Mass.

A special committee was appointed to solicit premiums and is composed of the following: Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.; Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Frank Traendly, New York city; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; August F. Poehlmann, Morton Grove, Ill., and William F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Committees on Test Gardens.

Vice-president Pyle moved the consideration of the appointment of committees for governing the rose test gardens, and the following committees were appointed:

Central Rose Garden Committee—Alex. Cummings, Jr., Cromwell, Conn., chairman; Thomas N. Cook, Watertown, Mass., and Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

Washington Test Garden Committee—Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., chairman; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y., and Charles F. Tansill, Washington, D. C.

Cornell Test Garden Committee—A. C. Beal, Ithaca, N. Y., chairman; John Watson, Newark, N. Y., and Rev. Dr. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y.

Hartford Test Garden Committee—John Huss, chairman, Hartford, Conn.

Minneapolis Test Garden Committee—Theo. Wirth, superintendent of parks, Minneapolis, Minn.

Upon motion it was resolved that, in recognition of the action of the Syracuse Rose Society in becoming affiliated with the American Rose Society with its over 300 members, the president of the Syracuse Rose Society, Rev. Dr. E. A. Mills, be chosen an honorary vice-president of the American Rose Society.

The annual bulletin has been started and the intention is to get out the best annual report that has yet been issued. The secretary reported this work well under way.

The number of members of the American Rose Society who belong to the Society of American Florists is 104, and this number entitles the American Rose Society to be represented by its president, Wallace R. Pierson, on the board of directors of the S. A. F.

NETSCH GETS DECISION.

A jury at Buffalo last week returned a verdict of no cause of action in the suit of the William F. Kasting Co., wholesale florist, against Charles H. Netsch, florist. The Kasting concern sued to recover $2,000, the value of flowers which Mr. Netsch was alleged to have received over the quantities called for by the sales tickets by means of an alleged conspiracy with one of the Kasting former employees. Mr. Netsch denied any conspiracy and stated that any extra flowers or plants he received were in the nature of liberal count to stimulate his patronage of the house. He said that he never asked for more flowers than he ordered and paid for.

PHYTOMYZA CHRYSANTHI.

Perhaps the average grower does not feel acquainted with Phytomyza Chrysanthi, but he will remember the chrysanthemum leaf-miner, or marguerite fly. It may be of interest, then, to know that the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station at Amherst has just printed a 60-page, illustrated bulletin on the subject—twenty-five pages devoted to introduction, distribution, life history, etc., and two pages to reporting that the first florist asked said those who spray with nicotine insecticides have no further trouble with the pest; with half a dozen pages of summary, recommendations, index, etc. It is stated the document is a contribution from the entomological laboratory of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, part of a thesis for Ph.D. degree. It is to be hoped the writer got it.

Hoopeston, Ill.—E. A. Raasch has purchased a new automobile delivery car.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—A. S. Pett has a new delivery truck, which he expects to be a valuable addition to his equipment.

Hume, Ill.—John Trimmer has built a greenhouse at his residence, on West A street, and expects to do a good business in flowers and plants.

Marshfield, Wis.—Theo. D. Hefko has purchased a Buick roadster. He has installed a new heating plant, consisting of two 30-horse-power boilers, which were made at a local boiler works.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Gottlieb Baumann has opened a large, new store at 168 South Main street, next door to the Nesbitt theater. He will use this store to dispose of the stock grown at his greenhouses on South Grant street.

Loudonville, O.—R. H. Workman is considering installing a boiler with burner for heating his establishment with gas. He has 13,000 feet of ground covered and needs 50 degrees when it is 20 degrees below zero outside.

Phoebus, Va.—Mrs. Carrie M. Terry, who entitles herself the "Phoebus Progressive Florist," has been granted a divorce from Wm. Terry, of New Albany, Ind., and will in future conduct her business under her maiden name, Carrie Monroe. In a large display advertisement in the Newport News Daily Press bearing this notice she says, "The declaration of independence was signed by Judge Clarence Robinson, casting aside the name Terry. Now will you be good?"

Hartford City, Ind.—Robert M. and Henry B. Henley, of Carthage, Ind., have purchased the greenhouses of John S. Leach, for which they paid $11,000.

Louisiana, Mo.—Mrs. Susie Foreman has purchased the stock and business of the Elmwood Floral Co. and will combine it with her own establishment on Ninth street.

Houston, Tex.—The Gulf Florists will soon open their third store, in the Foster building. They have a shop in the Westheimer building and operate the flower department of the W. C. Munn Co.

Burlington, Ia.—A downtown store is being opened by Mrs. Jos. Bock at 317 North Third street. This will handle the greater part of the business formerly transacted at the greenhouses and, it is hoped, add to it to a large extent.

Marion, Ill.—Mrs. M. L. Copeland, who has been conducting the business of her husband, J. P. Copeland, since his death, has had her houses remodeled during the last few weeks. The work has been carried on under the supervision of George Beal, of Creal Springs.

Hartford, Wis.—F. Rhodes has changed the site of his greenhouses from within the city to a 20-acre tract which he recently purchased, on its western limits. During the last summer he built two houses, each 21x130 feet, one for carnations and one for general stock. The Kroeschell heating system is installed. Although some of the stock was given a slight setback, owing to the lateness of the completion of the houses, it is now exceptionally fine, says Mr. Rhodes.

REMOVING SCALE FROM PALMS.

Will you please tell me of a quick and effective way of cleaning palms that are infested with a small black scale? When a boy, forty years ago, I used to wash the plants with soap, water and a sponge, and scrape off the scale with a wooden label. We do the same now, in the year of grace 1914. Is there no improvement on this tedious process? W. F.

The old method of sponging the scale from palm leaves was a tedious process indeed, and most commercial growers have taken up the dipping method instead. Various soapy solutions are used as a dip. Some still use what is known as whale oil soap, while others use sulpho-tobacco soap.

No single application will remove all scale insects from the plants without injury to the latter, and it is better to repeat the dipping several times at intervals of a week or ten days, using a solution of moderate strength, in accordance with directions that come with these soaps. Protect the plants from sunshine after the dipping and lay them down on the bench until they drain off; then, unless the mixture is too strong or the foliage is extremely tender, no injury will be done to the plants. W. H. T.

KENTIAS FROM SEED.

Please give me some instructions about the raising of kentia palms from seeds. How should the soil be prepared for the seeds? What temperature is required? K. N.

Kentia seeds may be sown in shallow boxes containing about three inches of light soil, or on a bench in the greenhouse. The seeds should be covered with about half an inch of the soil, and should at all times be kept moist. The temperature should be maintained at 60 to 65 degrees at night, and if it runs up to 75 of 80 degrees in the daytime it will do no harm. The boxes or bench should have a good coat of whitewash before the soil is put in, as the seeds, or some of them, may lie in the ground several months before germinating. As soon as the seedlings have made their first leaf, they should be potted, well watered and placed in a shaded house, where the night temperature should be kept at 60 degrees as before.

The seeds germinate irregularly, some showing in a few weeks, while others may not grow for many months; so it is best to resow the seeds that are disturbed by lifting the first seedlings, allowing the doubtful ones at least a year before discarding them. W. H. T.

BULBS FOR EASTER.

Will you kindly tell me what time to take tulips and Von Sion daffodils into a carnation house held at 50 degrees at night and 55 degrees in the daytime? I want them for Easter. G. H.

Much, of course, depends on the nature of the weather preceding Easter. As a rule three weeks in an average night temperature of 50 degrees will suffice. If extremely warm weather prevails you may need to retard them a day or two. If extremely cold a little more heat might be necessary. C. W.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

GUM AND FLOWERS.

Two million dollars annually is spent to advertise Spearmint gum. This money sells five hundred million packages, making the cost of ⅕ of a cent per package for advertising. Now, if the net profit is only one-half of the advertising cost, it's a nice little nest egg for one firm to enjoy annually—don't you think so? Such an output and such a profit is not possible without the aid of advertising.

Now, there are about 20,000 florists in America and if everyone should contribute $100 per annum, the $2,000,000 obtained thereby, if similarly invested in publicity to sell flowers, would create such a demand that the present amount of greenhouse space would not accommodate ten per cent of the stock required to fill the orders.

You may think this an exaggeration, but I think not. If that much money can induce Americans to wiggle their jaws and consume two billion five hundred million pieces of gum annually, what do you suppose it would do for the flower business? And everyone doesn't chew gum either. If one firm can spend that much money per annum to advertise a luxury called gum I think it is about time some concerted action was taken by American florists to nationalize flowers. And in speaking of American florists, I include the Canadians, as I consider them part of us, and a part to be proud of at that.

HEAP SOIL TO STEADY TREES.

Replying to the inquiry of T. J. in The Review for December 10, in regard to the purpose of mounding soil around newly planted trees, some planters place a mound of earth around fall planted trees to steady them during the winter storms. Personally, I think a good stake is much better.

Frederick C. Green,
Supt. of Parks, Providence, R. I.

REMEDY FOR WHITE FLY.

I have read in The Review several times of remedies for white fly, with which I have had a great deal of trouble in the past. They hang on the tomatoes and late beans outdoors, and when the weather turns cold they flock into the greenhouses. I grow snapdragons and sweet peas to a large extent, and upon these hydrocyanic acid gas seems to have an injurious effect. I have tried several of the tobacco insecticides, but they failed. I have, however, cleared the house several times with quassia bark. One ounce of bark is boiled in one gallon of water for about three hours. The liquid is then strained through a gauze, and with it is added double the quantity of water. This will make nearly three gallons of liquid, which is distributed through a fine spray. I have never noticed this spray do any harm to foliage or blooms. It seems that the odor, which hangs on the plants for some time, kills the eggs.

A. T. Vandegrift.

EELWORMS AND ROOT KNOT.

Can you give me any information in regard to eelworms? Is there any chance of getting rid of them and what treatment would you recommend? The term "eelworm" seems to cover a general class. The worms to which we refer cause root knot and the name, I believe, is anguillidæ. D. F. C.

Eelworms in quantity are a difficult proposition to contend with, and any crop that is badly infested with them might better be thrown out. Applications of lime to the soil may help somewhat, but cannot be depended upon as a complete cure. The plants affected should be burned, and the soil in which they were growing should be removed from the greenhouse and spread out thinly outdoors, in order that it may be thoroughly frozen. Thorough freezing is said to kill these pests, which are usually brought into the houses either in the manure or in the soil.

W. H. T.

ALLIUM NEAPOLITANUM.

Can you give some information regarding the culture of Allium Neapolitanum? I have heard that it can be forced and would like to know the time it takes for maturity; also, the temperature it requires. F. W. B.

This allium may be grown outdoors or forced under glass. Use 6-inch pots or pans to force it in. It should not be subjected to any hard forcing, being much better in every way if brought along in an ordinary greenhouse temperature of 50 degrees at night. Provided the bulbs were potted in October or November, they will flower early in March. If not yet potted they will be later. Bulbs kept out of the soil until now will not, of course, be equal to the earlier potted ones. The bulbs lose much of their vitality when kept out of the soil until so late a date as December. Use a light, moderately rich soil and do not add any fresh manure, which is harmful to all bulbs. C. W.

Fairfield, Ia.—E. H. Montgomery is making plans for the erection of two new greenhouses, each 34x100 feet. Representatives of Chicago construction concerns have been here estimating on the work.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

INDEFINITE CONTRACTS TO BUY.

Application of the rule of law that there can be no enforceable contract of sale unless there is a direct meeting of minds of the parties on the essential terms of the sale, is well illustrated by the decision of the Minnesota Supreme Court in the case of Meeruwen vs. Swanson, 121 Minnesota Reports 250. In this case it was held that there was no binding contract for a sale of bulbs under the negotiations mentioned below:

Plaintiffs lived in Holland and were engaged in growing and selling flower bulbs. One of them called on defendant in St. Paul to solicit an order for the ensuing season. Defendant told plaintiff what bulbs he should want, and plaintiff made a triplicate list of them, and left one of the copies with defendant. The list was not signed, and prices were not fixed. The bulbs were to be grown the next year, and prices would depend on market conditions at that time. The next year plaintiffs sent defendant one of their triplicate lists, with prices extended on most items, and asked, in the event that lower prices were quoted by others, that they be given a chance to meet the same. Defendant replied that he had sold his florists' business to a corporation, and that he had turned "this year's orders" over to that company, which would correspond with plaintiffs. Plaintiffs shipped the goods covered by the list to the company in two shipments. The company received the first shipment, but refused the second. Plaintiffs then tendered the second shipment to defendant, and, on its being refused, sued for damages resulting from the non-acceptance. S.

INJURY TO STOCK IN TRANSIT.

The following stated rules of law, which were lately announced by the South Dakota Supreme Court in the case of Dunlap vs. Great Northern Ry. Co., 148 Northwestern Reporter 529, will be found to apply to cases in which florists' stock or other perishable freight is injured in the course of transportation by rail:

When a shipment is delivered in good order to a railway company for transportation to a point on another line, but arrives in a damaged condition, it will be presumed that the loss occurred on the line of the delivering railway company, and the burden is on that company to disprove the fact. (It is to be remembered, however, that, under the federal laws, a carrier which receives a shipment for through transportation to a point on another line in another state may be held responsible for loss occurring on connecting lines, as well as on its own road.)

When a delivering carrier refuses to surrender the shipment without production of the bill of lading and that has been lost, and, pending the procuring of authority for release of the shipment, it is damaged through failure of the railway company to properly care for it, the company becomes liable to the owner of the freight. S.

Geraniums

STOCK FOR SPRING SALES.

I should like to have information as to the proper time for starting geraniums from rooted cuttings for good 4-inch stock for spring. Suppose we wanted about equal quantities of 3-inch and 4-inch. Could we take enough cuttings for the smaller size from plants started at the time you state? In buying the cuttings would it be best to buy only what are wanted for 4-inch and depend on getting the smaller size from them? When should the cuttings for the 3-inch stock be taken? L. E. S.

In order to have strong 4-inch geraniums for spring sales, the cuttings should have been inserted in September or October. If you did not root any and are anxious to have such plants, I would advise you to buy plants from 2-inch pots, from some specialist. For 3-inch plants, if your plants were of sufficient strength you could take the tops and root these in January. A better plan, however, would be to carry over some old stock plants in a bench. These would give you the necessary number of first-class cuttings. If you have no stock plants and your 4-inch plants are not of sufficient vigor, I would advise buying rooted cuttings early in February.

EQUAL S. A. NUTT AS BLOOMERS.

In regard to the inquiry of S. E. C. in The Review for October 29 referring to white and pink geraniums which are equals of S. A. Nutt in blooming, I feel safe in saying that Mme. Buchner, white, and Mme. Barney, pink, come the nearest to S. A. Nutt in blooming quality of anything that I have ever seen. Three years ago, when I was in Washington, D. C., I found Mme. Barney almost entirely used for bedding, on account of its dwarf growth and blooming quality. J. C. Thies.

A SPORT OF S. A. NUTT?

I am sending by parcel post a geranium in bloom from a 2¼-inch pot, with some blooms of the same kind, and would like to have you tell me if it is a sport of S. A. Nutt or a standard variety. I have several thousands of this kind, and I should like to know whether it is a sport of Nutt or a standard variety, so that I can advertise the stock for sale.

One cutting in a batch of S. A. Nutt produced a bloom much darker than Nutt, and I have grown it for three years and find that it holds its color well. I have grown it beside S. A. Nutt and can see no difference in foliage and growth. My trade chooses it even more than Nutt for bedding. It branches more freely, has more flowering buds and blooms earlier in the spring.

I don't know whether this is a sport of Nutt or a cutting of another variety was mixed in the batch. I have tried to find a standard kind having the same deep shade of red, but have not been able to do so. Please examine it carefully and give me your candid opinion of it. G. R. S.

Both flowers and plant were badly withered when received. The flowers are considerably darker than S. A. Nutt, but the foliage is certainly identical. Whether or not this is a sport I cannot say, nor can I name it from the specimens sent. If this sells well and is a first-class grower and bloomer, you should certainly propagate and advertise it. C. W.

HARDY VINCAS.

I am growing some grave myrtle and would like to know if I can pot up the vines that have roots, and how many of these vines to put in each 2½-inch pot. I want them to be good for spring sales. H. E. Y.

This vinca, or myrtle, as it often is called, is perfectly hardy, although sometimes the foliage will scorch where the plants have not had a winter mulch. I am not sure whether, in speaking of vines with roots, you refer to rooted cuttings in the propagating bench, or to outdoor shoots. Either may be potted up, but 2½-inch pots are too small for them. Put these cuttings in 3-inch pots, or, if you prefer plants a trifle larger, you can put four or five cuttings in a 3½-inch pot. Carried along in a cool greenhouse, these will become established and make nice plants for spring sales. C. W.

TIME TO SOW SHAMROCK SEED.

When is the time to plant shamrock seed, and what treatment should be given? W. B. W.

Sow the seed at once. It would have been better sown about the end of November. C. W.

Norristown, Pa.—Russell E. Crawford has bought the interest of his partner, James Devine, in the Wayside Floral Shop and will conduct the business alone in the future.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS

Lyon, France.—The Societe Francaise des Rosieristes has taken under consideration the question of renaming the varieties of roses now bearing German names. It has been decided that such action would not be advisable without the views of the rose societies of the allied and neutral nations first having been obtained.

Sassenheim, Holland.—In spite of the troubles incident to the war, the winter cover was on the bulb fields in time and the bulb district has settled down to winter conditions. Reports through the growers' organization indicate that about the usual area has been planted for the 1915 crop, but the market outlook is not encouraging, buyers being unwilling to place orders as usual.

Dedemsvaart, Holland.—B. Ruys has with him the two daughters of Jules Closon, proprietor of the concern of L. Jacob-Makoy & Co., of Liege, Belgium. He states that, when the bombs were bursting over Liege, Jules Closon and his family fled to Ostend and thence to Holland. Later the proprietor and his grandson went back to Liege, where they found their residences intact and only two out of thirty greenhouses damaged by bombs, but the stock of palms and azaleas was almost destroyed. As it was impossible to get helpers, they had to repair damages themselves as best they could. It is quite difficult to get news from Liege, although affairs are quiet there.

Naarden, Holland.—The last consignment of nursery stock for this autumn left our landing-place in November, destined for America, being transhipped at Rotterdam. On the first signs of hostilities over Europe in August, our nurserymen were anxious as to the possibility of executing their orders for the United States, but things have turned out quite satisfactorily. The city of Naarden is a stronghold and several nurseries are situated close to the fortifications. As a precaution the military authorities have been busy with groundworks, causing a great disturbance and damage to the valuable nursery stock.

Ghent, Belgium.—Although the greenhouse establishments in this vicinity have not suffered materially from the occupation of the country by Germans, the same is not the case financially. Exportations to northern Europe and North America have been about normal up to the present, but the war has halted all trade with central and southern Europe. As a result, half, perhaps two-thirds, of the plants remain unsold. Begonia tubers, kentias, araucarias and phœnix are in large numbers. Enormous quantities of azaleas of all sorts and sizes remain in the greenhouses, but it will probably be impossible to sell more this year. As winter approaches, the scarcity of fuel becomes dangerous, and, of greater moment, the lack of funds to purchase coal. Many establishments could be saved from total ruin if they could find buyers for their plants.

CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION

EVERLASTING BENCHES.

I should be greatly pleased to receive some information through the columns of The Review concerning concrete benches. Perhaps two years ago there was quite a stir about concrete benches, and everyone who could afford it seemed to be building benches of this material. I have heard lately that these concrete benches were no good for roses, carnations, etc., on account of holding the moisture too much on dark, dull days; also that they could not be built strongly enough to stand wear and tear. I have been told that those who have been using concrete for a couple of years are going back to the old stand-by, the pecky cypress bench. I must do some rebuilding at the close of this season and if concrete benches are a success I may put up some of them. On the other hand, if they are no good I want to be saved from mistake. I have no doubt a lot of others could use some information on the subject and it would be a good thing to start the ball rolling. M. B. S.

Probably nowhere else in this country have concrete benches been given so extensive a trial as at the Morton Grove establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., and Poehlmann's built of pecky cypress last spring and will do so again in 1915.

"But it is not that we had any fault to find with concrete," said August F. Poehlmann when questioned about it. "We have grown good roses on concrete benches for years, just as good roses as we have grown on wood benches. We believe concrete is as good as wood for growing purposes, supposing, of course, that the construction is right with both materials. One can have as much or as little drainage as he wants with concrete, the same as with wood. Our concrete benches are sectional and they give all the drainage we need and at the same time they stand wear."

An inspection of some of the benches, now 3 years old, showed that here and there a few feet were a little out of line and that an occasional side member had a piece cracked out along the upper edge. "The reason for the breaks in alignment is that the posts were not set solidly enough. We made the parts ourselves, but the erection was done by the contractor who put up the houses. Where a post was set hastily, on a soft foundation, eventually it sinks and lets the bench sag a bit. All it is necessary to do to correct it is to lift the post an inch or so when the bench is empty at replanting time. The top edge of our side member was made a trifle thin; it was difficult to set the reinforcing material in the center of the slab. Where a piece has broken out it has in every case shown that the reinforcing rods were up against one side of the mold when the concrete was poured. Repairs are easy; one has only to fasten a piece of board along the outside edge and pour in enough concrete to fill up the broken edge. We have some monolithic benches of concrete, but we do not like these so well as the sectional ones."

"But why didn't you build of concrete last season; why are you buying pecky cypress for next spring?" Mr. Poehlmann was asked, "Don't actions speak louder than words?" "The reason we didn't build of concrete last spring," he said, "was that we had no time to make the parts. Between the date we decided on building and the date we needed to start the benches we had no opportunity to mold the members; that is work for idle hours. This year we are rebuilding some old benches, nothing more, and we should like to use concrete if conditions were right. We like concrete and our only objection to concrete benches is that even under the most economical manufacture the first cost is rather more than twice the cost of perfectly satisfactory cypress benches that will last for years."

With this it may fairly be said, as M. B. S. asks, that "the ball" is started "rolling." The Review will be glad to receive the experience of other growers who have tried concrete for benches.

TOBACCO STEMS AS FERTILIZER.

Can you give me the analysis of tobacco stems as a fertilizer and state what is its value as compared with stable manure? Stable manure is hard to get here unless it is shipped from a distance, while I can procure tobacco stems near home at $8.50 per ton. Which would be of the greater value to the land—stems or manure? Would a ton of stems per acre be a good covering, or would a greater quantity be required? The land is now in sod. I would apply the stems this fall and plow them down in the spring, for corn and asters. What is the principal element that the stems contain—potash, nitrogen or ammonia? Would chopped tobacco stems be good to add to the compost pile, along with manure made up in the spring, for carnation bench soil? W. R. D.

According to Professor Voorhees, of the New Jersey Experiment Station, one ton of tobacco stems of good quality contains nitrogen equivalent to the amount contained in 500 pounds of nitrate of soda, and potash equivalent to the amount contained in 200 pounds of high-grade sulphate of potash. These two constituents are the chief fertilizing properties contained in tobacco stems.

The fertilizing value of stable manure varies greatly, but has been estimated at about $2.25 per ton by some authorities. A ton of tobacco stems would not go far on an acre, but it could be used to better advantage if the stems were run through a chopper before being spread upon the ground. Not having used tobacco stems in the compost for carnations, I am unable to say what results could be expected from that mixture, but, according to the statement quoted above, one might reasonably expect to get some benefit from such a fertilizer. W. H. T.

SNAPDRAGONS FOR MAY 30.

Will you kindly tell me when to sow the seed of snapdragons to have them a crop for Memorial day, and what night temperature to give them after they are benched? J. H.

Sow the seed in January, transplant

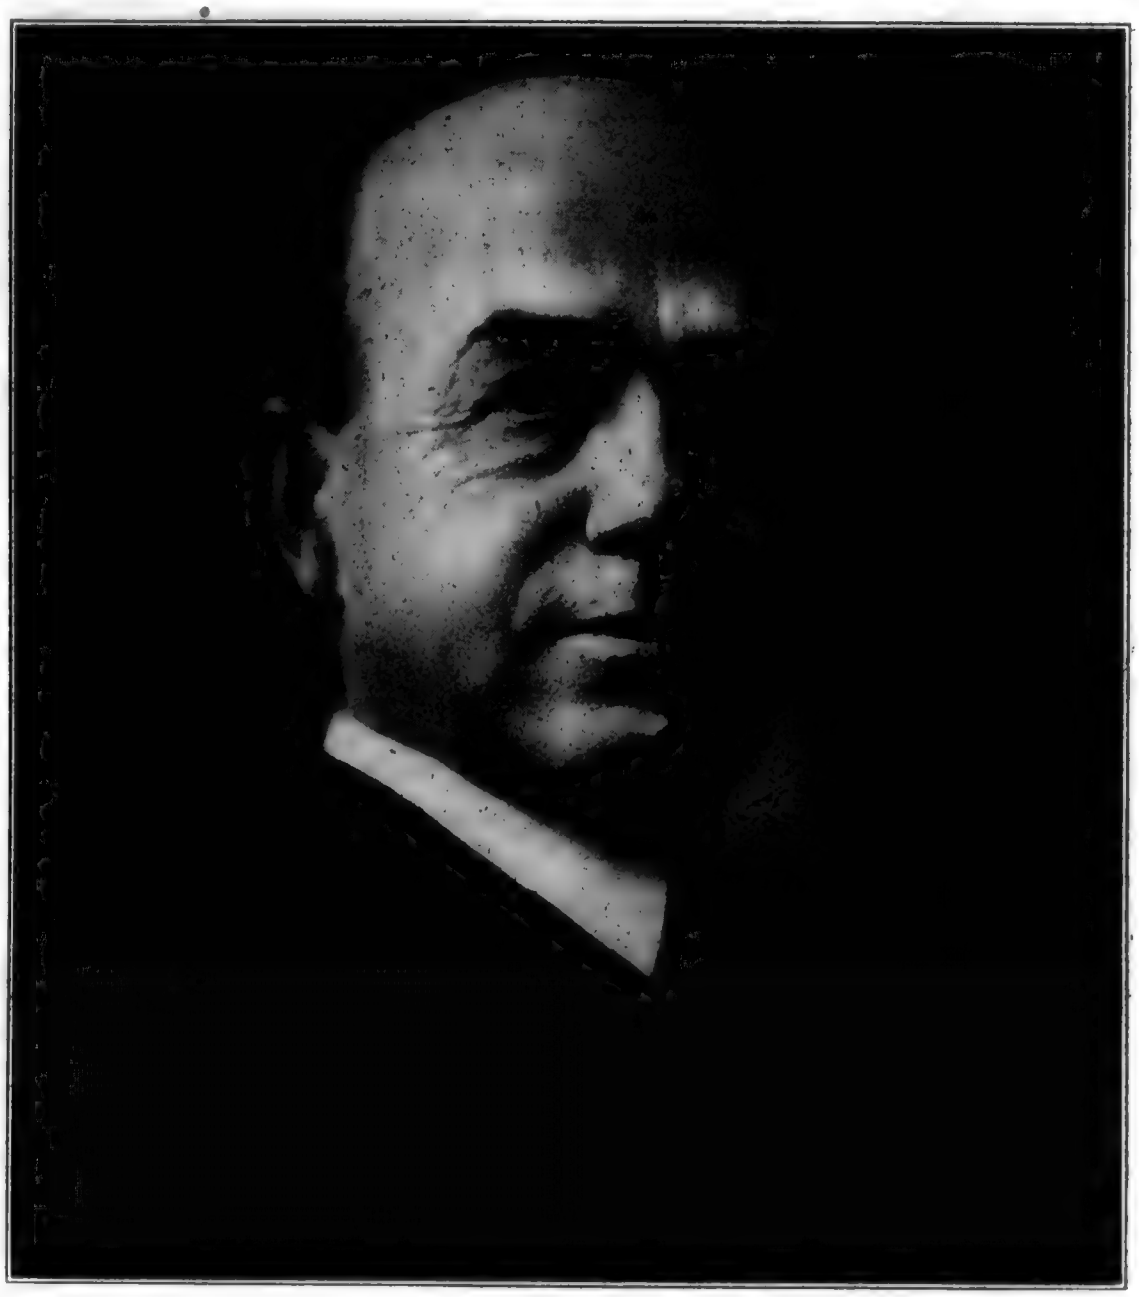
into flats and later pot the plants off. Bench them before they become pot-bound. Allow them a space 8x10 inches in the benches. A night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees suits them; it should not exceed 50 degrees in winter. Pink is the favorite color. Next in favor come white and yellow. There is little call for other colors and none at all for mixtures. C. W.

MILLEPEDES.

We are sending under separate cover some specimens of worms which we are unable to get rid of. We have tried almost every method of fumigating. Please tell us what to do to kill them and what they are, as we have never seen them until this season.
H. F. C.

The worms are millepedes, sometimes called thousand-legs. Tobacco dust sprinkled on them will kill them. They can be poisoned by scattering corn meal dough, well sweetened and mixed with Paris green sufficiently strong to give it a greenish color. When in the soil they can be suffocated by using bisulphide of carbon, which is a thin liquid which volatilizes at an extremely low temperature. Pour a teaspoonful into holes twelve to eighteen inches apart each way in the beds or benches. Immediately fill in the hole after pouring in the liquid. The fumes soon permeate all the soil. As this carbon is inflammable, do not use any naked lights while applying it. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.



W. Brown, of Mann & Brown, Richmond, Va., says there is "one blamed pest after another to fight." In addition to rust, the snapdragon has developed spot, which is equally destructive. Also, there is a mysterious visitor that deposits an egg in the calyx of the carnation, when or how has not been discovered, but the effect is seen when the bloom opens covered with a mildewy substance. As a considerable number are affected, this means serious loss. The plants could hardly be finer, especially their white seedling. The chrysanthemums at Thanksgiving were excellent and sold well. A complete line is in sight for Christmas. The poinsettias, cyclamens and azaleas are exceptionally good.

Adolphus Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Anacostia, D. C., still clings to Killarney, which certainly is still a good rose, and to Radiance, an excellent companion. Mrs. Russell will find a place here next season. Beauty is a perpetual success. Vacant space showed where the big crop of mums had gone to fill the Washington orders —only a few left. And now for Christmas, with a splendid lot of Begonia Glory of Cincinnati in sight and quantities of other good stock.

John Welsh Young brought to the meeting of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, on the night of December 1, a shoot which some of the craft took for a sprig of acacia, but which was recognized by Commodore John Westcott as Daphne odorata, an old favorite plant, a hedge of which formerly grew about his greenhouses. The profound address given by Arthur A. Sheldon during the evening was productive of much comment by the club members. J. Otto Thilow remarked, "Full of meat." Adolph Farenwald said, "Closely related to affiliation." George C. Watson was especially interested when the subject of grass seed was touched upon. Robert Kift thought we should have heard the lecturer years ago. F. J. Michell, Jr., regretted that more employees were not present. Albert M. Herr will relate his experiences at the next meeting of the Lancaster Florists' Club.

The Robert Craig Co. intended sending down a delegation to the Philadelphia club meeting, but the rush of shipping prevented. The recent lull is succeeded by good orders. Some stock, such as oranges and specimen cyclamens, are all marked "Sold." They are splendid plants. W. M.

THE MEN YOU MEET

WILLIAM PITKIN.

YOU all have heard of the "sea lawyer"—he isn't popular in nautical circles. Well, here's a nursery lawyer, just the antithesis of the other chap. Pitkin looks the lawyer, all right, and he knows so much nursery law that he has been chairman of all the legislative committees that could catch him, for nobody knows how many years. About nine-tenths of his time must be spent showing recalcitrant legislators the error of their ways—a public work—but there still is leisure to shape the policies of Chase Bros. Co., of Rochester, where William Pitkin has acquired an experience of the nursery business that makes him one of the best posted men in the trade.

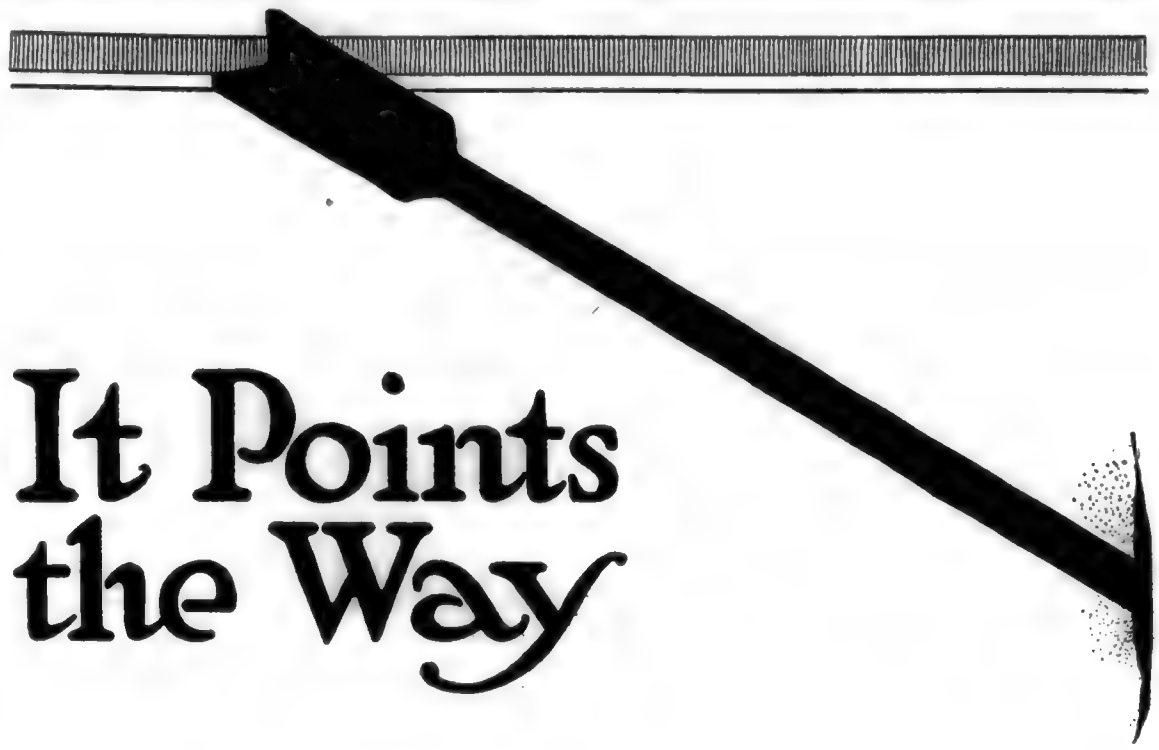
HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The present indications are that the Christmas business will be almost as large as in other years. The week beginning December 13 was cold and bright, putting color into the roses. The supply of roses will be large and of good quality. Killarney Brilliant is showing up finely at present. The supply of Hadley is limited. As usual, red roses are expected to be short of the demand. The supply of carnations is still lighter than in former years. Good lilies will be scarce at Christmas. There is a large supply of poinsettias.

Various Notes.

John R. Coombs has a good crop of Beacon carnations that will be just in time for the holidays.



At the Whiting Greenhouses, in West Hartford, there is a fine stock of plants for Christmas, all of the usual Whiting standard.

J. R. Morgan & Son, of Glastonbury, are bringing in some excellent carnations. This firm is among the unfortunate growers of this vicinity whose stock beds of carnations were visited by a spot or blight disease last spring. The effect of the blight was that some plants would dry up entirely, while on others two or three shoots would remain unharmed. The plants have now grown out of the trouble, but the supply is not what it would otherwise have been. The carnation growers of this neighborhood would like to hear through The Review from other growers who may have experienced this trouble this year.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, already has several thousand roses grafted. Carnation propagating is also well under way and the demand for cuttings is already brisk.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society held its annual meeting December 11, with a large attendance. The following officers were elected: President, Warren S. Mason, Farmington; first vice-president, George H. Hollister; second vice-president, Carl Peterson; third vice-president, O. F. Gritsmacher; secretary, Alfred Dixon; treasurer, W. W. Hunt; librarian, W. T. Hall; botanist, C. H. Sierman; pomologist, G. H. Hollister. County vice-presidents — Middlesex, Alex. Cumming, Cromwell; Fairfield, C. H. Plum, West Redding; New Haven, John H. Slocombe, New Haven; Windham, Frank M. Smith, Willimantic; Tolland, Theodore Staudt, Rockville; Litchfield, Walter Angus, Chapinville. The next meeting of the society will be held January 8, when the work for the coming year will be outlined. The society greatly regretted to see the retirement of John F. Huss from the presidency; he has served the society faithfully for the last six years. R. C. S.

NO man concerned with the publication of The Review is so foolish as to believe it impossible for a florist to do a wholesale business without the use of this paper's advertising columns.

But this much is certain: The man who sells his stock by other means chooses a more costly way of getting business. And the extra cost he takes either from his profits or from his customers.

There lies ahead of the craft a wonderful opportunity for the development of the wholesale mail order plant trade. Thousands of florists have large facilities for selling to the public and few facilities for producing what they sell. They must buy. For the man who can grow the stock the retailers need there

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Bearing out the old adage that "no two things are exactly alike," this year's Christmas is quite different from the holiday season we last experienced. Stock in general is in much better condition this year, both as to quality and quantity. Last year it was necessary to turn down some orders, especially for carnations. While the quality was fair last year, it was nothing to boast about and the general opinion was that the business was there if only stock could be had to take care of it. This year there is an abundance of stock and the quality is fine. From present indications, however, the Christmas trade will not show much increase over last year. There is not as much life in the market as there should be, perhaps partly because of the great conflict in Europe and partly because everyone, from the pauper to the capitalist, is zealously hoarding his surplus cash rather than investing it in florists' stock. However, everybody in the trade is boosting and business is expected at least to hold its own this year.

The only stock in which there is a real shortage is Wisconsin-grown violets, and the entire cut of these will be disposed of readily at top-notch prices. Roses are in good supply and the quality is fine. Short-stemmed stock, of course, is in great demand and the supply will hardly be sufficient. Buyers of roses need not go without stock, however, as there are plenty of the different varieties in the long-stemmed grades. The supply of the Russell rose, which has become a prime favorite, will be large enough to take care of all orders. The prices charged for this rose cause no criticism in the trade, as all realize the fine quality of the flowers. The sale of Christmas plants has been exceptionally good and buyers are receiving some extra fine stock. American Beauties are good this year, but are running mostly to long stems. The supply seems to be amply sufficient to take care of the demand.

Various Notes.

The Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. had a number of good decorations last week. An exceptionally large one was for a banquet at the Wisconsin hotel, which kept the firm exceedingly busy for a time. They say that business has been really better than they expected so far this season.

F. Gutermuth & Co. had a small fire at their establishment, at Twentieth street and Atkinson avenue, on the night of December 14. The damage, however, was slight.

F. Choles, of the New York Flower Co., Madison, Wis., was in Milwaukee December 19, attending to his purchases for Christmas.

D. M. Wigle, of Rochester, Minn., was also a visitor last week.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is making up baskets in large quantities. These baskets are attractive and are being disposed of rapidly. The novelty wreaths made by this firm this year found such a ready sale that the supply is already almost exhausted.

H. J. S.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster county florists held their monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Thursday evening, December 17, with a good attendance of members. Maurice J. Brinton, of Christiana, read a paper on "Lilies and Other Bulbs for Cutting." Mr. Brinton forces upwards of 100,000 lilies; in fact, he has lilies to cut every day of the year. He also grows Paper is no limit to the business that can be done.

Location counts for little. It is as easily possible for the florist in the small town to do a business that covers a dozen states—or the whole country—as it is for the one who is located in a big city. Indeed, in many respects the small town florist has the advantage. It isn't a question of situation—it depends only on ambition and the ability to grow good stock.

But to realize the necessary profit the most effective selling means must be employed.

HAMMERSCHMIDT & CLARK

FLORISTS and SEEDSMEN

Medina, O., Dec. 21, 1914.

Florists' Publishing Co.,
508 So. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—For Christmas plant trade we sent out 600 circulars to florists all over Ohio. It cost $12.00. We expected fine results and, in fact, received many orders.

The circular also carried the same offer as made in our 4-line ad in the last three issues of The Review. The Review ads, costing $1.20, brought over ten times the results we got from the circulars. One day alone we had to return checks for $40.00. Many thanks to The Review.

Hammerschmidt & Clark.

Whites, hyacinths and freesias extensively. His paper was one of the best ever presented to our club. Chas. B. Herr, Strasburg, read a paper on "Carnations," covering the period of time from lifting in the field to the present date. Mr. Herr is one of the most successful growers in the eastern United States and his remarks were most interesting.

The nomination of officers for 1915 resulted as follows: President, B. F. Barr; vice-president, H. B. Weaver, Ronks, Pa.; secretary, Lemar S. Landis; treasurer, Harry K. Rohrer.

I. Rosnosky, of the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was present and spoke on the general business outlook. The banquet committee has secured the Brenneman building, where, January 21, our annual banquet will be held. At 1 p. m. on that day the club members will journey to Strasburg by trolley to visit the establishments of Chas. B. Herr and Amos Rohrer. If time permits, E. W. Kohr's houses will also be inspected. At 6:30 p. m. the dinner will be served in the Brenneman building and followed by bowling, etc. We shall be pleased to have any neighboring florists join with us, sending their names to our secretary.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, sent new carnations to be shown, but unfortunately these were delayed. They were shown the following day at the store of B. F. Barr & Co. The varieties were Dorner's Pink Sensation, Good Cheer, and the beautiful pink, Mrs. Akehurst.

Various Notes.

At the recent dinner given by the Hamilton club to Lieutenant-Governor Frank B. McClain and Senator Penrose, Harry A. Schroyer furnished the decorations, which were elaborate, consisting chiefly of American Beauty roses.

B. F. Barr & Co., at the recent opening of Lancaster's new Hotel Brunswick, had beautiful decorations. At their store there are some fine bushes of English holly, poinsettias, cyclamens and Lorraine begonias. The lighting scheme in the window display is one of the prettiest ever arranged by Chas. F. Edgar, who has made Barr's window displays famous. H. K. R.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week's market displayed the usual indifference preceding Christmas. The supply continued large and steady and easily took care of the rather ordinary demand. From present reports the supply of roses and carnations for the Christmas business this week will be large. The rose supply is holding up nicely and includes many offerings of good quality. American Beauties are also in good supply. The carnation cut is large, but for several days they have met with an indifferent demand. Poinsettias are in large supply and the stock is of a high quality. Receipts in lilies, valley, orchids, violets and narcissi are large. Other offerings include callas, Roman hyacinths, wallflowers, primulas and forget-me-nots. The supply of greens is abundant.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Mulford, of Lebanon, O., is at the Seton hospital, in this city, having undergone an operation for cancer.

Visitors include Walter Gray, Hamilton, O.; E. J. Fancourt, of Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Miss Fannie White, Lexington, Ky.

Miss Edith Kyrk's window decorations catch the eyes of the holiday shoppers and are among the prettiest in the city. C. H. H.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Jessie S. Moss.

Mrs. Jessie S. Moss, founder of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, at Huntsville, Ala., one of the first of its kind in the country, died at Huntsville, December 17, at the age of 79. With the late Maj. W. F. Heikes, for many years manager of the concern, she built up one of the largest nursery establishments in the country. She is survived by one son, Milton Moss, who is widely known in the nursery trade.

Joseph Snyder.

Joseph Snyder, who conducted a retail business at 594 Tenth avenue, New York, died Friday, December 18, of consumption. He is survived by his wife, who will continue the business.

A. Dennison.

A. Dennison, formerly a florist at Brockport, N. Y., died at the General hospital, in Rochester, N. Y., on Saturday evening, December 12, after undergoing two serious operations within the last three months.

Baldwinsville, Mass.—A greenhouse, 50x100 feet, is being erected for Herbert S. Morley.

Allentown, Pa.—The contract for the city greenhouse was awarded at the last meeting of the council to the Lord & Burnham Co., of Philadelphia. The items were as follows: Greenhouse superstructure, $460.17; greenhouse glass, $124.20; glazing material, $19.94.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

JUST 100 days from Christmas to Easter. But there will be a lot of things doing in between.

NEXT comes Easter, April 4, 1915, which is early. But St. Valentine's day now serves as a stepping stone.

THE consensus of opinion among those engaged in other lines is that the beginning of the new year will see a continued improvement in business, although it is believed normal conditions will not be reached for some time.

THIS is the time of year we begin to hear about the contents of greenhouses being destroyed by the seepage of gas from broken street mains. These losses always come when the ground freezes solid except under greenhouses.

AS the days begin to lengthen the cold is supposed to strengthen, but the growers have had to burn so much coal in December that it seems as though the backbone of the winter must have been broken with the passing of the shortest day, which also is one of the busiest days for florists.

THE Gardeners' Chronicle, the leading English gardening journal, with its issue of December 5 distributed a colored plate of a carnation that it called Wells' Champion. It was, of course, Dorner's Champion, Wells being the British agent. The picture was excellent, but the color was not quite true, containing rather more yellow than it should.

READY MONEY.

The government has just published its report of the new wealth created on the farms this season. The table is as follows:

Crops.	1914. Farm value.	Increase over 1913.
Winter wheat	$ 676,000,000	$242,000,000
Spring wheat	203,000,000	27,000,000
Corn	1,703,000,000	11,000,000
Oats	499,000,000	60,000,000
Barley	106,000,000	10,000,000
Rye	37,000,000	11,000,000
Buckwheat	129,000,000	25,000,000
Flaxseed	19,500,000	*1,900,000
Hay	770,000,000	*18,000,000
Potatoes	199,000,000	*28,000,000
Totals	$4,341,500,000	$338,100,000

*Decrease.

No nation that produces annually new wealth in such wonderful sums could ever lack funds for the purchase of flowers.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Torsey, Charles M., Lowell, Mass.
Kohr, E. W., Lancaster, Pa.
Sked, J. F., Westerville, O.
Kleinheinz, Wm., Ogontz, Pa.
Evergreen Nursery, Seattle, Wash.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

WE SHOULD SMILE.

Florists can join with those who rejoice over the advance in freight rates granted the railroads last week.

While the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission adds its mite to the cost of living for each of us, the commission excepts the one commodity on which florists pay large sums of money for freight—that's coal. The freight rate on the commodities consumed in quantities by other industries go up, but the rates on coal stay where they are.

It puts us in the position of the man who could view with equanimity the mishaps that befell his wife's relations.

IT DOESN'T PAY!

A gentleman not a florist who some years ago invested some money in a greenhouse establishment, which he has since run with a hired manager, remarked to The Review the other day that he would like to sell out, as "it doesn't pay any more." On inquiry, it appeared the return on the investment this year will not exceed twelve to fifteen per cent!

The Review would like to know of another line in which an investment would pay as well, considering that the investor gives little personal attention. It must be this party is more successful than the average absentee owner of greenhouse property.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Plan to put your Christmas trade report in the editor's hands not later than December 29 for publication in the issue of December 31. Christmas will be ancient history after that; we shall have New Year's trade to talk about in the issue of January 7.

THE PLEASURE IS OURS.

Every now and then someone expresses surprise that The Review should "take the trouble" to answer so painstakingly as it does the large number of inquiries received. But experienced newspaper men know that the number of letters of inquiry an editor gets is the best possible index to the standing he has with his people and of the value of his paper as an advertising medium. Consequently, you do an editor a favor when you write him a letter, and the care he takes with his reply is only the evidence of whether or not he appreciates your confidence. This is how:

I want to thank you for the valuable information you sent me concerning the extermination of the white fly. The Review is a valuable asset in itself, to any business, but this is not all; your timely and useful answers to florists' problems are much appreciated by the trade.

Let me congratulate you on your Christmas Issue; it is complete with up-to-the-minute information. Long may you live and prosper.

W. Benning, Sr.

The Market.

One does not expect a high degree of activity in the market the week before Christmas, so it was taken as a matter of course that last week's business was only moderately heavy. The supply of stock was much greater than it ordinarily is in the corresponding week of the year. Usually the penultimate week before Christmas sees a short supply and steadily stiffening prices, with some scrambling for stock. This was not the case this year. With the exception of a few novelties never in large supply, there was an abundance of stock for the demand. Saturday brought a somewhat more active condition, the ordinary business being strengthened by a number of shipping orders that apparently were planned to get in just before Christmas prices took effect.

Relative to the demand, this market never has had so large a Christmas supply as is the case this year. The opening of the week found the situation somewhat complex. Including Monday's mail, the number of out-of-town orders for shipment this week is as large as ever has been the case at Christmas. But it is the almost unanimous report that the orders are not so large as usual, nor do the prices in most cases range so high as ordinarily is the case. A large percentage of the buyers appear to have been uncertain as to the outcome and consequently ordered only a part of their usual requirements. Seemingly, they intend to play safe, engaging moderate quantities of stock and relying on late telegraph orders should business make additional supplies necessary. Also they have cut down on the number of flowers of highest quality, ordering a larger proportion of the medium-priced grades.

As this condition became apparent the wholesalers naturally began to get nervous. They cannot yet foresee the finish. There is general confidence that the run of late telegraph orders will break all records, just as was the case at Thanksgiving. If this expectation fails to be realized, the market, instead of stiffening, as many expect, will weaken as the closing hours of the Christmas rush draw near. At the time of going to press, December 23, the market is strong, as it always is on the heavy shipping days—there is too much work getting out shipping orders to permit much discussion with local buyers, whose turn comes after the shipments are on the rail.

The situation in the eastern markets as regards Beauties has had a pronounced effect here. Eastern houses have been willing to ship Beauties here cheaper than they ever before have been sold in this market for Christmas. The result has been to depress the value of the local stock. Some houses feel that they can clean up at $10 to $12 per dozen and are refusing to meet the quotations from the east, but others are willing to meet the quantity buyer half way. As a result long Beauties in lots of 100 or more have sold as low as $65, with the end not in sight. The market is heavily supplied with roses and the color of Killarney has improved to the point where general satisfaction should result. A large part of the rose stock is thin in the stem and some trouble is anticipated on this account. It is commented that Russell is not so popular as was expected; the buyers as a body are deterred by the price; they would clean it up in a minute at the same price asked for other roses. Hadley is in better shape than heretofore and the moderate supply will be taken up quickly. Chicago never has had so many Richmonds as this Christmas; the orders principally call for the medium grades. Ward seems relatively the scarcest of roses.

Carnations are in large supply and there seems no likelihood that any orders will be shipped short unless too little time is allowed. Poinsettias are abundant, but not so plentiful as last year. Cattleyas are the scarcest item. Violets are not in large supply, compared to some other years, but there seems no scramble for them. Stevia is everywhere. There are not many sweet peas. Paper Whites are in heavy supply and there is enough valley, lilies and all the miscellaneous flowers to take care of any business now in sight.

In accordance with a forecast in this column three weeks ago, boxwood turned scarce last week. Shippers in Virginia in some cases took the trouble to explain that the weather was too bad for the cutters, but some simply did not fill orders and said never a word. Consequently some wholesalers found themselves hard put to it to take care of their customers and any boxwood not needed for orders became worth the best price of the season.

Bouquet green cleaned up last week with a snap that stung some of those who were not watching. On a steadily falling market, some dealers sold out far below cost and then the price for good green rebounded. For late orders at fair values green was brought from the woods by express.

Good holly has been none too plentiful during the last few days, but there has been a great deal of it that never could have been sold except for the fact that there are, apparently, plenty of people who consider what they pay without a thought as to what they get. Red berries are plentiful.

A Double Bill.

Renewed activity characterizes the affairs of the Chicago Florists' Club and a double attraction is planned for the next meeting, at the Bismarck, January 7. It will be installation night, with a complete new staff of officers. Also, it will be novelty night, all those who have new varieties being invited to make exhibits. Those who can not bring their stock are invited to send it in care of Bassett & Washburn, 131 North Wabash avenue. All stock will be judged and if it scores eighty-five points or more will receive the club's certificate of merit. A large attendance is expected, including many non-members.

President-elect Keimel has set on foot another movement for the consolidation of the two local florists' organizations.

The Freight on Coal.

Growers who heard the news enjoyed a chuckle last week when the Interstate Commerce Commission gave the railroads the right to advance freight rates on everything except coal—they won't have to help the railroads out of their hole. It would have meant a lot to some of the big growers who use Pocahontas, had the rate, now $2.10 per ton, been boosted another five per cent, or over 10 cents per ton. Note the following from the Black Diamond of October 31: "Peter Reinberg is endeavoring to be elected president of the county board and thinks his candidacy should be favorably received by coal men, as he uses 40,000 tons of coal every year in his greenhouses. What candidates for office can make a better claim for the votes of coal men than that?"

Last year Mr. Reinberg, George Reinberg, J. A. Budlong and other growers whose coal goes to the Summerdale station on the Northwestern, secured an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, giving them the Chicago district rate, $2.05 per ton from the West Virginia mines, plus 5 cents switching charges. It saved the growers 20 cents per ton and they have started action to secure the refund of the overcharge for several years. Now, however, the carriers have filed a new tariff in which they seek to assess 25 cents a ton on coal from mines in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, to certain north and west side stations on the Northwestern railway in the Chicago switching district. The commission has suspended the tariff pending an investigation. The statement is made by Rutter & Co. that the rates were advanced at the request of the Northwestern, which will receive 40 cents as its part of the haul, if the new tariff goes into effect, putting the cost back where it was before the growers got their order putting these stations into the Chicago district.

Various Notes.

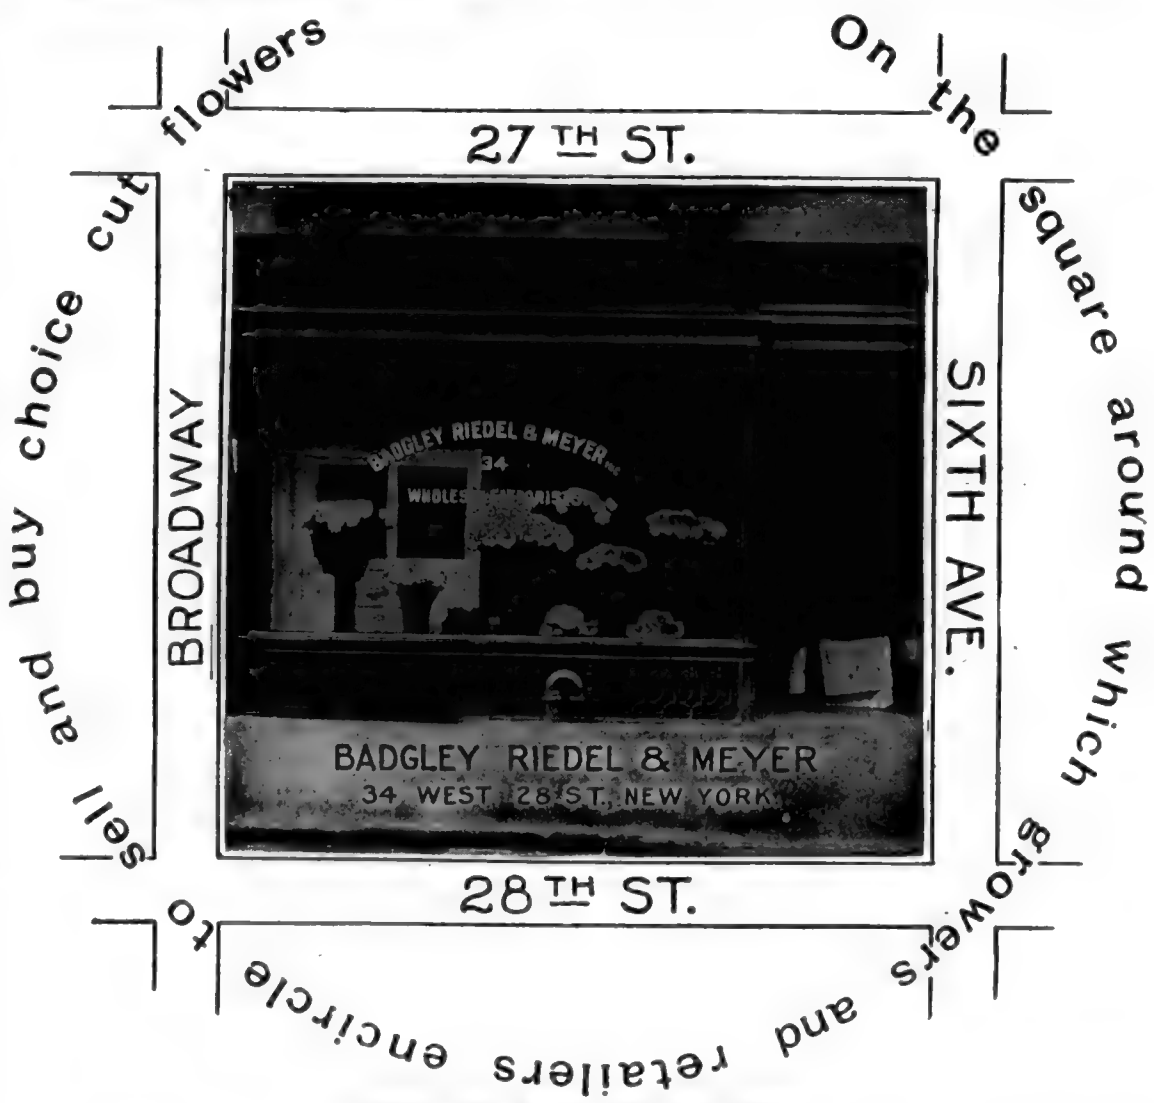
The American Rose Society has declined the invitation to hold its next meeting and exhibition in Chicago. It has been decided to meet in Boston, March 25 to 28.

N. J. Wietor says he is well satisfied with the Christmas orders and considers the prices, except on Beauties, will average as good as those his house received last year, the stock grading high.

Gas from a leaking main has caused considerable damage at the establishment of N. J. Kruchten, Berwyn and Western avenues. Before the leak could be located the gas had spread through the entire range. It seems that owing to the frozen ground the leaking gas seeped through the earth and rose to the surface in the greenhouses, heavily damaging everything in the place, especially sweet peas and carnations. There are over 35,000 carnation plants in the houses. The Kruchten range consists of seven houses, about 50,000 square feet of glass.

Heinz & Schwinnen are among the carnation growers who are not complaining and who, when they paid 1915 subscription to The Review, could produce nothing smaller than a 10-dollar bill. Out on North Western avenue they operate 20,000 feet of glass, all in carnations, and have had good cuts and good quality.

E. H. Blameuser will disseminate his new carnation, Cerise Winsor, this season, through his agents, the A. L. Randall Co. He sent out Joy last season.



Gus Nielson, the veteran rose grower at present with Poehlmann Bros. Co., will leave Morton Grove March 1 and assume a foreman's responsibilities at the new establishment of Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill.

John Michelsen spent December 17 visiting business connections of the E. C. Amling Co. at Richmond and Indianapolis.

Anton Then will celebrate his sixtieth birthday anniversary Christmas day.

The steady increase in the demand for roses, somewhat at the expense of carnations, is noted by A. L. Vaughan, who says Christmas orders ran stronger on roses than ever before.

Arthur Mundwiller has removed from 208 Cicero avenue to 180 Cicero avenue, where he has a much better store and is doing a nice Christmas business.

Mention The Review when you write.

Carnations are not paying so well as roses, in the experience of Peter Heirens. At his place in Rogers Park he displaced part of his carnations this season and is so well pleased with results that he plans to put the entire establishment into Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond for next season.

Charles Zapfe, 372 East Sixty-first street, was painfully injured in an unusual accident on the night of December 16. He was walking west on Randolph street when, as he started to cross La Salle street, a rope trailing from a passing Wells-Fargo wagon became entwined around his ankle, dragging him twenty or thirty feet. Mr. Zapfe is barely able to hobble around, but luckily there were no bones broken.

For next season's planting at Newcastle, F. J. Benthey & Co., whose stock is sold at Zech & Mann's, will confine themselves to Killarney, White Killarney, Shawyer and Ophelia, with a few Sunburst. Ophelia and Shawyer are well liked. No red will be grown, Richmond not having given a return equal to the others.

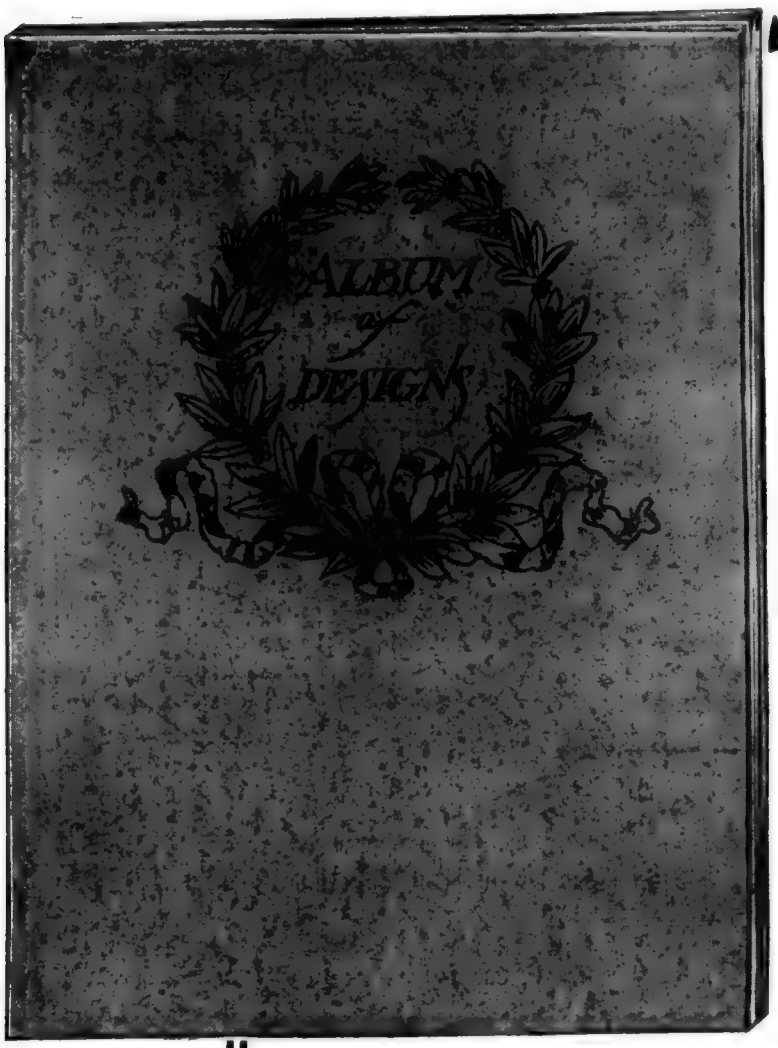
heavily for Christmas, but expects to come in strong in late January and February, when prices usually are extra good.

Wendland & Keimel, who have cut lightly during the autumn, had their range in unusually full crop for Christmas. Mr. Keimel says it was the largest crop they ever cut in winter.

Homeyer & Haberkamp, at Mt. Prospect, Ill., who grow carnations for this market, are planning a dissolution of partnership. The range consists of two houses and is not large enough for two. There are obstacles to building additional houses on the present site, so plans are on foot for one partner to continue the business and for the other to build next spring a separate range at a new location.



Twenty-one thousand Richmond, December 18, was the start of Peter Reinberg's Christmas cut, which Felix Reichling says they expect to run up to 125,000 of this one variety by the afternoon of December 24.

Herbert Stone, formerly with A. Lange and later with the Bohannon Floral Co., is now a member of the staff of the Atlas Floral Co.

John Mangel says that up to December 22 he had not been so successful booking orders for Beauties at $12 as he was last year at $15.

It is reported James Novak will go into business for himself in the spring, on the completion of his two years' contract with the Weber estate, where he is running the houses on shares.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

16,000. C. G. Anderson is pleased with the way orders came in for the Christmas plants. Although they grew three times as many as last year, they sold just as quickly as last year's plants. While there are quite a few fine plants left, it is expected they will soon be cleaned up. August Poehlmann says that he expects a wide distribution of their two new mums, Miss Pauline Anderson and Miss Marvella French, the former a late yellow and the latter a late white, both sports of Chadwick.

Alex. Henderson says that if collections were only a little easier he personally would be well pleased with the 1914 business showing. In spite of the disturbances of the last five months, the turnover for the year has been the largest yet made.

Growers are in many cases having trouble getting fertilizers. On account of the foot and mouth disease, the stock yards have been permitted to ship only paunch manure and growers in thickly populated districts cannot use this because of the stench.

Paul Klingsporn, the genial manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says he likes the Chicago system much better than the system in vogue in Philadelphia, where the retailers do most of their buying by telephone, with the result that wholesaler and retailer do not meet often. This is in strong contrast to the local method, where the buyers are seen on the market day after day, which keeps the two branches of the trade in much closer touch.

According to N. P. Miller, of Kennicott Bros. Co., Florida gladioli as a Christmas novelty sell well up to a certain point, but the demand, like the supply, is limited.

Among the court records of the week: "Mrs. Bernice Wolniewicz vs. John Wolniewicz; decree of divorce."

Carl Bachler, 3599 Archer avenue, says his business is improving steadily and reports a good gain over last year. Mr. Bachler now is using two automobiles for business purposes.

The Star Brass Works, makers of the Binks sprayers, used by many florists, has just finished an active road campaign and reports business good.

John T. Muir now does his own buying, spending quite a little time on the market, but for the rest of the day, early and late, is to be found at his store on Grand boulevard near Forty-seventh street, where all his interests have been centered since he sold his two other stores.

Peter Reinberg, as president of the county board, has appointed M. G. Holding as a member of the county civil service commission. Mr. Reinberg bought a good many thousands of boxes of glass from Mr. Holding in the old days, and so have many other growers.

J. E. Lapes, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was a visitor at the store of Hoerber Bros. December 21, reporting business as good, with prospects bright for Christmas.

M. Rocklin, of Rocklin & Lehman, Sioux City, Ia., was in town December 21, buying Christmas stock. He says Iowa florists would not know half the world is at war if the newspapers did not say so. Business is good.

The Christmas decoration at the Hotel La Salle was put up December 21. The work was done by the Geo. Wittbold Co., the finishing touches put on by Geo. H. Pieser, the hotel florist.

C. L. Washburn says it is hard to decide which of the two boxes, wood or corrugated fiber, is the most satisfactory for shipping. He says for long distance shipping, especially where the order is large, it is best to use the wood box, but where the order can be packed in a 30-inch box, or smaller, the fiber is the best. The one objection that most shippers have to the fiber box is its way of buckling, when the water from the melting ice soaks into it.

The Market.

Everyone, both wholesaler and retailer, has been preparing for the holiday rush. Azaleas, poinsettias, primulas, etc., are plentiful in the market. Begonia Lorraine, cyclamens, ericas and a few other choice sellers for this season are brought in from out of town. Ferns and foliage plants of all kinds far exceed the demand for them. The stores are in holiday attire, but the owners have not been quite so optimistic about the Christmas business as in other years. However, it is hard to tell what the outcome will be, especially in regard to cut flower sales, as florists here are the last merchants to be patronized by the shoppers, the rush coming as a rule in the last two days.

The cold wave which we experienced December 15 and 16 brought the temperature down to 27 degrees, but beyond killing thousands of poinsettias in the various gardens of the city, it did little damage.

We are about at the height of the social season, but it must be truthfully stated that the florists as a whole are not doing the same amount of business as in other years. The French Opera House has opened its doors for a season of grand opera lasting until the carnival, and the resumption of horse racing will take place January 1; both of these will no doubt bring hundreds of

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting at the Association of Commerce building December 17. President P. A. Chopin and Secretary C. R. Panter were in their respective places, but, owing to the inclemency of the weather, only a small number of members were present. After the routine business had been disposed of, Secretary Panter introduced J. Flemming, secretary of the commission on the Louisiana state exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco. Mr. Flemming spoke of the benefit to be derived by the local florists, as well as those of the rest of the state, from a collective exhibit at Frisco, showing what this city and state can produce in the line of horticulture. His talk was listened to with great interest, and before the meeting had closed several florists present signed their names as prospective exhibitors. President Chopin appealed to all the members present to make the enterprise a success, and instructed Secretary Panter to visit or communicate with all the local growers, as well as those of the rest of the state, and bring in a report at the next meeting. The Market.

Week-end reports from the wholesale market indicate a satisfactory condition. Business during the week has been good and there seems to be every sign of a brisk Christmas business. Huge shipments have been sent out of town, making it necessary to continue work until well toward midnight for over a week. Plenty of stock is arriving daily, both in cut flowers and potted plants, and it is stated that never before has such fine stock been on the market at Christmas. Holiday prices are well maintained throughout.

There has been a heavy demand for holly wreaths, which have been especially good this season. So far, laurel and pine roping and holly have arrived in good season and everybody has been well able to supply all customers. Roses of the finest varieties have been on the market. American Beauties are good. In chrysanthemums only a few good whites are now on the market. There is a good supply of violets and valley, which have moved somewhat briskly during the last few days. Fine cattleyas and cypripediums are on the market and move better. The demand for sweet peas greatly exceeds the supply; the quality is good. Carnations are exceptionally good; red varieties are not overabundant. The demand for boxwood wreaths is good.

In retail circles trade has been improving, especially toward the end of the week, when the Christmas rush began to be felt. Along with this, everybody was busy with funeral work. The slogan, "Shop early," which was set forth by the Chamber of Commerce here, has caused many orders to be booked ahead earlier than they probably would have been.

Various Notes.

I regret to announce that A. Dennison, a former florist of Brockport, N. Y., whose condition was reported in last week's issue as quite serious, passed away at the General hospital here on Saturday evening, December 12, after undergoing two serious operations within the last three months.

Hugo Teute is supplying several stores with some extra fine cyclamens, which are full of blossoms. His poinsettias are also in admirable condition. He is growing some good primroses.

Salter Bros., at the East Main street store, are showing a good supply of araucarias of various sizes, which are in beautiful condition. The firm also has a fine display of Vander Cruyssen azaleas and a large quantity of poinsettias.

The condition of Oliver Mixner, of H. E. Wilson's greenhouse store, at the time of writing is unchanged. The severe attack of pneumonia caused a large quantity of pus to accumulate around the lungs and an operation was necessary. One of his ribs was also pressing on one lung, and five inches of the rib had to be cut away to relieve the intense pain. His condition is extremely critical, but his recovery is hoped for.

The regular monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held on Monday evening, December 14, at the Musicians' Headquarters, 95

East Main street. An interesting address was given by an expert on coal, who explained the best methods of using, the kinds to use, etc. The night was unfavorable and only a few were present. John Dunbar presided.

Mrs. Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit, went to Brockport December 16 to attend the funeral of A. Dennison.

This year many of the florists are making pretty arrangements in small baskets filled with boxwood, ruscus, Diana grass and small poinsettias, while some are made of boxwood and colored thistles. These are quite novel and catch the eye of customers. They range in prices from 25 cents to $1.50. Owing to the higher prices of immortelles, the majority of wreaths for outside decorations are replaced by velvet poinsettias, which make a better showing, as well as being more artistic. H. J. H.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was similar, in its developments, to every week preceding the Christmas holidays in the New York cut flower market. Dullness prevailed. The only life indicated was in the booking of advance orders. These were about up to the volume of other years in quantity, but a disposition to economize in values was everywhere in evidence.

Shipments last week were about equal to the demand. Toward the close, there were some accumulations of roses, which the large buyers obtained at bargain rates. The demand for the long-stemmed teas is less than for the No. 1's and 2's. These were absorbed on arrival, and there were not enough of them at any time to create a surplus. American Beauties are especially fine in quality, and the supply is none too great for the demand.

Cattleyas were eagerly sought for on Saturday. Prices are improving. The selected flowers are not abundant. Of cypripediums and the medium and smaller cattleyas, there is a great sufficiency.

Gardenias are improving both in length of stem and flower, and values are now at the usual level at this season. Valley is abundant and prices lower. Lilies have probably reached their top, at $10 per hundred. This price is only for perfect flowers.

Carnations are now superb, and a full supply is assured for the week's requirements. The red ones have their usual advance, but no unreasonable addition to legitimate prices is possible. Prices last week were low for carnations, the best of them at times selling down to $20 per thousand.

There is a splendid supply of mums for Christmas, excellent in quality, especially Rosette and Golden Chadwick. Violets seem to have taken a new lease of life and are again growing in popularity, if one may judge by the improvement in prices last week; 75 cents per hundred was the quotation Saturday evening. Of hyacinths, narcissi, lilac, daisies, sweet peas, mignonette and pansies, there is enough and to spare.

There is an evident oversupply of smilax and asparagus. Great quantities of holly, laurel, boxwood, Princess pine, red berries and wild smilax have been used in wreaths, roping and decorations. For the thousands of Christmas trees prices have held at the figures of other years, a great many being sold at $75 to $100 per hundred bundles.

Various Notes.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has had large sales of hardy rosebushes of the baby varieties. At $10 per hun-

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is a spirit of unrest that prevails in the cut flower market in sympathy with the times. Advance orders are fewer than is usual before Christmas; buyers are holding off until the last moment, confident that the stock can be obtained when needed. They urge the democracy, the conflagration and other potent reasons for lower prices. Prices, by this is meant asking prices, are lower than usual at this season. The indications point to a large supply of roses, the most important flowers at Christmas, and probably to a large supply of carnations and violets, although they are less certain. All other flowers, with the exception of snapdragon, will be in fair supply.

Business for the week preceding Christmas was fair, with prices low. Christmas greens have been unusually good and have sold remarkably well in the wholesale market, boxwood sprays and holly especially so.

A Plunge in Bulbs.

The street is particularly interested in a deal lately closed between Clarence Alwine, of Afdan, and the Philadelphia office of the Holland bulb firm of Van Waveren & Kruijff, whereby the former has acquired all the bulbs remaining in the hands of the latter firm at the close of the season. This amounts in round figures to 250,000 bulbs, mostly La Reine, say 100,000, and Darwin tulips. It is understood that Mr. Alwine intends forcing all these bulbs for the cut flower market. Part are expected to go to Berger Bros., the local commission men, and part to another city, which is understood to be Pittsburgh. This is the largest single transaction in bulbs, it is believed, since Alfred M. Campbell laid in a quarter of a million Paper Whites at Collingdale.

Live Topics.

George D. Clark discussed two subjects of interest in the handsome store of Henry A. Dreer, Inc. Mr. Clark laid stress on the importance of florists getting in their seed orders early in these troublous times, not thinking that all that is necessary is to put the order in at one end of the slot, as it were, and take the seeds out at the other end, but allowing the seedsmen time to get the seeds to them. Seedsmen, Mr. Clark said, cannot grow all their own seeds in these days; they must gather their stock from the corners of the globe, wherever the variety wanted thrives best. "Take, for instance," he continued, "our seed specialist at Riverton; he gathers seed there at the moment it is fit. So too at Riverview and at Locust farm. He cleans it on a rainy day and gets it to the seed house when it is ready. That is just the way it is done in Europe. They take their time to do it properly and will not hurry. This is especially true this season. We expect to have," Mr. Clark continued, "all the flower seeds, but I would advise florists to get their orders in early. There may possibly be a shortage in verbenas and in scarlet sage, although this is not certain."

"The bulb season," Mr. Clark said, "has been a good one with us. Some bulbs are left over in the general market, due, it is thought, to consignments from Holland sent in excess of orders. There are some odd instances about bulbs. You know we order the quantity of each variety we think we will require, taking an average of the sales of four or five years as a guide. Our normal consumption of Narcissus poeticus is about 25,000 a year. I do not mean N. poeticus ornatus, but the old poeticus. A sportsman of international fame once ordered 25,000 poeticus to be planted in his woods. We filled the order and ever since then, for some unexplained reason, our sales have averaged about 50,000 poeticus each year, although this buyer has not ordered since. Another strange instance is that of a florist who bought 3,000 Murillo tulips for forcing. They bloomed white. He claimed they were La Candeur and asked for the difference in price, amounting to $25. I suggested that Murillo would come white with too much heat. He looked up his boxes thrown outside and found second flowers that were pink on nearly all the bulbs. He admitted his error in a manly way."

The Market.

There has been a slight improvement in market conditions during the last week. The influx of new potted plants, ferns and greens for the Christmas holidays made itself felt. Prices stiffened slightly, but not abnormally, and the week closed with prices about where they should be at this season. Nearly all the dealers have numerous good orders for potted plants and cut flowers for Christmas delivery.

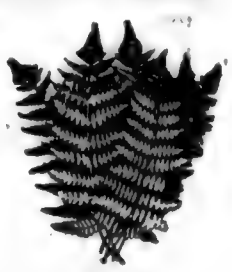
The Market.

The temperature has been near the zero mark during part of the week, which made it necessary to pack stock well. Trade has been greatly stimulated, however, and two snow storms have made it seem more like Christmas, and the advance orders for Christmas have increased.



Carnations are much improved. They are excellent now. Most varieties of roses are excellent, but there is some poor stock also. Stevias and narcissi in white and yellow are abundant, as are valley, gardenias, violets, orchids, etc. Harrisii lilies, cut poinsettias and Beauties are all plentiful and fine in quality. Holly is good this year, and well berried. All Christmas greens are excellent.

getting away from red for displays before Christmas, reserving the red displays for Christmas week. The idea is excellent and the effect charming.

Walter Stroh, of Batavia, was in town December 16. He reports that business is good with him and that he expects a big Christmas trade.

Joseph Streit's poinsettias are excellent this year, and the large ones bring a fancy price.

S. A. Anderson had the Christmas decorations for the Westminster and the Delaware Avenue M. E. church. Charles Hochreiter assisted at the Anderson stores during the holiday rush.

J. Benson Stafford's front window was broken when the iceman conceived the idea of a short cut from the wagon to the refrigerator. A beautiful Christmas display of plants, etc., had just been staged in the window, and, since the temperature was low, the window, which was a large plate-glass one, had to be covered with a large oriental rug to keep out the cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Taylor were presented with a bouncing 8-pound boy December 18. The mother is getting along nicely and Palmer Taylor is a most happy father. The trade extends its congratulations.

Palmer's branch store had the decorations for the Rogers dinner dance, December 23, and for various other social functions for the holiday season.

Harold Taylor, formerly with Palmer's branch store, is now with Blackistone, at Washington, D. C., having gone there from Detroit, Mich.

M. C. Ford, of New York city, was in town December 16.

L. H. Neubeck is doing a big plant business during the holidays.

E. C. A.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather continues dark, cloudy and cold, with a heavy snowfall. The temperature was as low as 2 degrees below zero for several days last week and the weather was the coldest experienced here for several years. The florists have been busy making preparations for Christmas, but not busy with present trade, as everything has been quiet. Had it not been for several dances and receptions in the latter part of the week, the sales would not have amounted to much. On account of the recent cloudy weather, the Christmas supply of cut flowers will be rather short. The supply of plants, such as azaleas, cyclamens, begonias, hyacinths, narcissi, etc., is good, and it is hoped that a great many of these can be sold instead of cut flowers.

Various Notes.

C. W. Crouch has one of the finest lots of poinsettias ever seen in Knoxville. He also has an excellent assortment of azaleas and other plants.

Mrs Rosa Hall Ryno has a surplus of poinsettia plants, which she is disposing of in the wholesale market.

C. L. Baum is cutting a large crop of choice carnations and will have a good supply of red carnations for Christmas. He also has a nice lot of plants, especially azaleas.

A. H. Dailey reports business good for the last week. He is ready and waiting for the Christmas rush.

Addison J. McNutt anticipates a good Christmas business, although trade for the last week has been rather dull. Orders for Christmas delivery have been coming in fast. R. E. M.

RECEIVER'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE of PHOENIX NURSERY COMPANY

BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER and decree of the Circuit Court of McLean County, Illinois, on the 5th day of November, A. D. 1914, I, John Y. Chisholm, Receiver of Phoenix Nursery Company, will sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder, at 2 o'clock P. M., on at the east door of the Court House in Bloomington, Illinois, the Real Estate of the Phoenix Nursery Company, comprising a trifle over 65 acres, nearly all of which is located within the city limits of Normal, Illinois (a suburb of Bloomington and connected by street car).

This is one of the oldest and best-known nurseries in the United States, with a patronage in nearly every State and Territory in the Union.

There are located on these grounds: Greenhouses, with about 60,000 feet of glass, heated by steam; large Barns, Sheds and Cribs; also very large Packing House and two large frost-proof Cellars, besides Grafting and Propagation Houses, Office and other buildings.

A part of this property would make an ideal addition to Normal if not desired to use in connection with the Nursery. The Receiver will offer the property in Parcels and also as a Whole. The Receiver invites personal inspection of property prior to date of sale and will be pleased to answer any inquiries concerning same.

Address JOHN Y. CHISHOLM, Receiver

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

We have been making a careful study of results obtained through our various advertising mediums, and, among the trade papers, we have found that we are obtaining the best results from the Florists' Review.

During the Convention in Boston, many visitors who came to our booth to inspect our advertising display mentioned the fact that they have seen a great deal of our advertising in the Florists' Review.

After careful investigation we are satisfied that yours is the leading Trade Paper and that the best results from advertising may be obtained by using its columns.

Yours very truly,

Penn the Florist.

The Market.

Business during the week before Christmas was disappointing. We had low temperatures throughout the week, but the skies were clear. Buying, however, was spasmodic and entirely lacked the animation usual to the week before the great festival. The present week opens with a little more activity, but at the time of writing nothing in the nature of a boom seems likely and prices will average considerably lower than a year ago. Roses are in large supply, but move slowly. The best Beauties are being held at $60 per hundred for the holidays. A few may touch $9 per dozen, but that probably will be the limit. Best quality flowers made $30 to $50 last week. A large crop of Richmond and Hadley is available and prices on these are advancing a little. Ophelia continues a prime favorite, also Russell, Shawyer, Mock, Sunburst and Ward. Killarney and White Killarney sell mostly at $2 to $10 per hundred.

Carnations sold at $3 to $4 all last week and are not climbing as had been anticipated. A good crop is available. Violets are not blooming freely and will be worth from $1 to $1.50 per hundred. Sweet peas are overabundant and not selling as well as a month ago. Chrysanthemums are still seen on every hand. Never were they so abundant so late in the season. They do not sell well. Bachelor's buttons go more slowly. Stevia, Paper Whites and Romans are all in heavy supply and make no advance. A few trumpet daffodils and tulips appeared this week, also freesias.

There is an abundance of valley. Callas and lilies are in good supply, but move slowly. Quite a few cut poinsettias are available. These sell more slowly than usual. There are quite a few cattleyas and cypripediums, also Dendrobium phalænopsis and Vanda cærulea. Gardenias are in fair supply. Asparagus is moving somewhat better. Business done in evergreens, wreaths and festooning is heavy; in fact, many of the retailers are doing more in this than in cut flowers and plants.

Pot plant trade is fair, but falls below the average of previous years. The cold weather from December 12 to 18 restricted sales and shipping, but growers are all hoping for milder conditions nearer Christmas. Azaleas, cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias are the four leaders in popularity.

Various Notes.

L. D. Small, of Tewksbury, is our champion grower of bachelor's buttons. Many of his flowers are shipped to New York by his salesman, Walter Holden. Mr. Small has extra good Champion, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Beacon carnations also.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, had the first Golden Spur narcissi in the market December 19. Mr. Fee says he cut the flowers just three weeks after placing the plants in heat. He has just cut the last of his cold storage lilies and will have no more lilies until near Easter.

H. Kolow, who enlarged his store at 167 Summer street some weeks ago, says business is remarkably good. He is having a large sale on some special Christmas baskets, which are attractively arranged.

Wax Bros. had a beautiful casket cover of long-stemmed Hadley roses for a funeral in Milton, Mass., December 21. One of their large show windows is filled with tastefully arranged Christmas baskets. Pot plant trade is heavy here.

William R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, had a grand crop of roses for Christmas. He grows principally Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond and his flowers sell quickly.

I am glad to report that William H. Elliott and Patrick Welch are each well on the road toward complete recovery.

Penn had two truckloads of floral designs, some quite costly ones, December 19, for the funeral of Dr. Wingfield Smith. Additional floor space has been provided for the Christmas plant trade, which seems likely to equal that of a year ago.

Mrs. Ernest Watson, youngest daughter of Samuel Neil, the well known Dorchester florist, arrived home December 19 from the war zone in Turkey. Mr. Watson has a professorship in an American college near Constantinople and is still there, but probably will leave soon. Mrs. Watson says that she hopes the British flag will wave over Constantinople before she returns.

The Montrose Greenhouses had a good Christmas crop of roses. Their leaders are Killarney, White Killarney, Ward, Richmond and Sunburst.

A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, lost a large part of his azaleas this season. They lay on a New York dock for no less than three weeks and were worthless when received. He is doing a good pot plant trade, but not equal to that of a year ago.

McAlpine Bros., of Exeter, N. H., had an immense Christmas crop of Richmond, Crimson Queen and Hadley roses. Killarney Queen is doing well with them.

Thomas Cox, of Dorchester, had a splendid lot of Cypripedium insigne, both cut and in pots, for the holidays.

specializes in carnations. His best varieties this season are Matchless, Pink Delight, White Wonder, White Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme and Fenn.

Interest in the Buffalo carnation convention is growing and it looks as if President Goddard would have a strong bodyguard to accompany him, with numerous exhibits.

Norris F. Comley, of Burlington, has a splendid crop of white, pink and lavender sweet peas and single violets. He finished cutting chrysanthemums this week.

The W. W. Edgar Co. is nearly sold out of flowering plants. There were thousands of azaleas, but not enough for the demand. Standard heliotropes were excellent.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston has 101 members who also belong to the S. A. F., which entitles it to a director in the latter body.

John McFarland supplied Galvin's Tremont street and Back Bay stores with poinsettias for Christmas. His plants were well grown and carried splendid foliage.

James Nicol, gardener for F. Arthur Beebe, of Falmouth, Mass., lately deceased, received a bequest of $5,000 under his employer's will.

Visitors last week included Harold F. Winter, of New York, representing Sutton & Sons, Reading, England. Mr. Winter reported the 1914 seed crop as of splendid quality and business good.

W. Hannan & Sons, of Dorchester, had a fine lot of azaleas for the holidays, which sold well.

Galvin's report satisfactory business. Some of their wealthiest customers are materially reducing their Christmas orders for American Beauty and other flowers. This seems to be general here.

The Matthieson Greenhouses, of Clematis Brook, sent in Richmond roses in good shape for Christmas; also Killarney and White Killarney in quantity.

Club, always eagerly looked forward to, will occur January 19, 1915.

Arrangements are being made for the annual exhibition of the American Rose Society here in March, in conjunction with the spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. I hope the local rose specialists will support this show better than they have the recent Boston shows.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, had a fine Christmas cut of Cattleya Trianæ and C. Percivaliana. Mr. Dolansky is getting together quite a collection of other orchids. His gardenias and Otaheite oranges were in good demand for the holiday.

Buddleia Asiatica, commonly called the white winter lilac, is seen at a number of the high-class stores. The plants are grown in 10-inch pans and are heavily flowered. They all come from Farquhar & Co. The delicious fragrance makes this buddleia sell. It is of easy propagation. The writer has a batch of well bloomed plants in 6-inch pots, grown from cuttings rooted the first week in June.

S. J. Goddard finds Champion a splendid scarlet carnation. Matchless is also good with him. Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine sells as well as Lorraine and is a hardier plant and a much more persistent bloomer.

Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. had a fine display of plants and did a heavy business in Christmas wreaths and other greenery.

W. R. Nicholson had a good lot of Freesia Purity for Christmas. Among his carnations Pocahontas, Champion, Pink Delight, Matchless and Benora are specially good.

The new committee, appointed December 15 to have charge of the landscape classes of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, consists of L. G. Van Leeuwen, John Reid and Frank Lazenby. The classes meet Wednesday evenings at Horticultural hall and are well attended.

in Boston December 18, adopted a list of prizes for roses in pots or tubs. The classes for cut blooms will be arranged later. It has been practically decided to hold the annual meeting and exhibition in Boston, March 18 to 21, 1915, in connection with the spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. W. P. Rich, Sec'y.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

When Pittsburgh awakened Monday morning, December 14, everything was covered with a beautiful mantle of snow, and the next three nights the thermometer registered 2 degrees below zero. The weather moderated slightly until Saturday, when we had a whole day of cold rain. The effect of the cold weather on trade was bad, as the change was so sudden that people kept to the house. Plantsmen suffered, because it was risky to try to ship plants with even the most careful packing. But with the cold we had plenty of sunshine and the growers of cut flowers will have no complaints, as the sunshine put the color into the roses. The local growers will have the largest and finest cut of Christmas flowers in their experience.

The wholesalers have not experienced the usual before-Christmas shortage. There has been plenty of everything except lilies, which seem to shorten up some. Roses, carnations, lilacs, Romans, Paper Whites and Beauties never seemed so plentiful at this season of the year. Prices have not shown much of an advance; in fact, it will be surprising if any fancy prices are asked for Christmas stock, as all realize that in order to sell stock it will be necessary to keep the prices down. Boxwood is good and is pretty well cleaned up in this market; the bad weather kept the late shipments from coming in. Wild smilax, holly and all kinds of green goods are being sold at low prices by the commission men. Christmas trees have been moving slowly up to this time; many men who are out of employment will forego that luxury.

Various Notes.

The Eastern Star Home Association conducted a business men's carnival for the benefit of the home. The A. W. Smith Co. and C. Godwin & Sons each put on an act in which they were represented by young girls. Both acts were creditable to the firms.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. will have a large cut of roses, carnations, orchids and yellow daisies for Christmas. Their houses look most promising for a good January crop.

Randolph & McClements have been pushing the plant business this season with great success. The fine line of novelty plant basket effects which they have been showing surely must make this their banner plant year. They say the cut flower end will push itself.

The A. W. Smith Co. got into the show business on its anniversary and cannot get out of the habit. The firm has been keeping the store right up to the special-day standard ever since, with beautiful blooming plant arrangements. This week some special poinsettia plants are attracting attention.

Mrs. E. A. Williams started the week with a full stock of novelty plant arrangements, which will undoubtedly disappear by Thursday, when cut flowers will reign supreme.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. have their conservatory filled with many Christmas plant arrangements, leaving the store room for the smaller novelty effects in plants and cut flowers.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. has its shop filled with Christmas wreaths of every material you can think of, as well as blooming plants. This firm's large funeral trade always demands a large stock of cut flowers.

The Ludwig Floral Co. has the store so full of pretty things that one would wonder how half of them could be disposed of. The cut flower department is busy with funeral work.

The Blind Floral Co. has its usual large display of azaleas, begonias, ferns, heather and red-fruited plants, which will occupy most of the attention until Wednesday, when the cut flower displays will be more elaborate and plants will have to take a back seat.

Ray Daschbach's Christmas trade runs largely to novelties as a rule and this season is no exception. Some pretty effects in flower baskets are in his window every day.

Miss E. B. Maxwell, of Wilkinsburg, will have her new automobile working this week. Her trade now requires two machines to deliver the pretty plant arrangements and other Christmas requirements.

Miss Nellie G. King is also busy trying to keep up with the orders that are coming in. For her first Christmas, it is exceeding her expectations.

William Turner finds that each Christmas his trade increases so that he cannot figure his order from the previous year, but must increase it each year.

Clarke.

ST. LOUIS

The Market.

Last week, as is usual just before Christmas, the supply of cut flowers was greatly reduced. The demand also decreased, as business generally is slow at this time. The prices of carnations, violets and sweet peas were considerably higher. This week the receipts of carnations and roses should be heavy. According to the wholesalers, prices will be high on fancy stock. Fancy Beauties will be scarce; so, also, will sweet peas; there is no telling how high prices will go on these. Violets, too, will be limited in supply this year. The recent dark, cloudy weather undoubtedly has caused these conditions. There will be the usual good supply of valley, Romans and Paper Whites, with hardly any advance in prices. Cut poinsettias will be in great demand, judging from the advance orders re-

The capacity of the boilers of the greenhouse men was taxed last week, as the outside temperature for a few days was close to zero.

Various Notes.

December 18 a fire broke out in the establishment of George B. Windler, on Delore avenue, causing serious damage to Christmas stock. Fire started in the sheds in the rear of the greenhouses, destroying the sheds completely and burning the ends of the houses. The boiler sprang a leak and coal oil stoves were put in use at once, thus saving the blooming plants from freezing, but the stock for cutting was greatly damaged by smoke and cold. Mr. Windler says the damage can hardly be estimated as yet.

M. Eggeling, who does business at Grand and La Fayette avenues, has opened a branch store at Berlin and Skinker avenues. This is in the extreme west end, which will soon be well supplied with flower stores.

Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week.

Fred H. Meinhardt, the Koenig Floral Co. and John Nyflot, who have places near the big cemeteries, are putting in a busy week with advance orders for Christmas grave decorations.

A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood, says there will be no sweet peas for Christmas, as the dark, cloudy weather has caused the buds to drop off.

Arthur Ellison, who is now with O'Leary the Florist, at Grand and Lucas avenues, says they have had a splendid run of trade so far this month.

The debut of Miss Clara Busch, daughter of August A. Busch, the millionaire brewer, caused a big demand for flowers. The decorations were elaborate and were furnished by Mr. Jansen, the private gardener for the Busch family. The event took place at Sunset Inn, the country home of Mr. Busch.

The death of J. H. Campbell, a millionaire stockman of East St. Louis, Ill., caused several florists to work all night December 18. It was estimated that $2,000 was the cost of the flowers furnished for this funeral.

F. H. Weber, at Boyle and Maryland avenues, says that, judging from the advance orders from out-of-town florists, this will be a plant Christmas to a greater extent than ever before.

Ludwig Zimmer, the Biddle Market florist, put in a busy week with greens and holly. He says this should be as good a Christmas as any we have had.

George Schmidt, the rose grower, who has been away for some time, will return and take a position with W. J. Pilcher, at Kirkwood.

The Moss Floral Co., at Page and Grand avenues, reports that trade has been highly satisfactory. Mrs. Moss, who was Miss May Burns, is head of the company.

The Retail Florists' Association postponed its regular monthly meeting owing to the busy season. So the next meeting will not take place until the new year.

R. J. Windler, C. Bergstermann, the Schoenle Floral Co. and Chas. Beyer, florists on South Grand avenue, have pretty Christmas window displays. They are all looking forward to a big Christmas business in all lines.

E. W. Guy, H. Emunds and A. G. Fehr, Belleville florists, were in the city last week buying Christmas supplies. All were looking happy and contented as to the prospects for Christmas.

A wealth of fine blooming plants is shown at the establishment of George Waldbart. His display of azaleas and poinsettias is finer than at any previous holiday. Many of them already have the "Sold" tag on them.

The Kalisch Bros. Floral Co. is easily the big attraction on Delmar boulevard. Their big show house is ablaze with Christmas stock. They expect to have their usual good Christmas business.

Our wholesalers, Messrs. Kuehn, Berning, Smith, Angermueller and Windler, say they expect to have a good supply of everything in season at Christmas, excepting sweet peas, violets and Beauties. Bulbous stock will be plentiful, as usual.

At this writing, business has begun to boom and everybody is busy preparing for the great final rush which will come at the end of the week. From reports, all in the trade are looking for as good a Christmas as we have ever had, if not better. "A merry and busy Christmas to all" is the wish of Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

Now it's time to rush the catalogues.

WITH the greens and other Christmas specialties out of the way, the real seed season may be said to have arrived.

THE seed catalogues so far to hand, while they show possibly more variation than usual, are almost a unit in advancing the prices of beans and reducing the prices of peas.

THE European seeds are coming along at a rate that is not greatly different from other years and war risks insurance has fallen to one-half to seven-eighths of one per cent.

THE January magazines never carried so little seed trade advertising as those coming to hand for 1915. The trade turns more and more every year to the use of special publications of rural character.

SEVERAL of the seed catalogues issued in central cities make capital of the parcel post, emphasizing the fact that the zone rates make it an object to buy important quantities of seeds where the postage rates are lowest.

IT is reported the American branch of Van Waveren & Kruijff, Sassenheim, Holland, was left with approximately 250,000 bulbs on its hands, about 100,000 of which were La Reine. These have just been cleaned up to a Philadelphia florist for forcing.

ONE of the points in which the catalogue men appear to have laid up more or less trouble for themselves, according as their orders come, is in providing for postage on pints and quarts. Formerly the wrappings added only a penny to the postage, but now when a net pound is wrapped the zone rate postage must be paid as for two pounds.

W. G. CARLETON, for ten years vice-president of the Frank S. Platt Co., of New Haven, Conn., together with Morris B. Clark, a nephew of Mr. Platt, has purchased the business of the Park & Pollard Co., at 46 Canal street, Boston, and is conducting a general business in seeds, tools, poultry, etc., under the name of the Carleton-Clark Co. Pet animals and birds and animals for circuses and zoological gardens form a branch of the business.

"REMIT FOR POSTAGE."

The 1915 catalogue of the Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O., is the first one to hand that departs from the old custom of quoting prices, postage prepaid in your greenhouses, see and ask your neighbor how they pay. It is still time to sow some now.

IF YOU HAVE NOT THE WINTER-FLOWERING ORCHID SWEET PEA

Now is the time to sow some of the Summer Sweet Pea Seed, outdoors or in cold frames, to have good crop for Decoration Day. I have only the best commercial varieties, like: Frank Dolby (lavender), Nora Unwin (white), Gladys Unwin (pink), etc.; 1 lb., $1.50; 5 lbs. of each, at $5.00.

My reselected Pink Spencer, White Spencer, Lavender Spencer, Lilac Spencer, Orange Spencer, Red Spencer, etc., at $5.00 per pound; in 5-lb. lots, at $4.00. Guaranteed over 90% true.

Countess Spencer, White Spencer (Burpee), Blanche Ferry Spencer, C. Routzahn, King Edward Spencer, at $1.50 per lb.; in 5-lb. lots, at $1.00, as long as surplus lasts.

up to quarts. It says: "We pay postage on all seeds up to and including quarter pounds; the prices quoted on larger quantities do not include postage and your remittance should cover the amount of postage." On a page with a table of zone rates it is said: "In ordering a pound of seed, remit postage enough for two pounds, as the packing will make it run over the pound limit. We cannot quote postpaid prices on larger amounts than one-fourth pounds, as you can readily see it would work an injustice to our nearby customers if we were to include sufficient in the price to cover orders from distant points. When figuring the amount to send us, please include the mailing charges, as it must be paid in advance. The government has not provided for the collection of mailing charge on delivery. If in doubt as to what amount is required for any order, you are perfectly safe in enclosing even more than you think necessary, for we will ship by the most economical method and will return to you any amount that is left over."

PLACE FOR THE DISCLAIMER.

We note the correspondence in The Review about the use of the disclaimer. When reading this, it occurred to the writer that all retail seed stores that use cash registers should have the disclaimer printed on the back of each cash register ticket that goes with the sale. All paper bags that we use for putting up seed for retail, local or mail-order packages have the disclaimer printed thereon, and a slip is put into each bag showing the variety, and right below this the disclaimer also is printed. Nearly all seedsmen have their bags printed, either burlap or cloth. When purchasing large quantities, the printing cost is little, and the disclaimer could also be printed on the cloth bags. It would seem that having it displayed in this way on every package of seed that goes out, as well as on letter heads, receipts and bill heads, would cover the situation fully. We have often had local customers ask whether or not the seed would grow and about its purity, and we always frankly tell them that we can give no guarantee whatever. However, we are pleased to say, though we have been sounds good for the reason that it only comes once a year and is a lively time for the youngsters. It is the youngsters that make us older fellows feel good and remember that we have much to be thankful for. I notice less said nowadays about Santa Claus, however, and especially the reindeers. I think Santa Claus rides in a Ford automobile now, because a Ford has everything in the get-about line so far skinned that the past is a dream, and while on the subject I might say that I regard a Ford as a sort of tool necessary to commerce and advantageous to everyone able to be out in the open. I mention this car because I think it is the best auto value there is, and may be operated at a very low cost. Excluding the florists who carry the accounts of the split-skirt fraternity, and that class of dough-bellies who are compelled to put on the agony, I think every florist who must deliver flowers should have a Ford to do the work—it works faster and costs less than horses to keep. Economics in the cost of operating a florist store are worth studying these times. In autos, the Ford is true economy. In lily bulbs, Horseshoe Brand is true economy. Send for price list now.

VALLEY PIPS FROM ROTTERDAM.

The valley pips which reached the port of New York last week were from Rotterdam, arriving December 16, on the steamer Potsdam. There is variety in the port of departure of valley pips this year; each shipment recorded in these columns in the last three weeks has come from a different port. The consignments from Holland were as follows:

SHIPMENTS OF BRITISH SEEDS.

In common with all other horticultural supplies from the Old World, shipments of seeds from Great Britain continue as in other years despite the war. If there is any difference in this year's receipts, it is that they are larger than usual. On the steamer Menominee, from London, which reached New York December 18, were over 400 cases, bags or packages of seeds consigned to horticultural firms of this country. Consignments to general importing houses, of which there were a number, are not included in the list which follows:

MORE BULBS FROM HOLLAND.

Another 200 and more cases of Dutch bulbs last week pushed the receipts for this season past the 34,000 mark, and more are coming along, though few at a time. Last week's shipments came on the steamers Brunswyk, Potsdam and Nooderdyk, all of Rotterdam, which reached New York December 11, 16 and 17 respectively. The consignments were as follows:

a present of a bench of S. P. Seedling Snaps. It will mean joy for a long time—a hundred for one on your investment. There are other snapdragons, but none so productive, which means profit, and who among you grow for anything else?

The foreman of one of the largest establishments in our land said last week: "Have grown snaps all of my life, both in England and here, but I have never seen such a BUSY snapdragon as your seedling Silver Pink."

In these strenuous times you don't want your space doing half duty. Clear out a bench and send along your order for some of these BUSY plants. They are XX quality, free from disease, and our price is only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. No matter about distance or weather, our expert packing will "put them there."

Other varieties are: White, $4.00; Yellow, $5.00; Garnet Gem, that grand new one, $8.00.

Seed-sowing time is again here. Be early on the job and start a lot of seedlings. New crop seed of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. All orders cash. Free cultural directions.

Not many of these seeds can be ripened for harvest in the Canadian climate, so that the matter is not of large trade importance, but it has thus far been impossible to confirm the item; evidently Canadian seedsmen are not informed, as an inquiry to Steele-Briggs Seed Co., Toronto, has gone unanswered since December 3.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Armstrong Nurseries, Ontario, Cal.—An attractive, well illustrated catalogue, in which citrus and semitropical fruits are prominent, but which also contains lists of miscellaneous fruit trees, roses, ornamental trees and general nursery stock; sixty-four pages and cover.

A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.—A 16-page, illustrated list of "the new ruffled gladioli, Kunderdi type." Mr. Kunderd states in the booklet, under the heading "Why We Catalogue Only Our Own Productions," that his twenty years of research and experiment have enabled him to produce "entirely new races of gladioli, with the most distinct characteristics of any."

Chas. J. Cherry & Co., Rockford, Ill.—An illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, small fruits, shrubs and plants. Forty-seven of the total sixty-four pages are devoted to vegetable and field seeds, and only the more popular flower seeds are listed.

Clark W. Brown, Ashland, Mass.—A 10-page catalogue of gladioli and dahlias; the alphabetical list of gladioli is followed by offers of various mixtures and assortments.

Missouri Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.—Flower, vegetable, field and tree seeds, poultry supplies; also garden and farm implements, such as sprayers, grain and seed mills, seeders, wheel hoes and cultivators; sixty-four illustrated pages and colored cover.

Henry Youell, Syracuse, N. Y.—A 12-page gladiolus list, with "helpful hints and early history." Besides the named sorts and mixtures, some special assortments in gift boxes are featured.

Arthur G. Lee, Fort Smith, Ark.—"Lee's Descriptive Seed Annual," a 56-page, illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, tuberous roots, plants, shrubs, vines, fruit trees and other nursery stock, implements and supplies.

Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O.—"Livingston's Seed Annual," containing 128 illustrated pages and listing seeds, bulbs, roots, tools and other equipments. The "Parcel Post Information" and other suggestions, in the introductory pages, are especially clear and valuable.

Chris. Reuter, New Orleans, La.—"Reuter's Annual Seed Book," a 68-page, illustrated catalogue of vegetable and farm seeds; also spray pumps, agricultural implements, insecticides, etc. Grass and forage seeds are conspicuously listed.

Knight & Struck Co., New York, N. Y.—The second annual edition of "The Heatherhome Seed and Plant Book," a distinctive as well as attractive catalogue, with an especially tasteful cover and with an abundance of effectively arranged descriptive and cultural matter, but with no illustrations; contains comprehensive lists of both outdoor and greenhouse stock, including fruit trees for forcing under glass; 240 pages. The same firm has also sent a booklet entitled "Heatherhome's Suggestions and Remedies for Combating the Troubles in the Flower Garden"; in this the ten pages of instructions are followed by a 2-page price list of insecticides, sprayers and other specialties.

Burnett Bros., New York, N. Y.—A clearly printed, illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, plants, fruit trees, small fruits, tools, fertilizers and sundries; the vegetable list starts with eight pages of the firm's novelties and specialties; the book contains 104 pages, bound in a neat purple and gold cover.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Los Angeles, Cal.—Burglars recently entered the store of the American Florist and attempted to open the safe. They battered the combination dial, but were unable to force open the door.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The Market.

With only a few days ahead of us to get things in shape for the rush, there is activity on all sides. Sales are slow to begin, compared with other years. Florists are preparing for good business, but they are buying conservatively and trusting there will be an agreeable surprise at the last. The wholesale prices on plants seem to be high in comparison with the stock shown, so the stores will have to figure on small margins. Cut flowers have been plentiful up to the present time and the prices have been considerably below those of previous years. Some of the best rose growers are throwing their stock on the market for what it will bring, but the next few days will cause a wonderful change. Carnations are plentiful, but the keeping qualities are not what may be expected. Mums are about gone; there will be no good stock offered for Christmas. Violets are also scarce; the rains came too late to help the supply for the holidays. Valley and orchids are plentiful, with a normal demand. There has been a noticeable decline in the demand for flowers in the social circles. Corsage work has fallen off at least fifty per cent. While the shoulder bouquets are being used more, the returns are usually smaller. Poinsettias are fine and as cut flowers they sell well, retailing at $4 to $7 per dozen.

Green goods are plentiful, with a steady demand. Holly is scarce and little is to be had locally. The best is being shipped from Oregon. The ilex berries are used in great quantities and in a measure surpass the holly.

Various Notes.

E. James has a fine lot of general blooming plants ready for the holidays. He is considered the best grower in this section.

The H. M. Sanborn Co. reports business as satisfactory. A general line of cut flowers and plants, as well as bulbs and seeds, is carried. Seasonable colors are well displayed in the window, with a choice arrangement of plants.

Clarke Bros. have a well arranged place, with a good variety of flowers and plants. They quote conditions as being favorable.

A call at the principal stores in San Francisco found everything in readiness. Joseph's, the new flower store, is one of the finest in the city. It occupies the entire building of four floors, with private elevator. Plant display, tea and art rooms are on separate floors. Their ads feature fruits, flowers and favors.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have a large force constantly busy taking care of their increasing trade. They have one of the largest retail establishments on the coast.

E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Prospects are good for Christmas business at this writing, with plenty of good stock in almost all lines and plenty of inquiries. Red roses are plentiful and good, but red carnations are a little short. Poinsettias are fine, but at present writing it is raining heavily, and this may damage the bracts somewhat. Poinsettia plants are going to be scarce, but there are plenty of azaleas, begonias, cyclamens and other suitable plant stock. Red chenille is much in evidence in all decorations now; also the dyed ruscus. Greens of all kinds and local holly and wreathing are plentiful. Imported holly trees are scarce, many of them having lost their foliage in transit. A few northern grown plants have been sent in, but they are of fair quality only.

Various Notes.

A light frost visited this section the night of December 13, but practically no damage was done. The rains of the previous days had softened the growth and the ground, and this will enable the fruit tree men to get their trees dug, as the frost and wind have quite settled the foliage. A few young orange shoots and some of the more tender plants were touched, but the cool nights will do far more good than harm, unless we get much lower temperatures than this. Pasadena, the San Gabriel valley and the foothill towns under the Sierras apparently suffered worse than Los Angeles.

Dr. Schiffman's remarkable collection at St. Paul, Minn., that he sold some years ago to a Pasadena orchidist. The doctor has returned to his old love, and is starting a new collection. Peter Mackenzie, his gardener, has the plants well in hand in a new house built this year for their accommodation, and I had the pleasure of a look through last week. The collection is rich in artificially raised hybrids, notably some of the brasso-cattleyas having B. Digbyana as one parent. B. Heatonensis is a grand thing, almost pure white, the growth only showing its relationship to that other (natural) hybrid, Cattleya Hardyana. Cattleya Maggie Raphael is another exquisite thing, a cross between a white form of C. Trianæ and C. Dowiana aurea. The venations as seen in the Dowiana types are reproduced on the lip, which has also the yellow blotch peculiar to Trianæ, and the outer segments are white. Another hybrid, between Digbyana and Lælia tenebrosa, is quite a distinct thing, showing the chestnut markings of tenebrosa quite plainly. Lælio-cattleya Felicity is small, but exquisite in coloring, the progeny of L. crispa and C. Mendellii. A small house of cypripediums and another of newly imported cattleyas were in the best of health, and the whole place is in fine shape. Mr. Mackenzie should not be confounded with Roderick Mackenzie, who also has charge of a fine collection of orchids in Pasadena, almost close by Dr. Schiffman's.

Albert V. Amet, of the Mountain View Nurseries, Santa Monica, reports prospects for Christmas business good. His own prospects, too, are fine, as he is engaged to marry Miss Amalya Sands, of Santa Monica. His firm has just completed a contract for the city at Linda Vista park, which has made quite a good month for the landscape department.

H. N. Gage, of the H. N. Gage Co., is well satisfied with the Christmas busi-

SUPERIOR-GROWN ROSES for IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg Has fulfilled every prediction made for it last season and is a big winner everywhere. There is no red rose grown that will make as satisfactory returns for the space occupied. Of exceedingly strong, sturdy growth, throwing splendid stems at all times; splendid foliage. The one best bet in red roses.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

Ophelia has proven of exceptional merit as a forcing rose; a great grower, clean and strong, very free, and a most beautiful color—brilliant salmon-pink, shading to orange. A fancy rose that you will be more than pleased with.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Killarney Brilliant This is the very last word in the Killarneys—an exceptionally strong grower, increased petalage and of heavier texture. A most brilliant and pleasing color; is doing well everywhere, and will be planted heavily this season.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer The most popular rose of its color ever introduced; has won its way to the very top on merit alone. A grand grower, very free, a splendid keeper and the most pleasing shade of pink; sells on sight, at top prices. Will be planted heavier than any other pink rose this season.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

All the new and standard varieties in quantity. Let us figure on your requirements for the coming season. We can make the price right for first-class, well grown stock.

ness coming his way so far, and says it is away beyond that of last year at this time. He has secured the exclusive sales right of plants of the new White Fair Maid carnation, which has been so popular this season.

Wright's Flower Shop reports good inquiries for holiday trade, and the stock coming in from the Gardena range is excellent. Richmond and Prima Donna roses are especially good, and the plant stock is perfect.

H. W. Turner will have a fine cut of roses for Christmas, but he says there will not be enough to meet all demands. Big loads are sent in daily to the city besides the out-of-town shipments, which are heavy.

Victor Clemence, of the Clemence Nurseries, Pasadena, reports business good. He has a nice stock, much more varied than that of the majority of nurseries here, and it is always clean and healthy. H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The weather bureau reports this the coldest December since 1909. Abundant quantities of Christmas stock are in sight, except mums, violets and possibly carnations. California crops of violets have been damaged by inclement weather and dealers here do not expect to get their orders filled in full. It is probable that the cut flowers will all be disposed of early in the rush and then potted stock, greens and cured materials will be substituted. The holly and mistletoe are of excellent quality, better than usual. Prices on greens are a little lower than last year, but cut flowers and potted stock command about the usual figures.

Club's Ladies' Night.

The first ladies' night in the history of the Portland Florists' Society took the place of the regular meeting December 15. Members, with their families, employees and invited guests, attended, making the largest gathering the club has ever brought together. A brief business session to dispose of routine matters was held in the regular meeting rooms in Masonic Temple early in the evening and then all hands gathered in the large social hall on the same floor of the building. After a short time devoted to introductions, President Van Kirk announced the opening number on the entertainment program, a piano duet by Misses Coral Van Kirk and Christine Forbes. Next came a song by the Austro-Hungarian Male Choral Club of twenty-two voices, composed partly of Portland Florists' Society's members, followed by a Shakespearean dialogue by E. A. Shepherd and J. E. Hitchcock. The surprise of the evening was then announced, a selection by the Portland Florists' Society orchestra of five pieces. This was the first appearance in public of this musical organization. Another song by the male chorus completed the program. All numbers were heartily enjoyed and the performers responded to the applause with encores. A spread in the banquet hall, music and dancing, cards and social chats closed the evening. The whole affair was pronounced a grand success and ladies' night is likely to become a regular event in the society, to occur annually or oftener.

A. Alenius, foreman at the plant of Wilson & Crout Co., is reported much better after his recent illness.

The daughter of W. Thompson, greenhouse builder, has had diphtheria and his home was under quarantine for some time. He has added to his plant and is showing some new styles in column brackets of wrought materials.

Louis G. Pfunder, one of Portland's pioneer florists, now retired from active business, fell when getting off a street car December 16 and fractured one of his arms. Although he is 70 years of age, his full recovery seems certain.

Prof. Arthur S. Peck, of the Horticultural Department of Oregon Agricultural College, is a member of the Portland Florists' Society and attended ladies' night. He mentioned a successful show recently held at the college, of flowers grown by students and alumni. Several Portland florists contributed flowers for decorations.

Julius Broetje, of Oak Grove, devotes his attention principally to growing hardy perennials and ornamentals. He has about 3,000 feet of glass in which he handles tender stock.

Messrs. McGee and Powers, of the Oregon Nursery Co., came in with their families to attend ladies' night. They say their company has had a satisfactory business this season. S. W. W.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station recently issued Bulletin No. 156, "Electrical Injuries to Trees," by George E. Stone.

N. A. RASMUSSEN, of Oshkosh, Wis., was elected president of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society at its annual meeting at Madison last week.

THE Elm City Nursery Co., of New Haven, Conn., has increased its capital stock to $200,000, of which $125,000 will be common stock and $75,000 preferred.

J. H. SMITH, proprietor of a large citrus nursery near Sacramento, Cal., is preparing to start another on forty acres of land which he has purchased near Orland, Cal.

THE firm of Koolbergen & Sliedrecht, Boskoop, Holland, will be dissolved January 1, the business being continued by Harry Koolbergen, who is well known in America through his annual trips here.

NOTICE of the death of Mrs. Jessie S. Moss, founder of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, at Huntsville, Ala., and mother of Milton Moss, well known to those of the trade, will be found in this week's obituary column.

THE stock held by W. H. Baird in the Highland Nursery Co., Cedar Rapids, Ia., has been sold to his brother, J. E. Baird, who has been in charge of the company's nursery at North Liberty. W. H. Baird will remain with the concern for the present at least.

"ALTHOUGH we have not closed up our books for the year," writes K. M. van Gelderen, proprietor of the Evergreen Nurseries, at Long Branch, N. J., "we have so far this year increased our sales sixty-five per cent, which does not look much like hard times with us."

ARID acres of the west may be put under cultivation to yield fruits, if recent reports are true. It is declared that two seedling fruit trees brought to this country from China by the Department of Agriculture will grow on the alkali spots, hitherto occupied only by sagebrush. The trees come from the high and arid lands of western China, and are Amygdalus Davidiana, a seedling peach, and Prunus Pseudo-Cerasus, a seedling cherry. Interesting, perhaps important, if true.

VALUE OF PUBLICITY WORK.

The more the subject has been discussed the more strongly have nurserymen come to believe that their line could be immensely aided by publicity work on the part of individual members of the trade and, more particularly, by the various trade organizations. Those who have tried it once, have found newspapers of all kinds and sizes, metropolitan and village, ready, and often glad, to accept contributions of an informative, if not of a news, nature. A first attempt will show the way to extensive and effective publicity. Individuals can do the work in their own home towns, leaving the larger fields to the organizations. H. E. Hall, of Sherman, Tex., in his address on this subject before the Texas Nurserymen's Association recently, indicated the points on which the public especially needs education. He said:

"The public certainly needs to be educated as to when to plant, where to plant and what to plant. Some people have so little knowledge on these points that they order hackberry trees for planting in July; we are all familiar with the atrocities committed by some in the arrangement of shrubbery on the lawn, and all of us have calls for north pole plants that will stand the Texas climate.

"Another point on which general education is badly needed is how to care for the trees and plants after they have been planted. Of course, there are cases where specific instructions are needed, but there are a great many general rules, which, if they were commonly known, would be of much benefit to the planter. To buy roses from a department store and then complain that roses will not do well in 'my yard,' is a common occurrence, but the trouble is with the purchaser, though he does not know it, and he should be informed.

"Another benefit to the people is that of increased value of property from an æsthetic as well as a financial standpoint. Many a man has paid more for a piece of property well planted than for one on which there is little or no planting. Those who are sufficiently interested in art to own valuable paintings certainly know how to appreciate a setting of trees and shrubs in artistic arrangement. When it is generally practiced, the value will begin to be understood, and publicity could do much good along this line.

"There is a growing feeling that because a person has dealt with an unscrupulous agent or nursery the whole fraternity is 'on the beat,' and nurserymen could do a world of good by informing the public that the cheapest stock is not that carrying the lowest price, but that which is put out by a responsible nursery, and that they should never deal with any except those who are thoroughly reliable and responsible.

"Another advantage of this publicity work is that examples could easily be given of incomes derived by people who make a business of growing fruits and nuts; people could be informed about how long it takes different fruits and nuts to come into bearing. Then they could easily tell if a salesman were exaggerating or prevaricating, and such could be put out of business, if possible, or made to mend his ways. Educating the people would have a strong tendency this way and publicity of the right kind would help in educating a great many people."

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.

SUED FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Refund Clause No Defense.

In the case of Sanford vs. Brown Bros. Co., 101 Northeastern Reporter 797, the New York Court of Appeals laid down these important principles of law affecting the interpretation to be given contracts for the sale of nursery stock or other goods:

"When the seller furnishes the form of contract, any doubt as to its meaning must be resolved in favor of the buyer, and every written agreement is to be construed, if possible, to make it fair to both parties."

In the case above cited it appeared that plaintiff bought a quantity of peach trees from defendant under an agreement which contained this clause: "Any stock which does not prove to be true to the name as labeled is to be replaced, or purchase price refunded," and plaintiff sued for damage claimed to have been sustained by him on discovering that the trees sold were not of the quality called for by the contract, a fact which was not discovered until

PALISADES NURSERIES

THERE you will find all kinds, and you can take your pick from the best that grow. Perennials add a feeling of permanency to your home surroundings. They change their plumage, but not their face, and keep reflecting the seasons all the year around.

FALL PLANTING—To grow most hardy perennials and old-fashioned flowers successfully, plant in October and November, like planting Spring-flowering bulbs. They then root during Fall and Winter, and are ready for Spring and Summer blooming.

No grounds are really gardened without a big showing in perennials. We are headquarters for perennials, and assure the widest latitude in choice as well as the most courteous promptitude in correspondence and service. Our motto—"Maximum Quality at Minimum Cost."

three years after the sale was made. Defendant opposed the suit on the ground that the clause above quoted restricted plaintiff's remedy to the right to have the trees replaced or the purchase price refunded, but this point was decided in plaintiff's favor, the Court of Appeals saying:

"The plaintiff was a farmer without previous experience in the culture of peaches; he could not have discovered for a period of three or four years the variety of peaches, if any, the trees would bear. When he purchased the trees, he was justified in relying upon the superior knowledge of the defendant as to the quality of the trees to be selected and furnished by defendant. The defendant was chargeable with notice of the purpose for which the trees were to be used, and also had knowledge that the trees would not attain to the bearing point for a period of three or four years, during which time plaintiff would be required to devote his time, together with labor and expense, to the cultivation of the orchard. It would be unreasonable to hold under the terms of this contract that at the end of three years, should the trees prove valueless, the only obligation was to furnish a supply of new trees or refund the purchase price. In such a case, while defendant would sustain a loss to the extent of the original cost of the trees, the loss to plaintiff in the use of land, expenses of cultivation, etc., might prove very substantial. * * * If defendant assumed to fill the order by trees in part purchased from other dealers, the risk was assumed by defendant and not by the plaintiff, and a failure on the part of defendant to deliver the goods ordered and of the quality prescribed, or the delivery of trees other than the trees it agreed to deliver, renders it liable for a breach of contract."

Implied Warranty.

The rule applied in this case, to the effect that one who sells fruit trees for planting impliedly warrants that they are sound, healthy and vigorous, was sustained by the Oregon Supreme court in the case of Kitchin vs. Oregon Nursery Co., 130 Pacific Reporter 408. The court said:

"Defendant contends that it was not liable upon a warranty that the trees would grow, but only that they were live trees of the variety ordered. Defendant as a nursery company was producing and putting on the market young fruit trees for fruit raising; and nursery fruit trees cannot be considered with reference to any other purpose. Hence there is an implied warranty that the trees are sound, healthy and vigorous."

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business for the week was all that could be desired. The wholesale houses report business only normal as far as daily sales are concerned, but Christmas orders have been pouring in, for supplies, cut flowers and plants. The retailers are not receiving advance orders as they did last year in the week preceding Christmas, although every flower store in the city has increased its supplies for the holiday trade. The retailers are not going to be caught napping when it comes to getting in on the Christmas business. Last year some of them had what they considered a sufficient supply of fancy baskets and pot plants to meet the demand, but ran short, leaving disappointed customers with the impression that the florist is not to be relied upon at the last moment. This year, from all reports, there is a larger supply of pot plants. These can be used later in decorations.

Everyone seems to be interested in the cut flower market, as there has been so much cloudy, dark weather and the end of it is not in sight at present. Carnations are blooming slowly. There are plenty of narcissi, violets, valley, stevia and Easter lilies, which help to fill up the cut flower market and meet the demand. Beauties are scarce and higher in price. It is expected there will be a shortage of this rose, while other roses are plentiful.

Pot plants are plentiful and good, as all the growers have increased along this line, especially in poinsettias, begonias and fancy basket plants. The retailers have been encouraging the growing of more pot plants. A good many growers are complaining about their azaleas being poorly flowered.

Various Notes.

The Alpha Floral Co. has added to its force James A. Biggam, a well known decorator, and Claude Huckleberry, a grower, to look after the greenhouse containing the decorative plants.

The Peterson Floral Co. has ended the fall shrubbery and tree planting work and, as a whole, is well satisfied with business for the year 1914.

Miss L. E. Boggess reports a good business for the last two weeks, especially in out-of-town funeral work.

E. H. Frandsen & Co. have sold out entirely on pot plants. They had a fine lot of poinsettias and other plants. Their roses are in excellent shape, carnations are good and Mr. Frandsen is well pleased with business, considering the conditions.

Trade is looking up somewhat and there are indications of a good demand for Christmas stock. There are not many orders placed in advance, not as many as we should all like to see, but they will probably line up satisfactorily later. Stock is likely to be scarce in some lines. There will be a shortage of Beauties and other roses, as they are not coming in strongly and are badly off color. Carnations will be plentiful, except red ones, which will be a little scarce, as the demand for them, of course, will be heavy. Valley will be in fair supply, both cut and potted. Violets also will be in fair supply and the indications are that the demand for them will be heavy. Sweet peas will be scarce, as the buds have been dropping badly from them lately.

There will be a good supply of potted plants, including azaleas, begonias, cyclamens, primulas, etc. The Christmas greens have been moving well and are getting cleaned up nicely.

Various Notes.

The Livingston Seed Co. reports business improving somewhat and a heavy Christmas trade is looked for.

The Munk Floral Co. reports everything coming on nicely, both at the main store and at the branch.

C. A. Roth looks for fair business for Christmas.

T. J. Ludwig, of the Livingston Seed Co., has opened a temporary place for the holiday trade, and early in January he will open a new flower store at 84 North High street. He will be on the north side of the room of the White-Haines Optical Co., with a workroom in the rear and space in the basement.

NEW "MUMS"

The fall shows are now past, and you have no doubt jotted down the names of some varieties you will add to your stock next season. That is the way to keep abreast of the times. If you have not already done so, be sure you include our "Yellow Sport from Mrs. Chas. Rager." It will eventually be as widely grown as the white variety from which it sported. You run absolutely no risk in buying it.

Send for our price list, which also includes Carnation cuttings and Geranium plants. We have both in large quantity and top quality.

The Market.

During the early part of last week a cold snap struck us. The weather bureau report stated the lowest temperature in two years was registered Tuesday, December 15, and the sudden drop in temperature caused considerable anxiety regarding incoming shipments of perishable Christmas stock and made extra wrapping necessary on deliveries. The latter part of the week it warmed up considerably and no freeze-outs were reported, showing that everybody was prepared.

Business has been as fair as can be expected so close to the holiday season. Roses, especially the Killarneys, are rather off color, due to the cloudy weather which we have had for some time. There has been a good demand for lilies, and the good supply was soon taken up. Valley has been the slowest moving stock on the market. On Saturday the commission houses were pretty well cleaned out, and not to the street boys, either. There is a plentiful supply of Christmas greens, but the early holiday orders have been conspicuous by their absence.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Mary Johnston has put in service a new Overland delivery car, which shows up well. This is the second delivery car now in use.

Halliday Bros. have been showing in their large display window some well made wreaths of magnolia leaves and red cape designs. The bright color showed well against the dull green background.

J. J. Perry has recovered sufficiently from his recent illness, which was reported exclusively in The Review last week, to again attend to his duties as manager of the local branch of the Pennock-Meehan Co. He was at his desk for a short while Saturday, December 19, for the first time, but is still weak from excessive loss of blood.

W. F. E.

Manchester, Mass.—The North Shore Horticultural Society held its regular meeting December 17, Vice-president Wetterlow in the chair. A smoker followed the business session. The next meeting is January 1, when F. S. Gifford will lecture. The annual banquet will be held in the Town hall, January 27.

We hope you had a Splendid Christmas, and that you will have A Very Happy and a Very Prosperous New Year.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The big and the important feature of this week's market is the steady extension of the steam coal trade and the gradual rise in price, says the Black Diamond. It is not to be understood that there is any boom, but there is a constant growth. In Chicago the market for No. 3 vein of smokeless coal, the favorite greenhouse fuel, has been fairly strong. The major producers have been holding firmly to circular price, but now and then some of the smaller producers have had a surplus on hand up to demurrage and have sold it off circular. The list price, f. o. b. mines, is $1.25 to $1.40 for mine run. For Illinois coal, the larger Franklin county producers are holding for $1.15 to $1.25 for mine run, but the smaller people cut this to $1 if needs be. Indiana coals are worth $1.10 at the mine.

LARGER PIPE IS PREFERABLE.

I am a grower of vegetable and flowering plants and am located in the eastern part of New York state. If business continues to increase, I intend to enlarge my greenhouses and I am herewith sending you a sketch of the house that I intend to build. The house will be three-quarter-span, and will be five feet high at the north side and three feet high at the south, or front side. The outside walls will be concrete and the east end will be protected by the boiler room and potting shed. There will be a raised bench at the north side, a solid bed in the middle and another solid bed at the south wall. Please tell me how to pipe this house

Keep your boiler up on the ground where it is readily accessible for firing and repairs. There's a way to save time and money—trouble and expense—and still obtain the same drainage facilities. That way is to install the

Morehead

Back to Boiler

SYSTEM

The Morehead System keeps your steam apparatus dry, hot; increases the circulation and assures a perfect drainage. It feeds the condensate directly to your boilers, thereby maintaining the constant temperature so necessary in the greenhouse. And it's so simple, too—so sure. Ask for the complete facts.

for hot water. I have a lot of 1¼-inch pipe which I wish to use. J. J. T.

The sketch shows the proposed greenhouse to be 15x40 feet, but it does not indicate the amount of glass, if any, in the walls, nor does it show the temperature desired. If there is no glass and if a temperature of 50 degrees will answer, I would suggest running a 2½-inch flow pipe about two feet under the ridge and another on the south wall plate. In addition to the flow pipes, eight 1¼-inch return pipes will be required. If there is room for four pipes above the solid bed which runs along the south wall, I would place four returns on this wall and connect them at the west end of the house with the flow on the plate, or if the space is too small for four pipes, two may be placed on the wall and two in the walk on the side of the bed. Of the other four returns, part should be placed on the north wall and part under the raised bed along the north wall of the house. These, of course, should be connected with the flow pipe located under the ridge of the house.

When the return pipes are as small as 1¼-inch, it is always advisable to attach some form of generator to the system. The main flow pipe from the boiler may be 3-inch and the generator should be upon this pipe. Instead of using eight 1¼-inch pipes for the returns, it would be preferable to put in six 2-inch ones, although the use of a generator will secure a good circulation even with 1¼-inch pipe for the returns. Of course, both flow and return pipes should have a slight fall.

INDIANAPOLIS.

Trade has been fairly steady for the last two weeks. The recent cloudy weather has shortened the supply of cut stock, but it looks as though there would be enough for the Christmas trade. Home-grown roses are first-class, despite the cloudy weather. First-class carnations are plentiful. Sweet peas are scarce, the recent cloudy weather causing the buds to drop off. The indications are that there will be none for Christmas. Valley, lilies, orchids and violets are plentiful. Poinsettias, stevias, Paper Whites and Romans are enough for the demand.

Blooming plants are plentiful. Fine azaleas, poinsettias, Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias and cyclamens are available in unlimited quantities.

Holly, laurel and other Christmas greens show no scarcity as yet, and indications point to no shortage this year. H. L. W.

33 Union Stock Yards, Chicago

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

It is expected that by the time the last Christmas order has been filled the florists of Washington will have realized a successful holiday business. The outlook up to a week before Christmas was poor, but a multitude of advance orders coming in quickly changed this aspect. Although there are more blooming plants on the market this year than last, it is believed everything in that line will clean up well. The stocks of cyclamens, begonias and azaleas are the equal of any ever seen in this locality and the advance sale was heavy. However, according to several of the growers, cut flowers will be a gamble. Without doubt there will be sufficient to supply all demands at the usual Christmas prices, but the weather of the last few days has not been conducive to the production of first-class stock. The pink roses are decidedly off color. American Beauty roses are expected to suffer a slight decline over the previous year's prices, because of a heavy crop in the eastern markets.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors during the last week were J. E. Peterson, of Cincinnati; G. G. Stumpp, of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, and Joseph J. Goudy, with Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.

Frederick Rand, assistant in the laboratory of plant pathology of the Department of Agriculture, has left for a trip through New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland on business for the department. Among other things he will obtain material for the study of water lily diseases.

E. Brown, botanist in charge of the seed testing laboratories of the Department of Agriculture, has gone to New York to consult with the custom house officials on matters concerning the importation of seeds under the seed importation statute.

William F. Gude has been nominated as a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to take effect upon the completion of his term as president of that organization.

A negro deliveryman temporarily employed by the Washington Florists Co. has been arrested charged with the larceny of a diamond ring, the property of Miss Alice Craemer.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is planning to add an automobile delivery service and with this in view has secured a permit to remodel the store. A garage is to be built in the section at the rear of the large iceboxes.

The big "Iron Framer" is 72 x 500. We furnished the materials, and they erected it. Mr. Harvey states that it took only six days, after the side posts were set and the eave plate on, to put up the complete iron frame. In nine days more, it was all glazed. To use Mr. Harvey's words—"everything went together just like clockwork."

Here is a Letter Lately Received from Alban Harvey & Sons, Brandywine, Pa.

"WE WISH to express our sincere appreciation to you for your kindness in having our truss houses repaired. We think we will have no further trouble with these houses, as the roofs now seem to be thoroughly supported. It is only another instance of the pleasant dealing we have always had with the Lord & Burnham Company, and a further proof of their cheerful readiness to make good all their work. We are very much pleased with the big iron frame house you furnished us last summer."

500,000 CARNATION CUTTINGS.

We are devoting our entire plant to the growing of carnation cuttings. Our stock plants are grown cool and not allowed to flower, so all the strength goes to the cuttings. Experience had proved beyond question that these are far superior to cuttings taken from flowering plants. We have an abundance of stock and our propagators are instructed to use only perfect cuttings. These are now rooting nearly 100%.

We invite you to come and see our stock.

GOOD STOCK for you for another season means SUCCESS; POOR STOCK means FAILURE.

Our guarantee goes with every cutting and, if not satisfactory, may be returned and money back.

Growing Field Carnation Plants is No Gamble If You Have A Skinner System Rain Machine

Overhead Field Irrigation with our Rain Machine at R. E. Wadsworth & Co.'s, Northboro, Mass.

NO one really denies that field grown Carnations are the best; provided, of course, the season is favorable.

But that word "provided" is a mighty big word, especially if it means a case of dry weather, and the necessity of laboriously watering your plants to prevent their growth being checked.

With these days of smaller profits and keener competition, you can't afford to take any weather chances.

Right here, then, is where The Skinner System Rain Machine, or Overhead Irrigation, comes to your aid.

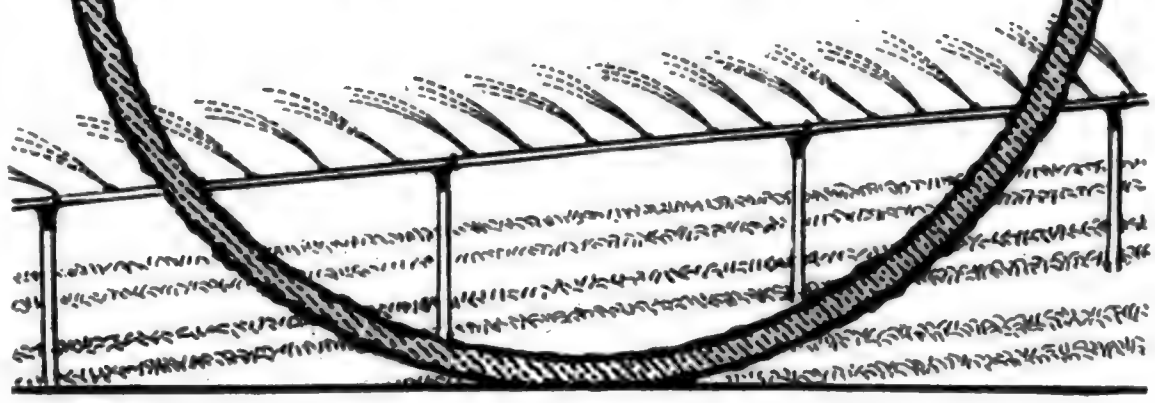
With it, you can, with scarcely any labor expense, water your plants gently, evenly and thoroughly.

You can utterly defy dry weather.

You can reduce planting-out losses, by giving them a gentle rain when set out. You can insure better results when transplanting to the greenhouse, by giving the soil just the amount of wetting you wish.

It's a form of crop insurance.

SPECIAL OFFER



To prove to yourself beyond all doubt that our System is the System to buy, and that it will do exactly what we say it will—order one of our Complete Portable Lines, and try it out. It consists of a 50-foot line of pipe, fully equipped with nozzles, turning union, roller bearing supports, and our quick detachable coupling, on which patents are now pending. We will ship it to you for $11 75 f. o. b. Troy, Ohio.

If you send money with the order, we will do one of two things—either prepay the freight east of the Mississippi River, or send you two sets of nozzles, one for greenhouse and one for out-of-door use. State which you want us to do. If you haven't our Irrigation Bulletins, send for them.

MONINGER "ALL-STEEL"

A look up at the roof in one of the 60-foot Gullett houses. Notice criss-cross bracing for length-of-house strain.

MEANS LASTING STRENGTH

The "All-steel" House Is the Perfect Greenhouse

YOU ought to know the old saying, "A chain is no stronger than its weakest link." It's a true saying and it holds good on other things, too. No greenhouse is stronger than its weakest part, and that's why our houses are "all-steel" down to the last detail.

Steel with its finely knit molecules is the strongest structural material on the market—everybody admits this. Then why use steel for rafters and iron for wall posts? The wall posts carry the whole load and should not be made of weak material. Wrought iron is cheaper, too.

Actual tests made with modern steel and wrought iron show the steel to be equal, if not superior, to iron in resisting rust and corrosion. Modern steel is different than it was a few years ago. Experiments made years ago don't count now. You can have the proofs if you want them. Plain "bunk" doesn't go with us.

There are no castings in our house. The eave is held on with a drop forging with rivited steel lugs. Castings won't hold. You'll have trouble with them.

Your new house of "all-steel" construction won't cost you any more than the "mixed-breed" variety. We don't try to save money on the quality of material in our houses, but we do save it by efficient and economical management of our business.

The "all-steel" is the house of the future. It's the perfect greenhouse. Don't buy any house until you are sure you don't want ours.

OUR BUSINESS

The grower's business is to see that his lily bulbs are handled so that the largest percentage of flowers results from his efforts. It is our business to supply the best lily bulbs produced, so the grower may keep the investment down and the revenue up. And our success is due to the fact that we attend to our business. The result of our work is Horseshoe Brand.

DORNER'S NOVELTIES FOR 1915

New Crimson Forcing Rose

HOOSIER BEAUTY-- Color a bright crimson with darker shadings. A long bud, opening to a large full flower. A texture like velvet. Very fragrant. Keeping qualities are exceptionally good. A free, easy growing variety, throwing two to three foot stems; requires no pinching. Perfectly healthy, is not susceptible to mildew or black spot. Equal to any forcing rose in productiveness. We invite inspection of our stock.

Price, Own Root.....$30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000
Grafts..... 35.00 per 100; 300.00 per 1000

Two New Carnations

PINK SENSATION-- An exceedingly large flower. A well defined pink in color. Size, 4 to 4½ inches. Keeping qualities unsurpassed. Has a stocky growth, a heavier foliage than ordinary and throws good long flower stems. A high grade commercial carnation.

GOOD CHEER-- Color, pink, darker than Gloriosa. Size, 3 inches and over. Good keeping qualities. Extra long stems. Early and continuous flowering—a great producer.

Price.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

New White Chrysanthemum

EARLY FROST-- A good commercial white mum for very early. A cross between Golden Glow and October Frost. Height, 3 feet. Pure white with an incurved petal, perfect form and full to the center. Has the Golden Glow habit to set early buds, which develop into perfect blooms.

Rooted cuttings or two-inch pot plants.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

F. Dorner & Sons Co. - La Fayette, Ind.

Crop Conditions

For those wishing to order here we announce the present conditions of crops of the different kinds of roses we grow.

KILLARNEY—Both Pink and White

Crops of these great staples, now and for several weeks to come, are heavy and of magnificent quality. Our Killarneys cut mostly in stems 12, 15, 18 and 24-inch, with a few longer if desired. Good foliage and fine color now on these kinds.

AMERICAN BEAUTY

We will have good cuts of Beauty of the long and medium stems all during January. We also cut some of the shorter ones, but in midwinter the shorter lengths are apt to be off-color, and not perfect buds, but the 18-inch and over are fine.

THE NOVELTY ROSES

Russell, Ophelia, Hadley and Shawyer are in small supply. We are cutting a fair amount daily of Hadley and Shawyer, but not many Ophelia and Russell. D'Arenberg and Richmond are in pretty good supply daily.

YELLOW ROSES—Ward and Sunburst

Sunburst is practically done for the winter. Ward is cutting in small quantity daily, but we can almost always supply some.

DORNER'S NOVELTIES FOR 1915

New Crimson Forcing Rose

HOOSIER BEAUTY—Color a bright crimson with darker shadings. A long bud, opening to a large full flower. A texture like velvet. Very fragrant. Keeping qualities are exceptionally good. A free, easy growing variety, throwing two to three foot stems; requires no pinching. Perfectly healthy, is not susceptible to mildew or black spot. Equal to any forcing rose in productiveness. We invite inspection of our stock.

Price, Own Root.....$30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000
Grafts..... 35.00 per 100; 300.00 per 1000

Two New Carnations

PINK SENSATION—An exceedingly large flower. A well defined pink in color. Size, 4 to 4½ inches. Keeping qualities unsurpassed. Has a stocky growth, a heavier foliage than ordinary and throws good long flower stems. A high grade commercial carnation.

GOOD CHEER—Color, pink, darker than Gloriosa. Size, 3 inches and over. Good keeping qualities. Extra long stems. Early and continuous flowering—a great producer.

Price.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

New White Chrysanthemum

EARLY FROST—A good commercial white mum for very early. A cross between Golden Glow and October Frost. Height, 3 feet. Pure white with an incurved petal, perfect form and full to the center. Has the Golden Glow habit to set early buds, which develop into perfect blooms.

"Our Most Successful Holiday Trade"

THIS REPORT from our customers is but one of the many ways in which our patrons approve of the manner in which we handle their orders, and an indication of the business-building power behind the high-grade stock we supply. Half of the battle is in the stock you sell and the service you get from your wholesaler.

The Year 1915 Will Be What You Make It

With our supply the largest and of the best quality, there is reason for our desire to serve you. We will do it well and establish ourselves firmly so far as your patronage is concerned. We co-operate with the retailer in all the problems that enter into the success of his business, and if our service can be employed to further his interests, it is to be had for the asking.

Our supply is heavy on both ROSES and CARNATIONS, as well as on all other seasonable Flowers and Greens

Christmas 1914

The Holiday business turns out erratic, uneven, but in many cases exceeded the Trade's expectations and preparations

PROBABLY the trade never has given so much thought to the Christmas business—before and after—as has been the case this year. The holiday trade is an important factor even in a normal year, and this year is distinctly abnormal. So the Christmas sales were of unusual importance.

Advertising Paid.

Among the retailers in the cities there was a quite general opinion that the demand would not come up to last year. Some were willing to let it go at that, and bought accordingly, but others took steps to stimulate the use of flowers. At Cleveland, for instance, the trade raised a fund for advertising and it is interesting to read that Christmas eve the pressure on the stores became "a riot." All lines of stock cleaned up in good shape. In dozens of places in this issue it will be read that the business "exceeded expectations," even though no advertising was done.

The business of the week must have been enormous, taking the country as a whole. The supply of stock in all lines certainly was the heaviest ever known—and most of it found a buyer. The wholesale prices did not average so high as last year—indeed, in the four largest cities they were the lowest ever realized at Christmas—and no doubt most retailers gave their customers the benefit, but the public turned into the cash registers of the trade last week an aggregate sum not far behind the best week's record the trade ever has been able to make.

It is important to note that, while the big cities and manufacturing towns showed some effect of the general business conditions that have prevailed since August, the smaller cities and country towns show, instead, the effect of the bountiful crops. From the smaller cities in the grain states come many reports of the best Christmas business on record. The trade in the middle west appears to be in better shape than in any other part of the country.

Plants Were Pushed.

The conditions appear to have favored the sale of plants, especially in the cities. The retailers felt safer in stocking up on them, and on baskets of ruscus, boxwood and red berries, than they did on cut flowers. The result seems to make it possibly necessary that a complete readjustment of holiday cut flower values take place to induce the retailers to push cut flowers again the way they once pushed them and the way they now push plants. Whatever trouble there is lies with the trade—the public last week bought all the good cut flowers the retailers offered them at moderate prices. Read the news notes and city letters:

Summary of the Christmas Trade

The holiday business was enormous, in many places the largest ever, but on the whole not up to last year in money value.

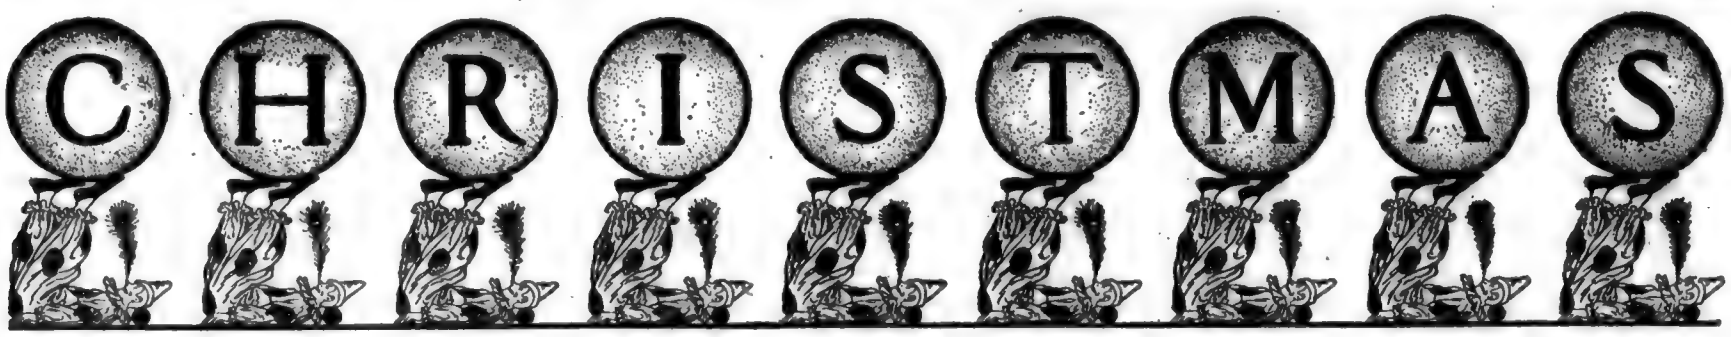
In general, the retailers are better pleased than the wholesalers; the plantsmen much better satisfied than the cut flower growers.

The trade in the manufacturing cities appears not to have been so good as in the country towns.

Supplies of stock were the greatest in the history of the trade, both plants and cut flowers.

Wholesale prices, particularly on cut flowers, were distinctly lower than last year, especially in the larger cities; the man who retailed the stock he grew fared much better than the wholesale grower.

While enormous quantities of cut flowers were sold, it is everywhere noted the trade pushed plants. The business was later than usual starting and many who sell to the public could have used more stock than they had provided. Unsatisfactory reports from certain important centers are offset by many statements that the business exceeded expectations.



Weather conditions were unfavorable over the greater part of the country; too near zero.

Somersworth, N. H.—G. S. Ramsburg comments that the pessimist must have frozen solid, for Santa brought big business for the florists in this section.

Bellows Falls, Vt.—Christmas sales were not only good but figure up almost double those of last year, according to George A. Halladay, of the Mapledell Greenhouses. Plant trade was not so heavy as cut flowers, but carnations were sold at $1 per dozen; red, $1.50; roses, $1.50 to $2. The weather was the coldest ever known for Christmas, for five days ranging from zero to 28 degrees below.

Amsterdam, N. Y.—O. H. De La Mater, of the Hilltop Greenhouses, is much pleased with the Christmas sales, which increased twenty-five per cent compared with 1913 and fifty per cent compared with 1912. He pushed plants because wholesale cut flower prices leave less profit to the small town florist. Poinsettias did not sell well, people seeming to consider them not good keepers. He notes an increase in the sale of baskets filled with holly, ruscus and red berries. Holly wreaths do not go so well, but laurel is more in favor.

Terre Haute, Ind.—The Rosery Flower Shop says: "We used printers' ink freely, had a big assortment of cut flowers and plants and did a phenomenal business for a store only ten weeks old. Fancy basket work and corsage bouquets were our leaders." This is the retail branch of the Terre Haute Rose & Carnation Co., which has 70,000 feet of glass. General business conditions have been decidedly unsatisfactory all through the autumn, but C. J. Houck, the manager, says the flower business averages better than other lines.

TRADE REPORTS ARE GOOD

Vicksburg, Mich.—Mrs. E. J. Reed reports that the Christmas business was the most successful of the three since she opened the Flower Shop.

Kansas City, Mo.—Joseph Austin reports trade as quiet from Thanksgiving to December 24, when sales broke all records. He notes that plant sales led by a long way and finds cut flowers falling farther behind every year, which he attributes to the plants making the most show for the money.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Capt. Arthur A. Underwood, who last August purchased the Swayger Greenhouses, says the records show fifty per cent increase in Christmas sales; sixty per cent compared with 1912. He pushed roses because they give greater satisfaction to his trade and better returns for the seller. He believes it pays to push the best at all times, including Christmas.

Allentown, Pa.—John F. Horn & Bro. estimate the Christmas trade as short of 1913 but equal to 1912. They pushed blooming plants because they were fine and sold as many as ever. Azaleas were specially well liked. They comment: "We grow about the same quantity each year. There is always something that sells out first every year, but if you add to that line next season you seldom sell everything clean."

Bloomington, Ill.—A. Washburn & Sons say Christmas sales were a little ahead of last year, carnations being the leader because pushed on account of a big cut in their own greenhouses. "Emphasis," they say, "might be laid on the necessity for making careful advance preparations for the rush; we try to do this, but usually find some things left undone that add materially to the night work that comes at the last. Business in all lines has been rather quiet this fall, but the flower business has been fully up to others."

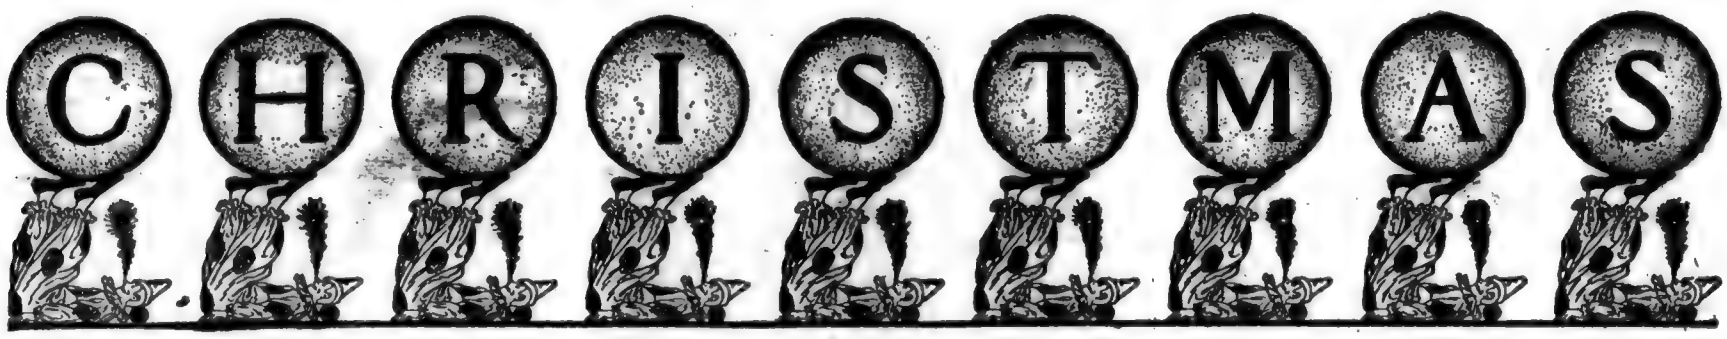
Springfield, Mass.—Everyone reports a fine Christmas trade, as many of the better class of spenders bought plants and floral gifts instead of jewelry and other expensive articles. Business in other lines has been dull for several months, the florists' trade being better than in many lines, and Robinson the Florist thinks it helped Christmas sales, which were better than last year and better than two years ago. Baskets and hampers were pushed and sold well until the larger sizes were reached. Robinson had success with a large batch of Proserpine tulips, French Golden Spur narcissi and Campernelles. Many of the Petrick azaleas shed a large part of their foliage. Apparently novelty is a great help on the holiday sales.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—All the florists here had a merry Christmas, according to H. F. F. Thorup, who says they all made deliveries with smiling faces in spite of the cold. Roses were in good supply, but carnations were scarce and commanded high prices. Plants of all kinds sold fast.

Racine, Wis.—The Racine Floral Co. says the Christmas trade was the best ever known, both blooming plants and cut flowers selling well, but notes a special increase in the sale of baskets and artificial stock, boxwood, statice, red berries, etc. A nice business was done on fern dishes in which sprays of red berries were mixed.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—R. P. Atwell is well satisfied: Christmas sales increased twenty-five per cent, fifty per cent as compared with 1912. He pushed plants from his greenhouses, together with his poinsettias and carnations grown on the place, but cut down on roses, which he has to buy. He says: "It certainly does not help the trade in small towns to quote prices based on the prices in wholesale centers; we small growers simply have to be content to sell what we have on our places."

Ashtabula, O.—The Tong & Weeks Floral Co. reports: "Supply this season has been far ahead of the demand and low prices have prevailed. This had a tendency toward the lowering of Christmas prices to move the stock. We sold as much stock as usual, but the prices were not so good. We pushed both plants and cut flowers, but kept away from the artificial stuff as much as possible, due not only to the fact that we had plenty of plants and cut flowers, but also that we do not like artificial florists. Not only flowering plants, but ferns seemed stronger in demand this year than cut stock. The lesson of the Christmas trade is that florists should learn to advertise."



Lima, O.—Eggert N. Zetlitz says business the three days before Christmas was better than expected, especially when weather conditions are considered. He pushed blooming plants and made up baskets and sold more azaleas, Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens and primroses than ever before. Cut flowers received less attention because of predicted high prices. Sales totaled about the same as last year and better than two years ago. He comments: "I believe a big business can be worked up on cheaper plants and flower baskets, articles running from $1 to $3. If customers have to pay more, the majority prefer to buy more substantial articles." There has not been much social work here this season, but funeral work has kept florists busier than their neighbors.

New Castle, Pa.—Fischer & McGrath say the early outlook was not bright, but there was a tremendous rush the last two days and everything cleaned up, making a Christmas increase of fifteen per cent. They pushed wreaths, baskets and boxes of artificial and preserved stock on account of the better profit than could be made from cut flowers at the anticipated prices.

Evansville, Ind.—The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. says the florists' trade this autumn has been better than the general business condition and notes that quite a few people bought plants this year who usually buy more expensive merchandise. They pushed plants, plant baskets and carnations because they had plenty without buying. Plants and baskets are gaining in popularity, violets losing. They comment that the majority of customers do not like the advance in cut flowers, but that some insist on having them.

Coffeyville, Kan.—From the Forest Park Floral Co.: "We wish to state that, as far as we were concerned, business showed an even fifty per cent increase over last year. Plants, such as cyclamens, poinsettias made up with other plants, azaleas and Cincinnati, took the lead. Our trade in baskets both of flowers and plants was much beyond any former demand. The beauty of the whole thing is that cash was much in evidence. With wheat at $1.10 and an enormous harvest behind it, everybody seemed to have money and to be willing to pay for good stock. We noticed a decided dropping off this Christmas in telegraph orders, both in and out. We trust and hope that the business over the country was as good as with us."

Bryan, O.—This comes from the Wonsetler Greenhouse: "Our Christmas business totals a trifle less than last year. The weather was unfavorable up to December 24, when it moderated. We had a fine lot of plants, which sold out clean at fair prices, with a heavy call for cyclamens, azaleas and primroses. Poinsettias did not sell well. It seems people know how unreliable they are and, after buying them once, will not have them again. Giganteums sold well, as did carnations, of which we had a heavy crop, especially of Beacon, which is so prolific with us as to make red carnations cheap. There was a heavy call for roses of all colors, of which we did not have any too many. In Christmas greens, boxwood was an easy winner. Owing to the poor condition of holly, it was a poor seller and will soon be a thing of the past in our market. Boxwood wreaths sold on sight. Moss wreaths sold well for cemetery purposes. Ruscus does not sell so well as formerly."

AHEAD OF EXPECTATIONS

Lincoln, Neb.—C. H. Frey says he was obliged to refuse large wholesale orders for cyclamens and other blooming plants and that the retail trade cleaned up everything he had left, making it the best Christmas he ever has had. He is enthusiastic about it.

Belleville, Ill.—Adolph G. Fehr says the use of flowers is on the increase and Christmas sales were better this year in all lines. He estimates the increase at twenty per cent. He pushed cut flowers, especially carnations and roses, but noted an increase in the popularity of cyclamens, primulas and ferns. He thinks the flower business is about to experience the greatest boom in many years. E. W. Guy reports an excellent Christmas. H. Emunds is still cutting good chrysanthemums.

Marinette, Wis.—George Vatter says business in all lines has been as good as ever and the flower business this season the best yet. Christmas sales were ten per cent ahead of last year, but made up of moderate-priced plant sales. The wealthier people did not buy as much as usual. He pushed plants and baskets, as cut flowers at Christmas are too high-priced for his trade. Medium-priced flowers also sold well. Zero to 10 degrees below made delivery difficult.

Great Falls, Mont.—Despite the business depression so prevalent in table talk, the Electric City Conservatory reports a forty-five per cent increase over the previous year. Stock was excellent, but the supply was on the short side. Early Christmas morning everything was cleaned up. Baskets of poinsettias, crotons, pandanus and begonias were a ready seller. Roses were excellent, but Beauties scarce and of poor quality. Cut poinsettias and mums were good and took excellently. In the words of the proprietors, "Business was far beyond our expectations and was the best in the history of the company."

Vincennes, Ind.—"Business in general has been rather quiet this fall," says Paul C. Schultz, "but Christmas trade was excellent, much better than was expected. It was ten per cent better than in 1913 and thirty per cent ahead of two years ago. A big supply of azaleas, poinsettias, cyclamens, hyacinths and narcissi cleaned up to the last plant. There was a special call for roses, including Beauties, Shawyer, Richmond and Killarney; the local cut was light because of dark weather, but good stock was obtained from Evansville and Newcastle. Carnations were in fine crop and brought good prices. Sweet peas dropped their buds because of the bad weather and represent a loss of sales."

Litchfield, Ill.—R. A. McPheron says the holiday business was better than ever before. He noted an increased call for both roses and poinsettias. The usual Christmas prices were obtained without difficulty.

Princeton, Ill.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. reports an excellent Christmas trade, both wholesale and retail. They say: "Our customers forgot the war and got busy buying roses and carnations."

Canal Dover, O.—Factories running one-third to one-half time, everyone complaining of hard times, yet our 1914 Christmas business ran away ahead of 1913 in local retail sales, says C. Betscher. Carnations had first call; roses in good demand; pot plants in increasing demand; boxwood and holly wreaths freely called for. "Now for the largest St. Valentine's day, Easter, Mothers' day and May in our history," he adds.

Elmira, N. Y.—From Leavitt: "The flower business this season has been better than trade in other lines. The general business situation did not seem to affect florists' Christmas sales, which were about the same as last year. Nothing was specially pushed, but a large supply of baskets of plants and of baskets of artificial stock was sold out clean. More azaleas could have been sold. There does not seem to be much demand for pink begonias."

Dubuque, Ia.—W. A. Harkett thinks the Christmas trade was affected adversely more by the zero weather than by any other condition. Sales ran ahead of anticipations. Cash trade fell off about ten per cent, but charge sales were practically the same as last year. The business was in every respect about the same as usual. The grocers, butchers and others have gone into holly and greens to such an extent that florists cannot handle them except by putting them up in some better way to command higher prices.

Hamilton, O.—Karl W. Heiser, of the Heiser Nursery & Floral Co., says: "As our retail flower store was opened only a few days before Christmas, we have no opportunity to make comparisons of business with other years. About all we can say is that the business that came to us was away beyond our expectations. In a town with a large part of its working population idle, and a town not especially rated as a flower-buying community, one would not expect too much in flower purchasing ability. But it seems that among people who have any money at all to spend in gift-giving, the tendency to put their money into flowers and plants rather than into jewelry and other trinkets is growing rapidly."

Newark, N. J.—Christmas trade was good at Begerow's and generally through the city.

Detroit, Mich.—A broken electric light fixture in the window of E. A. Fetters' store, at 114 Library avenue, set fire to the Christmas decorations Monday afternoon, December 21. The fire was checked before a great deal of damage was done.

Alton, Ill.—The Alton Floral Co. says trade in other lines has been slow this season, but florists have done about as much as ever and the general condition did not seem to affect the Christmas trade unfavorably, as there was an increase of twenty-five per cent, about equally divided between cut flowers and plants.

Pontiac, Ill.—From J. W. Miller & Son: "We wish to report a grand trade this Christmas, far exceeding our expectations. The sale on blooming plants was the leading feature. We cleaned up everything that was in salable condition. Our carnations were exceptionally fine this season and our only shortage was on good roses."

McKeesport, Pa.—J. H. Orth says the Christmas trade was affected by the slack season in the mills, being thirty per cent less than a year ago and only half what it was in 1912. Baskets of boxwood, ruscus, etc., and plants were pushed, as it looked as though cut flowers would cost too much to sell well. Mr. Orth says the showing made tells him to prepare a larger stock of good, medium priced plants for next year. J. M. Johnston had fine azaleas and did an excellent trade in his three stores. There was an unusual run of funeral work during Christmas week. It was unusually cold, but the greenhouse men succeeded in selling practically all their plants.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—G. A. Thomas says the principal lesson learned from the Christmas trade is the value of early preparation, backed up by strong advertising. He used a good space in the local newspapers and had some reprints struck off from the ad to enclose with every parcel and envelope that went out for some time before Christmas. As a result the Christmas trade was the best ever, a full third better than last year and fifty per cent better than in 1912. The people took to plants, although cut flowers headed his price list. Quite a number of customers bought five or six plants each. Cyclamens, poinsettias and azaleas were the favorites, in the order named. He cleaned up on carnations, but did not do so well on roses, which he attributes to the difference in price. Novelty wreaths and baskets of prepared stock met with increased favor.

YELLOWS ON SWEET PEAS.

I am sending you under separate cover two sweet pea plants, one of my first planting and one of my last planting, to see whether you can inform me as to what ails them. The variety is Rose Queen. They are planted in solid, raised beds and have about eighteen inches of soil. The soil is a loose, black loam, with rotted sod from an old pasture, enriched with about one part of stable manure, mostly cow manure, to three parts of soil. No chemicals were used. I have always had excellent peas on this soil until now. They were kept in a temperature of 42 to 45 degrees until commencing to bloom, when I raised the heat to 52 or 53 degrees at night.

These peas came on and looked well until they were three or four feet high, when a few seemed to be blighted. The trouble would first appear in the tip of the main stalk; then the growth would almost stop and what little growth there was would be knotty and twisty; the leaves would get spotted and curled and quite brittle and hard. Then the disease would appear on the side shoots. Though this disease at first was only upon an occasional stalk, it is now appearing upon almost all the rest. The plants that are not affected are about eight to ten feet high, but have produced few blooms. The small plants appear to be affected the same way.

Can you tell me what is wrong? Is it due to the soil or the treatment? Is there anything I can do to overcome it and force the plants to blooms rather than to stalks, or would you advise pulling them out and replanting?

P. E. M.

These sweet peas are affected by bacteria generally known as the yellows. These bacteria develop mostly on plants which are grown in old soil, infested with mite, thrips and green fly, which carry the disease all over the bed in a short time. It chiefly affects early planting, as those insects multiply so much faster in warm weather. I would advise P. E. M. to spray his plants once a week with a good solution of nicotine.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

I am pleased to report that the preliminary schedule is in the hands of the printer and will be ready for members and applicants the first week in January.

The Newport Horticultural Society is offering prizes to the value of $200; the Newport Garden Association, $100, and the Newport Garden Club, $100. W. B. Scott & Co. and the Broadway Hardware Co., of Newport, are offering prizes for children. The following special prizes have been received by the American Sweet Pea Society and will be added to the preliminary schedule:

Peter Henderson & Co. prizes: For the best twelve vases, twenty sprays to a vase, of twelve distinct varieties of Spencer sweet peas; first prize, $25; second prize, $15; third prize, $10.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co. prizes: For the finest twelve vases sweet peas in twelve distinct varieties correctly named; first prize, silver cup, value $25, and $10 cash; second prize, $10; third prize, $5.

Arthur T. Boddington prizes: Challenge silver cup, value $50, for a collection of sweet peas, twenty-five varieties, not less than twenty-five stems to a vase, to be shown with sweet pea foliage only; to be won twice by the same exhibitor. There will also be awarded to the winner of this cup (each time won) a cash prize of $25. Second prize, $15; third prize, $10.

Stumpp & Walter Co. prizes: For the best six vase of sweet peas, six distinct Spencer varieties, twenty sprays to a vase; first prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $5.

C. C. Morse & Co. prize: A silver cup, value $25, for the finest display of sweet peas; open to the seed trade only.

Henry F. Michell Co. prizes: The Michell Seed House silver medal for six vases, twenty-five sprays each, six distinct Spencer varieties sweet peas. The Michell Seed House bronze medal for best twenty-five blooms Illuminator sweet peas. The Michell Seed House silver medal for best vase Spencer varieties mixed, not less than 100 blooms sweet peas. The Michell Seed House bronze medal for the best vase mixed sweet peas not less than 100 blooms. The Michell Seed house bronze medal for the best two vases of twelve sprays each, white, and twelve sprays pink sweet peas.

Thomas J. Grey Co. prize: A cut glass bowl.

Burnett Bros. prize: For the best vase of white sweet peas, Spencer variety, fifty sprays to the vase; gypsophila or foliage other than sweet pea can be used; first prize, $10.

Weeber & Don prize: For the best vase of 100 sprays mixed sweet peas, arranged for effect; gypsophila and foliage other than sweet pea can be used; first prize, $5.

Mount Desert Nurseries prizes: For the best vase of sweet peas, one variety, any color, twenty-five stems arranged for effect, any other foliage than sweet pea may be used; first prize, $7.50; second prize, $2.50.

Joseph Breck & Sons prize: $10.

John Lewis Childs prizes: For the best vase of mixed sweet peas, not more than twenty-five sprays; first prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2.

Hitchings & Co. prize: A silver cup.

Henry A. Dreer prizes: For best vase of Spencer sweet pea, Royal Purple; first prize, $5; second prize, $2.50. For best vase of Spencer sweet pea, Margaret Madison Improved: First prize, $5; second prize, $2.50.

Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. prizes: First prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2.

Sutton & Sons prize: A silver cup, value $25, for the best table of sweet peas, covering twelve square feet and not to exceed three feet in height; gypsophila and foliage other than sweet pea may be used.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. prizes: For the best Spencer sweet peas, six distinct varieties, one vase of twenty sprays of each variety, open to private growers only; first prize, $12; second prize, $8.00.

F. R. Pierson Co. prize: A silver cup.

In addition to the above prizes, the American Sweet Pea Society will offer the usual cash prizes and gold, silver and bronze medals. There is still opportunity for the trade and others to offer prizes at this time. Meanwhile, would extend thanks to those who have so generously contributed prizes to what we hope will be the most successful exhibition ever held by our society.

SUCKER GROWTH WEAKENS STEM.

We are sending you by parcel post a box containing three chrysanthemum stock plants, numbered 1, 2 and 3. Please look these plants over and tell us if any of them is diseased. If so, report on each plant separately.

A. M. & C.

The stems of all three specimens indicate that the plants were allowed to become hard and woody in the early stages of their growth; consequently, the stool of each plant spent its greatest energy in making sucker growth at the expense of the main stem and plant.

The roots of specimen 1 were covered with root-galls caused by eelworms. These worms are generally quite troublesome in soil that has been used before for other plants; also when manure is used liberally through the soil or as a mulch. A change of soil and manure is the best remedy. A sprinkling of lime on the surface of the bed will destroy a large number of the worms. I would advise shaking the soil from the roots of these stock plants and placing the plants in some fresh soil that has not been used in the greenhouse before.

Specimen 2 has the same trouble as specimen 1, only a great deal worse.

I do not find anything wrong with the roots of specimen 3. The trouble here seems to be that the suckers have been allowed to remain on the stool too long, so that they drew all the strength away from the main stem and plant.

WHITE SPORT OF DR. ENGUEHARD.

In the December 10 issue of The Review, W. E. P. asks for the names of a yellow and white chrysanthemum which are the nearest in shape, style, size and time of blooming to Enguehard.

There is a white sport of Dr. Enguehard the characteristics of which are identical with those of Enguehard, except that the blooms have better substance and are a trifle fuller in the center, the stems are heavier and the foliage is heavier and darker.

Fayetteville, Ark.—Since the consolidation of the Rose Terrace Greenhouses, of which Adams & Son were the owners, with the Southwestern Seed Co., about three months ago, the business has been steadily growing. The holidays bring a good trade in pot plants, cut flowers and decorative materials.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

THIS is a great day for the Society of American Florists. It marks the realization of the long cherished idea of affiliation. Five affiliated societies now become active in the management of the S. A. F. through the seating of their presidents on the board of directors in pursuance of the change in the constitution which provides a directorship for the president of every affiliated society that has 100 paid up members on the S. A. F. membership roll. The societies which thus far have asked for directorships under this provision are the American Rose Society, the American Carnation Society, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, the New York Florists' Club and the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

The year of the S. A. F. ends December 31, and New Year's day Patrick Welch, elected to the presidency at the Boston convention last August, assumes the duties of the office. Daniel MacRorie, of San Francisco, the next convention city, becomes vice-president. Secretary John Young and Treasurer W. F. Kasting were reelected for 1915, so that there is no change in these offices.

At the same time the terms of C. H. Totty and John A. Evans expire, they having served on the board of directors for three years. In addition to the officers for 1915, and the president for 1914, the board of directors now consists of A. F. Poehlmann, Thomas Roland, J. J. Hess, J. A. Peterson, and the two new appointees, Wm. R. Nicholson and Robert C. Kerr, together with W. R. Pierson, S. J. Goddard, Irwin Bertermann, H. A. Bunyard and George Burton, who obtain their seats by virtue of the action on affiliation taken at the Boston convention.

OFFICERS FOR 1915.

Salutatory.

In assuming the duties of the presidency Mr. Welch addresses the officers and members of the S. A. F. as follows:

New Year's greetings from the president of the Society of American Florists:

One of the privileges, as well as one of the pleasant duties of the president of the Society of American Florists, is to wish each and every member of the society and his family a happy and prosperous New Year.

While we are just now emerging from a period of dullness, I believe that, in the near future, times will change much for the better. Already we see grain shipments becoming extensive, shoe and textile manufacturers report increasing business, the automobile and steel industries are showing immense improvement and, best of all, the banks of the country are giving more confidence for the near future.

Thomas Reed once said that "the alternation of good and bad times antedates the pyramids," and that certainly ought to give us courage, as we know it is extremely true. Commercial horticulturists, together with the other great business interests of our country, have shared the losses for the past season and, although we are apt to think that our particular business has been hit the hardest, we know that this is not the case. But, however that may be, the dominant note of the commercial horticulturists throughout the United States must be that good times are coming and soon will be here.

Once more, I wish to express to you my gratitude and appreciation for the honors our society has conferred upon me. I know that, with these honors, I have increased responsibility and I intend, with your support, to shoulder this responsibility and to carry it successfully throughout the year.

At the beginning of the year, when we all make good resolutions, I want one of the resolutions of this society to be that it will work to increase our membership. Of the 10,000 firms now engaged in floriculture and horticulture in the United States, but twenty per cent of them are members of our society. This ought not to be, and must be corrected. We must impress upon the minds of those who are not members that, while there are many local clubs and other national organizations, organized for the advancement of floriculture and horticulture, still we are the most important society in America, whose aim and purpose have accomplished much in the past and, with their coöperations, will extend the field of their operations materially in the future.

I hope that the gentlemen appointed to the board of directors and permanent committees with our state vice-presidents will prove themselves leaders in the new crusade to increase our membership. We are now living in an age of cooperation, and what was formerly done by individuals is now done by organizations. Consequently, the members of our society in each state must work with the vice-presidents to insure an increased membership.

Patrick Welch. President

Wm. R. Nicholson.

(Appointed a Director of the Society of American Florists by President Welch.)

An increased membership will have its influence at Washington, with Congress, and at the capitols of the different states, with the legislators both at home and in the national capital.

An increased membership will better enable us to continue our campaign of education, at our national flower shows and at our annual convention garden. Many of our young men, traveling through the country, were some sufficient stimulant offered, could assist in increasing the membership and I am willing to offer the stimulant—a watch and chain to cost not less than $150, the funds for which I will raise among my friends, to be awarded to the member who will send to the secretary, John Young, 33 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city, the largest number of names of new members between January 1 and July 31, 1915.

Again wishing you all the joys and blessings of the season, I remain, yours sincerely,

Patrick Welch, President.

President's Appointments.

Secretary Young announces the following appointments by President Welch:

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

William R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.
Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.

Additional members of the board of directors, complying with the amendments adopted at the Boston convention, to serve one year:

Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., president American Rose Society.
S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., president American Carnation Society.
Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind., president Florists' Telegraph Delivery.
Harry A. Bunyard, New York, president New York Florists' Club.
George Burton, Philadelphia, president Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

William P. Craig, Philadelphia, reappointed for the full term of six years.

WASHINGTON REPRESENTATIVE.

William F. Gude, Washington, D. C.

TARIFF AND LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE.

William F. Gude, chairman, Washington, D. C.
James McHutchison, New York City.
Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.
R. M. Ward, New York City.
Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.
Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Long Island City, N. Y.

COMMITTEE ON SCHOOL GARDENS.

Benjamin Hammond, chairman, Beacon, N. Y.
Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.
Gust. X. Amrhyn, New Haven, Conn.
Michael Barker, Chicago, Ill.
Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.

BOTANIST.

Prof. J. F. Cowell, Buffalo Botanic Gardens, Buffalo, N. Y.

PATHOLOGIST.

Prof. H. H. Whetzel, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

ENTOMOLOGIST.

Prof. W. E. Britton, state entomologist, New Haven, Conn.

CHAIRMAN COMMITTEE ON SPORTS.

C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that F. W. Fletcher, Auburndale, Mass., offers for registration the asparagus described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Description: A hybrid seedling, raised in 1911; parentage, Hatcheri x Deflexus scandens. This variety is as free-blooming as A. Hatcheri and the cut sprays are as durable and long-keeping as D. scandens. It is absolutely thornless. Not as heavy in growth as plumosus, but dainty and graceful. Especially valuable for decorative work when in bloom. Name—Asparagus hybridus gracilis.

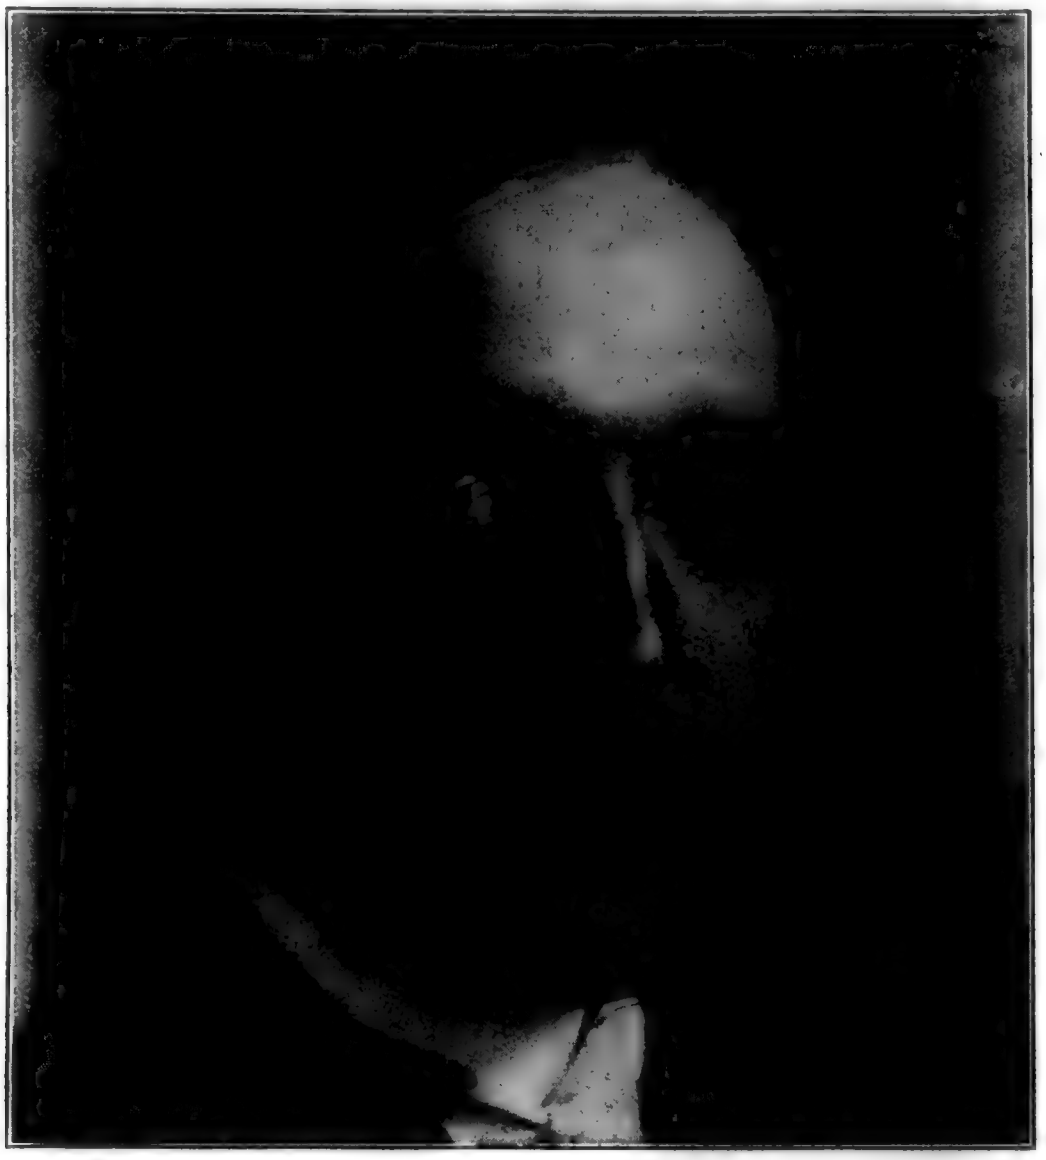
COLD SNAP BRINGS FIRES.

Highmore, S. D.—Max Winnegar's greenhouse was destroyed by fire recently, because aid could not be obtained in time to check the flames.



Catlin, Ill.—The greenhouse owned by Mrs. Floy Terpening was almost destroyed by fire December 23. The blaze started in the boiler room, from an overheated boiler, it is thought, and burned the east half of the house. The rest was so badly damaged that the stock was practically all lost.

Quincy, Ill.—The greenhouse of Herbert Arlt, on Twelfth street, was damaged by fire December 12. A defect in the boiler is given as the cause of the fire. About ten feet of the east end of the house, which is 20x70 feet in size, was destroyed, and twenty-five per cent of the lettuce in the house ruined. The total loss is placed at about $200. There is no insurance.

Nevada, Mo.—The boiler shed and potted plant house of the Nevada Greenhouses were destroyed by fire December 17, causing a loss of $2,000, according to the proprietor, F. R. Roe. The violet house was damaged, so that there will be no blooms this season, although the plants will survive. Special efforts were made to keep up heat in the other houses, containing Christmas blooms, which were not damaged.

PROPAGATING FICUS ELASTICA.

Will you please describe the best way of starting rubber plants? C. W. H.

In propagating the rubber plant, or Ficus elastica, the surest and most common method, at least in this country, is what is known as mossing. Cuttings are also used, especially in Europe, but frequently disappoint American growers by failing to root. Late spring is a good time to propagate by cuttings. The cuttings, usually from six to eight inches long, and with several leaves attached, should be taken from the latest growth and should be cut just below a joint. They may be inserted in small pots of sand and loam, and the pots may then be plunged in a bench which has a bottom heat of about 80 degrees. It is well to fasten the leaves up to a small stake, so as to save room and facilitate watering. After the first watering, the soil should be kept only moderately moist. The cuttings should be well rooted before being shifted.

In propagation by mossing, the tops of young plants can be used, but it is customary to retain large, branching plants as stock plants at establishments where much propagating is done. The minimum temperature should be 60 degrees at night. Nine or ten inches from the tip of the shoot, where the wood is not too green or too hard, a cut about an inch and a half long is made in the wood, from the bark to about halfway through the shoot. Sphagnum moss is inserted to keep the cut open and more moss is wrapped around the stem, so as to envelop it entirely where the cut has been made. If the moss when tied on is as large as a hen's egg, you have enough on. Keep the moss syringed daily. In five or six weeks you will see roots protruding through the moss. Let them get well rooted and then sever from the plant just below the moss, and pot. The young plants should be kept from sun and draft till they take hold of the new soil. This method of propagation is successful at any season of the year.

ENGLISH IVY IN ARIZONA.

Enclosed you will find some leaves and seeds from a plant which I have seen used for floral work, but which is new to me, as I have nothing resembling it in my greenhouses or garden. Please give me the name and describe the habit of the plant. State, also, whether it is hardy here, in central Arizona, and whether it is much used for floral work.

W. N. K.

This plant is the common English ivy. Its botanical name is Hedera Helix. English ivy is a remarkably fine ornamental evergreen climber, as grown in most parts of the southwest. It is extremely tolerant of the winter temperatures there, enduring at least 10 degrees below zero, and is also resistant to the summer temperatures. To be successful, however, it should be planted on the north and east sides of houses, where it receives some protection during the hot summer season, from the sun. It is slow-growing at first, but when once established it makes a rapid growth and is excellent for clinging to walls—brick walls, plastered walls and especially wooden walls. The leaves are an inch or two in diameter and 5-angled. They are thick and leathery, dark green in color and remain on the plant for several years. Occasional varieties have variegated or silvery leaves. The specimen enclosed has roundish or oval leaves, due to the fact that with the portion of the plant in flower the leaves are rounded or oval.

I am pleased to be able to recommend this plant highly as an ornamental evergreen climber for the southwestern climate. J. J. Thornber, Botanist, University of Arizona.

FROM CHICAGO TO KEW.

Those whose memory goes back to the World's Fair year of 1893 may recall the plant of Grammatophyllum speciosum exhibited at Chicago as a part of the display of Sander & Sons, of St. Albans, England. After the fair the plant was sent home and presented to the Royal Gardens, Kew, where it first bloomed in 1901. This year the famous grammatophyllum is bearing only a single spike, about eight feet in length, with fifty blooms. The flowers at the base of the spike are male, these having only four segments and no lip. The color of the petals and sepals is yellow blotched with chocolate-brown.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Christmas has come and gone for another year. At the time of writing it is hard to state just how good a Christmas trade we had, as practically no comparisons have been made. The rush did not commence so early this year, and it was not until Tuesday that good, brisk business was noticed. Stock was good and there was plenty of it. An extra demand for red carnations was keenly felt and fine stock was offered. During the Christmas trade funeral work was heavy and so the white and pink carnations were much sought for. American Beauties were choice and retailed at $5 to $12 per dozen. All other kinds of roses were plentiful and sold readily at holiday figures. Violets, cattleyas and gardenias sold well. Valley is plentiful and moves a little more easily. Easter lilies are plentiful and sell well. The demand for sweet peas is large, but the shipments are small. Paper White narcissi are being used extensively in design work. Some good chrysanthemums are on the market, among them some fine Chadwicks. Forget-me-nots, stevia and snapdragons complete our line of stock. The supply of galax, leucothœ, boxwood and other greens is satisfactory.

Almost all the florists have decorations for New Year's. A large number of weddings, receptions and dances are booked, and it looks as though we may be busy for a few weeks yet with this kind of work. H. J. H.

Batavia, N. Y.—Gustav Noack has torn down two of his old buildings at the range on Bank street and is replacing them with two large modern houses.

Morton Grove, Ill.—The firm of Platz & Sons Co. has been incorporated by Nick Platz, Paul M. Platz and Victor A. Platz, with a capital stock of $31,000. They grow greenhouse vegetables.

Carnations

A GROWER'S NOTES.

[A paper by Charles B. Herr, of Strasburg, Pa., read before a December meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club.]

We plant out young carnation plants from pots in the field as early in May as we can, in rows twenty inches apart and eleven inches apart in the rows, cultivating them with a hand harrow after every rain and keeping the harrow moving in dry weather. Topping in the field cannot be done too carefully. Do not wait until a great number are ready. There may be in the first topping only a few hundred. All season we try to keep the plants down, never allowing them to get too high, as we find the high, "leggy" plants are more liable to be hard-wooded and have dead foliage.

Of course, the high topped plants look larger than they really are because they have fewer side shoots. You all know different varieties must be topped differently, but none should be allowed to get too high.

In preparing the houses for planting, which with us is done the last week of August, we clean out all the soil and give the houses a thorough cleaning, whitewashing the sides of the benches. The bottom boards are taken out and swept clean, then floated in lime water and carried by forks on tracks to dry in the sun. After they are dry, we place as many in a pile as a man can readily carry. Next they are taken back to their places and put in piles of four. In that position they do not warp as they would if spread over the benches. We leave them in piles until we are ready to fill in the soil.

In placing the bottom boards, we allow a small space between each board, using excelsior to cover cracks to keep the manure from falling through. The benches are then ready for the soil. I can say that by treating the bench boards in this way we have been able to use a great many of the same boards ever since I have been in business, which is fourteen years.

Filling the Benches.

We do not sift or screen the soil as we once did, but by handling it over two or three times and watching for clods when loading the barrows, we get it in good shape. In screening the soil, if you are not careful, you will find a great deal of your best soil and manure wasted. I know it was so in our case.

After the benches are filled with soil, we water just enough for planting. Before planting we shade the houses, and after planting 300 or 400 plants we keep watering them over and over again, to be sure the soil is saturated. After that, we only give them a light spraying two or three times a day, depending much on the kind of weather we are having at the time; ever trying to get the soil back to its normal condition, yet never allowing the plants to get dry until they are well established; being careful not to let drafts of air blow over them, for if they are once wilted, it will take some time to get them back to their normal condition again.

We take all the buds off when planting the plants in the houses and, in fact, for some time after they are housed.

Beacon, for one, will start a great many buds soon after housing, with short stems. I must say right here, Beacon truly is a grand carnation, a free bloomer, of fine habit of growth, and carries out to the end of the season with me, which last season was the end of July. And so long as it does that for us, we surely will not drop it.

My argument is that you are only taxing your plants when you allow

My argument is that you are only taxing your plants when you allow them to bloom right after housing, as you are only getting blooms on short stems and receiving little money for them.

S. J. Goddard.

Get your plants in good, healthy condition and well established; then they will be ready for work when the blooms bring you more money. Just as soon as the plants are established we put on the first wire and tie. I really think the carnation loses time if not kept tied up properly, and the less they are handled the better.

New Varieties.

The new varieties we are growing this season are Gorgeous, Matchless and Philadelphia.

Gorgeous with us surely is a wonderful stem maker and of fine habit of growth. It has every promise of being a fine carnation.

Matchless up to the present time has done well. It, too, is a vigorous grower. If there is anything we could criticise, it would be the shortness of its stems.

Philadelphia is a wonderful plant maker and a clean grower. With us, so far, it has been a bit slow, but at present is full of buds.

My experience has been that the new varieties prove themselves so much better the second year that I think we do them an injustice in being too severe in our early criticisms.

For instance, the first year we grew Mrs. C. W. Ward it was quite short in stem and uneven on the benches. In fact, we were not much pleased with it except in regard to the form and color of the blooms. Today its habit of growth and length of stem class it among our best.

In addition to the older varieties, we are growing Supreme, Pink Delight, Benora and White Perfection, which are all doing well. We will drop Perfection another season, because of its tendency to give so many split blooms, and grow Matchless instead. Up to this time we have not cut one split bloom from Matchless, of which we have 1,000 plants.

We will retain Supreme and drop the others, having too many varieties of this color.

A CHECK IN GROWTH.

Under separate cover we are mailing to you a diseased carnation plant. The plants made a good growth at first. Then a discoloring of the tips of the leaves was noticeable, on the Beacon plants only. In the course of about two weeks after this was first noticed, the whole plant dried up. Is there any remedy? E. C. C.

The plant submitted looked as if it had never taken hold of the soil in the benches. There were no young rootlets and there was no more growth, apparently, than when the plants were lifted from the field. We have seen plants that behaved like these. The roots remained inactive, which allowed the foliage gradually to die off until finally there was nothing alive at the top and the roots would decay. There is little to be done with a bed of plants in such a condition at this time of the year. If a carnation plant does not reëstablish itself during the fall, there is little chance for it during the winter, when growth is naturally more sluggish.

Even if your plants do not actually die during the next few months, you will not likely cut much from them until late in the spring, after they have had time to make a new start. If your Beacon plants are not in shape to give you a good cut during the next three months, you would do well to pull them up and use the room for some other crop. It might pay to let the light-colored varieties stand for what they will produce in the spring and early summer. A. F. J. B.

THE ENGLISH CARNATION SHOW.

American Varieties Still Lead.

"Business as usual" is the slogan of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, which is the British equivalent of the American Carnation Society, and the seventeenth annual exhibition was held in London the first week in December as though nothing of consequence were happening across the channel.

The same as in recent years, American varieties constituted the greater part of the show. W. Wells & Co., who are the British agents for F. Dorner & Sons Co., were awarded the medal offered for the best vase on exhibition, having entered Pink Sensation. The same exhibitor was first for scarlet, showing Champion, Scarlet Glow being second, both Dorner varieties. Wells was first on cerise pink with Good Cheer, still another Dorner seedling.

The cup offered by the American Carnation Society for three American novelties was won by C. Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, who showed Peerless Pink, Gorgeous and Enchantress Supreme. Mr. Engelmann, by the way, is a German, although a naturalized British citizen, and was not present in person.

In the class for "pale pink" an English seedling won, Wells & Co. being second with Laura Weber, Enchantress scoring third. White Wonder was the best white, an English variety coming in second and White Enchantress third.

The silver cup offered by Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., for best vase of Princess Dagmar, brought out only one entry, of quality scarcely in keeping with the value of the trophy.

Many Americans enjoy the acquaintance of W. E. Wallace, of Eaton Bray, who visited the United States the year of the national show in Boston, and will be pleased to know he maintains his position at the head of the carnation growers in England. He was awarded a gold medal for his group. Other medals also were awarded to Mr. Engelmann, Allwood Bros., Stuart Low & Co. and A. F. Dutton, American varieties predominating in each exhibit.

At the general meeting of the society all the officers were reëlected. J. S. Brunton, editor of the Horticultural Trade Journal, is chairman.

Reading, Mich.—W. M. Cahow has just completed an addition 12x100 feet to his greenhouses.

Andalusia, Pa.—Wm. Keaton has two houses of carnations, full of bud and bloom, of exceedingly fine quality.

Sharon, Pa.—M. A. Hall & Bro. have opened a store in the Orpheum theater building, on Shenango street. They started just in time to get their share of the Christmas trade.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Liebl & Hessel, who now have their two large greenhouses filled with vegetables and bedding plants, intend to start growing cut flowers in the spring for retail trade.

Coldwater, Mich.—Weage & Tyler, who are general contractors, have for some time been growing iris, phlox, peonies, etc., but have no glass except a few thousand feet of hotbeds and coldframes. Recently they purchased a tract of 100 acres for the extension of the business and will issue a catalogue in the spring.

Torresdale, Pa.—Geo. B. Morrell last year installed a Lord & Burnham Co. hot water boiler No. 418, and this year has built a greenhouse 12x36, of pipe-frame construction, with concrete walls. He has started work on another house of the same size. Mr. Morrell does all of his construction work, plumbing and heating installation. His present houses are full of bedding and vegetable plants, which he sells both wholesale and retail.

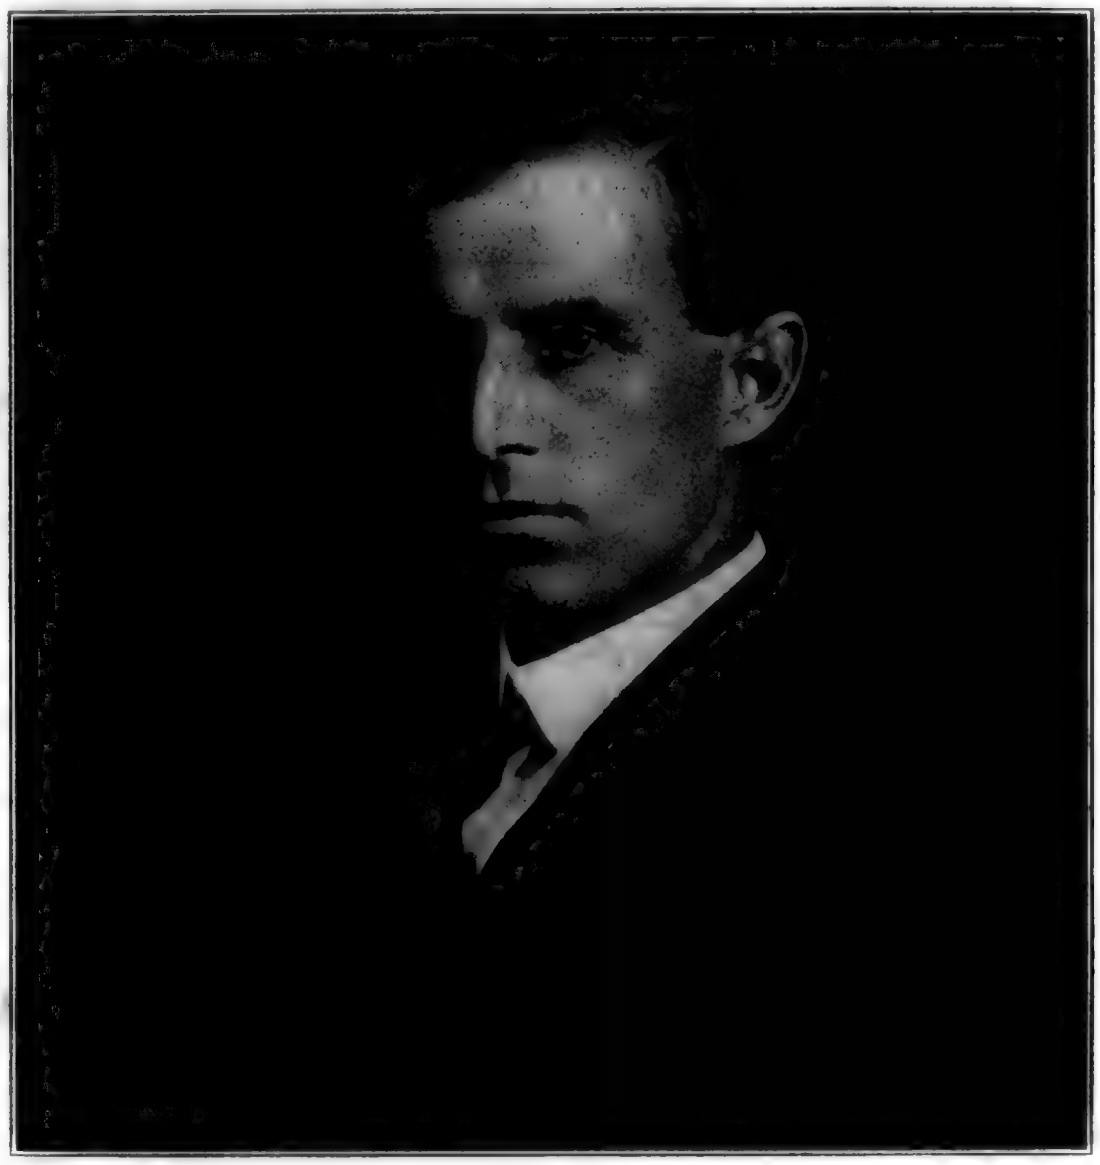
Greenfield, Mass.—P. E. Burtt is moving from his present quarters, on Davis street, to the Sheldon building, on Main street.

Minneapolis, Minn.—A $50,000 apartment building is going up at 821-3 First avenue, south, on the property occupied for many years by the greenhouses of the L. S. Donaldson Co.

Ithaca, N. Y.—George M. Cosh has opened a shop at the corner of State and Aurora streets, in the store formerly occupied by the office of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

Dallas, Tex.—At the last meeting of the Dallas Florists' Club, December 17, the members decided to begin the new year by furnishing the newspapers with articles on the care and growth of plants and shrubbery as their part in the work for the city beautiful. It is gradually coming to be recognized by florists that publicity is likewise an important part in the work for profits plentiful.

Fremont, Neb.—C. H. Green has purchased the J. Rex Henry building, at 414 North Main street. The building is a 2-story brick structure, 22x80 feet, and occupies a lot 22x132 feet. The price paid was $16,000. The necessity for his getting out of the Keene Sampter building, says Mr. Green, led to the purchase of the property. He takes possession January 1, but it is not known when he will move his store to the new quarters, as that depends upon what terms he makes with the present occupants.



BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

A cut of between 17,000 and 18,000 Richmond roses, mostly No. 1 stock, was the brightest feature in the output of flowers during the week just closed. Beauties were of good quality, but rarer than ever, despite the heavy demand. All other roses were of much better quality than last year, and everything met with a ready market. Although orchids arrived in large numbers, there were not sufficient to satisfy the demand, many pressing inquiries coming from the large cities between here and New York at the last moment. Carnation orders could only be one-third filled, but the volume of trade generally was quite equal to that of last year. Unfortunately, the country was hardly in a position to stand the usual Christmas prices, and bearing this fact in mind, the growers decided to lower the price of stock twenty-five per cent, which concession appears to have met with the appreciation of all connected with the flower trade. There were several losses to the retail trade through stock being frozen in delivery, Christmas day being ushered in with a temperature ranging from 10 to 40 below zero throughout the Province of Ontario. Most of the florists, not knowing how the public would approach the festive season, were late in ordering their stock, and almost all of them decided to stock up in supplies at the last moment.

Christmas Trade.

The weather Christmas day, cold and clear, with plenty of snow on the ground, was just the kind to make people shop. And they did. Although the money taken in was about the same as last year, it represented much larger sales. Instead of asking for what they wanted, regardless of price, people wanted to know what they could get for 50 cents, $1, or some other limited sum. Flowers of all kinds were plentiful, even on Christmas day, a thing hitherto unheard of. Roses were the leaders, at $2 to $4, and carnations, at $1, next. Plants were the fashion, particularly flowering sorts. Azaleas and poinsettias were the leaders. People had not money enough to buy basket and hamper arrangements of plants, but artificial stuff, such as immortelles, ruscus, Diana grass, etc., sold to twice the value of last year's sales. Everybody seemed satisfied with business, but there was a whisper, "It might have been better."

Various Notes.

Wreaths were to be seen in the windows everywhere, the work of the A. J. Brown Seed Co. Boys solicited in their respective neighborhoods, buying of the A. J. Brown Seed Co. at $2.25 per dozen and selling the wreaths at 25 cents apiece.

On its last trip for the day, about 3 o'clock Christmas afternoon, the automobile delivery wagon of the Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. met with an accident. In an attempt to stop at a car-line crossing, it skidded onto the tracks. The car rammed the automobile and shoved it forty feet before stopping. William Crabb, who was driving, escaped unhurt, but his helper, Kenneth Robinson, was cut and bruised about the head. G. F. C.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

It seems that Christmas business was much better than it was expected to be. The demand for plants of all kinds was greater than ever. Made up plant baskets and pans sold extra well at $2.50 and up. Roses were hardly equal to the demand. Carnations were plentiful. Violets were scarce. Everything considered, it was one of the best days the florists ever had. After Christmas came more busy days, also, as considerable funeral work had to be done.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. enjoyed an immense trade. Geo. Blackman says cash receipts were about the same as last year, but that he thought they had considerably more charge accounts. They had between 3,000 and 4,000 roses and could have used about 1,000 more. They had enough carnations, about 5,000. The force at the store included twenty people and beginning Wednesday morning they worked over sixty hours straight. They have several claims against the express companies for non-delivery of shipments.

Julius Niednagel & Sons say all hands worked practically night and day all the week getting things ready for the rush of orders which came to them. The carnation crop was good, the cut being over 3,000. The Killarneys were off crop, but the cut of Richmond and Ward roses was heavy and all were sold. An increased demand was noted for plants of all kinds.

C. L. Niednagel had a good cut of Killarney and Russell, which were sold to good advantage. His Beauty cut was better than expected.

J. C. Elspermann used twenty cases of holly. He says the demand for plants was greater than ever. He had a lot of funeral work, which made all hands hustle.

Royston & Fenton had more retail orders than any time before, due to working more for this trade than for the wholesale end as before.

Miss Nellie Goodge says the demand for everything except holly was fine. She did not have enough roses or carnations.

Karl Zeidler sold all his cut flowers and the demand for plants of all kinds was greater than it was last year.

Austin Wallace was off crop with Killarney.

Louis Fritsch had all he could do.

W. D. Macer got in a large stock of plants in variety, also cut flowers. He was well satisfied with his business, it being his first Christmas.

Wm. Halbrooks had a large cut of carnations and sold out at good prices.

Henry Seymour had his usual good trade. His carnation crop was excellent. E. L. F.

Rockland, Mass.—Joseph W. Richards is closing out his greenhouse business and retiring from the trade.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Other merchants who handle holiday goods say sales of the ordinary baubles were small, but florists never got better prices at this season and they cleaned up well, too. We have seldom seen so many good poinsettias, and they proved to be the most popular of all the plants offered. Azaleas were in better supply than usual and the good reds were especially noticeable. The plants were larger and better flowered than is usual. Bulb stock was scarce. Begonias were in large supply and the demand did not come up to expectations. Ferns sold better than usual. Roses were in large supply and the quality was faultless, which doubtless accounted for the high prices, few wholesaling below $12 per hundred. We understand that there were not enough left to make a decent corsage.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. is planting the new rose, Hoosier Beauty, this season. Their grower, Mr. Johnston, was so pleased with it on his recent trip of inspection that stock was purchased. It is said Hadley has not proven good here. The Joys cut a record crop of Beauties this Christmas.

Geny Bros. handled holly for the first time this season and say sales were so satisfactory they will handle it again next season.

McIntyre's new place proved its worth last week. While their regular customers come out to the old store, many new ones found the new place.

Haury & Sons say their pot plants were especially good and they did a fine business. There were fewer wagons on the streets selling plants this season. Either the small growers who sell in this way failed to have their stock ready, or the cold weather kept them indoors. F. B.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Christmas trade was, in most cases, above expectations. The volume was probably greater than last year, but the high-priced stock moved slowly. Roses had an exceptionally good call; the better grades brought $12 to $15 per hundred, while shorts brought $5 to $10. The market was loaded with carnations, starting out with $8 for red and $6 for pink, and it was hard to move white ones at $2 toward the end. Carnations costing $8 per hundred must be retailed at $2 per dozen, which, I think, is a little stiff, and I think the time will come when the growers will realize this; $1.50 per dozen is enough for good carnations at any time. The trade is gradually drifting into blooming plants more and more each year, and the time seems not far away when there will be an end of the high prices. Cut poinsettias did not move so well as in former years, bringing $12.50 to $20 per hundred. American Beauties did not have a good call; the price started out at $12 per dozen for the best, but dropped to $6 to $9 later, and they were not cleaned up at that. Violets had a fair demand, bringing $15 per thousand for doubles. Paper Whites, Roman hyacinths and stevia had their usual call. There were no sweet peas on the market this year, owing to the recent cloudy weather.

The supply of green goods was more than equal to the demand. There seemed to be a heavy call for holly, but the market was well supplied and there was some left. The supply of Christmas trees was a little short. Roping, garlands, etc., were equal to the demand. Smilax did not have its usual call.

In pot plants, the medium and lower-priced plants sold exceedingly well. The higher-priced ones and made-up baskets did not sell so well as heretofore. There was no end of fine azaleas, poinsettias, begonias, cyclamens and other blooming plants, and the trade in this line was good. Lorraine begonias were plentiful; this plant is becoming a drag on the market, owing to its poor keeping qualities.

Various Notes.

Fred Stolte, of A. Wiegand's Sons Co., and John Chisholm, of Bertermann Bros. Co., were both caught napping last week, cashing checks for apparently good customers. A well dressed young man, seemingly with a little more money than the ordinary person, priced holly blankets; on being informed that they were $5 each, he thought he should have one a little better, and ordered one for $10, giving a check for $20 and getting $10 in change.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. reports a highly satisfactory Christmas trade. This firm had an unusually large stock of blooming plants, most of which were sold.

Clarence Thomas, with the Hill Floral Co., reports the best Christmas trade that this firm has ever had, being far ahead of last year.

Baur & Steinkamp had a fine cut of carnations for Christmas. A. F. J. Baur and family have been spending a few days at Richmond, Ind., with relatives.

Bert Hitz had a large number of first-class azaleas and poinsettias for the wholesale market. H. L. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Victor Groshens, Roslyn, Pa., grows bouvardia on the propagating benches when they are not needed for roses and has found it, taking space for space, as profitable of late as Beauties. The Beauties are coming into their own, now that the opera season has begun. Sunburst and the Killarneys do beautifully here.

William Wunder, Pittsville, Pa., illustrated a paradox when his finest blooms of Carnation Matchless scored the lowest figure on record, 1½ cents, in the week preceding Thanksgiving. The equinox has been passed, and more settled and satisfactory prices prevail. He has a fine lot of poinsettias and berried plants.

W. Edwards, superintendent of the Van Lindley greenhouses, Pomona, N. C., believes that with the addition of the latest house, 24x500 feet, they have one of the largest plants in the south. American Beauty and Richmond roses, among the specialties here, are in prime condition. The extensive nursery is supervised by J. Sykes, although the veteran founder, J. Van Lindley, now past the eightieth milestone, takes much pleasure from the business. A fine block of the graceful Cedrus Deodara was seen. It seems to be in its element in this section of the country.

Diggs & Beadles, Richmond, estimate the last season as being quite satisfactory. Though early crops were not abundant, the truckers obtained good prices, so that the balance showed up well.

T. W. Wood & Sons, Richmond, prophesy that the export trade in grass seed will be tremendous later, turning the tables, as it were.

W. H. May & Son, Alexandria, Va., voice the high opinion of many in the seed trade regarding the seed department of The Review. There being no recognized seed journal, this comes the nearest to it. W. M.

Mainly About People

Richmond, Ind.—A. F. J. Baur, of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, and his family were here for a few days.

Nahant, Mass.—Harold Joy, who has been with Thomas Roland for about a year, has returned to his home at Nashville, Tenn.

Detroit, Mich.—Harold E. Taylor, of Buffalo, a recent addition to "Sullivan's Roses, "has joined the forces of Z. D. Blackistone, at Washington, D. C.

Leetonia, O.—Ralph Wolfgang, who assists his father, Harry Wolfgang, in his business here, was married recently at New Cumberland, W. Va. The bride was Miss Helen Irene Le Chat.

Belmar, N. J.—Lemuel Black, formerly connected with the Allenhurst Greenhouses, at Allenhurst, N. J., has rented the greenhouses of John Allspach, at Eleventh avenue and F street. He will do landscape work, in addition to handling plants and cut flowers.

New Orleans, La.—Max Scheinuk has bought two adjoining lots at Suburban Acres, a newly opened section.

Morton, Ill.—Wm. L. Burns has sold his greenhouses and retired from the business for the present.

Ripon, Wis.—H. L. Clapp is spending the winter at Arcadia, Fla., for a rest, in order to regain his health. He was quite sick last winter. In his absence, Mrs. Clapp is carrying on the business.

Ogden, Utah.—An addition to the list of florists who have lost money by cashing checks for strangers who placed small orders is B. Van der Schuit. A man who had worked the same game so many times that he was already in jail when Mr. Van der Schuit placed his complaint, ordered a fern and jardiniere sent to another address, from which it was returned, and got $12.75 from a $15 check. Mr. Van der Schuit got his fern and jardiniere back, but not the $12.75.

OBITUARY

Matthew J. Leach.

Matthew J. Leach, founder of the firm of M. J. Leach & Sons, Pawtucket, R. I., died at his home, on Newman avenue, Seekonk, Mass., Monday night, December 21, after an illness of several days. He had been a resident of Pawtucket and vicinity for sixty years, and, with his sons, had been engaged in the florists' business at Pawtucket for the last twenty-three years. For eleven years previous to coming to Pawtucket he was located in Seekonk, Mass., where the greenhouses and home of Mr. Leach are at present located.

Mr. Leach was born in Yorktown, N. Y., in March, 1845, the son of Edwin and Martha Leach, and moved to Pawtucket with his parents when a small boy. After receiving his education in the public schools, he engaged in the monument business for a number of years, but later gave this up to enter the florists' business, in which he continued until his death. For the last few years his sons, Edward I. and Herbert A. Leach, were associated with him in the business.

The deceased was a member of Union Lodge No. 10, of Masons; Enterprise Lodge No. 22 and Blackstone Encampment, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Pawtucket Veteran Firemen's Association, all of Pawtucket. He was one of the founders and charter members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island. He was a prominent member of the committee from this club that entertained the Society of American Florists in 1896 during the annual convention at Providence, and was foremost in everything calculated to further the interests of Rhode Island florists.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter and three sons. At his funeral Thursday afternoon, December 24, there were a number of florists from all sections of Rhode Island and eastern Massachusetts. Interment was at Oak Grove cemetery, Pawtucket.

W. H. M.

William Kind.

William Kind, father of Hugo Kind, the nurseryman and grower, of Hammonton, N. J., died December 24, at the age of 75. In 1905 he purchased the tract of forty-seven acres on which his son established the nursery he now carries on.

Frank Landers.

Frank Landers, a member of the firm of Landers Bros., the business of which is now carried on by his brother, Samuel T. Landers, at New Castle, Del., died at his brother's home December 19, after an illness of several months. He was 59 years old. He was a member of several organizations of St. Peter's R. C. Church. The funeral took place December 22, with requiem mass in St. Peter's church. Interment was in the churchyard.

Hiram S. Chandler.

Hiram S. Chandler, for several years in the florists' business at Tewksbury, Mass., died suddenly from a shock December 23, after retiring for the night. Two sons were associated with Mr. Chandler in the business, and violets, sweet peas and chrysanthemums were the specialties grown. The deceased was 56 years of age, and the esteem in which he was held by his townspeople and members of the trade was attested by the large gathering at the funeral services December 26. There was a beautiful display of floral souvenirs. Mr. Chandler was a stall holder at the Boston Flower Exchange.

W. N. C.

Mrs. Mary A. Mack.

Mrs. Mary A. Mack, wife of John Mack, for many years in business at Beverly, Mass., died suddenly December 21 at her home on Rantoul street. She leaves, besides her husband, one brother, James Goggin, of Peabody, Mass., and two sisters, Mrs. Michael Connolly, of Peabody, Mass., and Mrs. Margaret Lynch, of Salem, Mass.

Thomas J. O'Dea.

Thomas J. O'Dea was found dead Christmas morning near the entrance to one of his greenhouses, at 203 Ely avenue, Long Island City, N. Y. The physician who examined him said he was attacked by heart disease and died of exposure to the cold. Mr. O'Dea was 69 years of age, and leaves a family.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS

Brussels, Belgium.—All flowers grown in this vicinity are required to be sold here in the capital, but the prices are such that many florists do not take the trouble to send their stock to market.

Ghent, Belgium.—With no mails here, most of the growers in the district who have foreign connections have established postal addresses at Sas Van Ghent, Holland, a messenger calling for the mail periodically.

London, England.—One of the chief difficulties the trade is encountering is delays in transportation. Both domestic and export shipments are delayed, the latter suffering perhaps less than the stock less carefully prepared.

Trier, Germany—In a letter to Myer Heller, Newcastle, Ind., Peter Lambert says: "I am not in the army. We have plenty of soldiers. There are still millions of young men and those 40 to 45 years old, who are not yet called. I think we have now about seven and one-quarter millions of armed soldiers, and our friends, the Austrians, have four and one-half millions, making together about twelve millions. When necessary we could send five millions more against our enemies. We are quite busy in our trade and manufacturing. In all towns you cannot see that there is a terrible war on the other side of our frontiers. We make our shipments to your country through Rotterdam, Holland."

Ghent, Belgium.—Although on the edge of the battlefield, conditions here have improved of late. Of first importance is the opening of transportation; coal is available, although it costs twice as much as ever before. The German army has not done much damage to greenhouses or nurseries, but labor has been scarce. However, where stock has been housed it now can be kept clear of frost. Arthur De Smet, president of the trade syndicate, made representations to the German military authorities which resulted in the resumption of exports via Holland, but the quantity of stock which has gone has not been large. Great quantities of stock, especially azaleas, remain on hand and the year's sales do not in any way compare with peaceful seasons.

Ypres, Belgium.—V. Bouckenooghe, whose greenhouses and nursery were at length destroyed by shellfire, has taken refuge, with his family, at Burnley, England.

Paris, France.—The French government has decided to allow a train to be made up daily to carry flowers from the south of France, but because military trains have right of way the running time is doubled. It therefore takes three days for the outdoor flowers of the Riviera to reach Paris, and four days to reach London.

Ollioules, France.—A good many of the Italians who constituted the labor in the French bulb fields have left for Italy and planting has not been as good as usual. So far as prices for 1915 crop are concerned, we do not know anything about it, but for all we can see they will be about the same as last year, if deliveries can be made. A. Bernard, Fils, is in the service as a chemist in the military hospital at Marseilles.

Rotterdam, Holland.—A report from the bulb district, dated December 4, says: "Hyacinths will be cheaper in all grades next season, the demand having been less than usual, in consequence of the European war, so that we had to plant our surplus stocks. As to tulips, we expect the better class varieties, as Couronne d'Or, Vuurbaak, Tea Rose, Lucretia, Boule de Neige, Couleur Cardinal, Le Matelas, Prince of Austria, Proserpine, Rose Luisante and a few others, will be rather less in price, but Chrysolora, Duchess de Parma and Keizerskroon have proved to be scarce and will be much dearer next season. All pink and rose colored varieties are fairly plentiful. Darwin tulips are getting more and more popular in America, but prices will be easier next season. Narcissi cleared out well, with the exception of ornatus and Sir Watkin, while there has been a short supply of most leading sorts, notably extra double-nosed Emperor, Empress, Victoria, Golden Spur, Barrii conspicuus, Stella, Elvira, Glory of Leiden and Mrs. Langtry. The crop of Double Von Sion always is uncertain, even if the acreage of stock planted out is sufficiently large."

THE grafters are busy—the Manetti stocks have arrived and are of excellent quality.

ONE of the big sellers this Christmas was the little red wreath for limousine windows.

A LOT of people in the trade have done an excellent business in the last few months, but their profit is all on their books.

NEXT to the evil of lax credits and slow collections, the greatest handicap in this trade is the practice of quoting as many different prices as there are customers.

THE weekly news letter of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for December 23 had an excellent article on indoor window boxes, calculated to increase their use in the rural districts.

THE European war did not result in the expected general shortage of florists' supplies for Christmas, although a few items were short and some of the novelties failed to materialize.

IF it were not that a lot of people consider only what they pay, without a thought as to what they get, some folks we know would find business a lot duller than it ever has been.

THERE seems to be a growing belief that express rates will have to go up if the companies are to live; they undoubtedly are having a hard time. But the average florist finds the new rates, one way or another, as high as the old.

MAIL SERVICE.

You can judge the efficiency of your local mail service by comparing the arrival of last week's issue of The Review with the hour it usually arrives. The paper was mailed as usual Thursday, December 24. One reader, half a mile from the office, reports his copy reached him Tuesday, December 29.

"HAPPY NEW YEAR."

No doubt 1914 has been a year of unusual difficulty for the majority of the readers of The Review, the last five months having been the most trying the trade ever has known. Consequently the general exchange of New Year's greetings is less of a commonplace—less of a formality—than it had become. Everybody means it this year—it comes from the bottom of one's heart. "Happy and Prosperous!" Prosperity is not essential to true happiness, but it helps, helps a lot. The Review most sincerely wishes renewed, permanent prosperity to every member of the trade and a Happy New Year to all.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Ralph, John, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.
Herron, Dana R., Olean, N. Y.
Pankow, R. H., New York, N. Y.
Weage & Tyler, Coldwater, Mich.
Pittet, Albert, Indianapolis, Ind.
Miller & Son, Pontiac, Ill.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

FIVE MONTHS OF WAR.

Now that the great conflict in Europe has run five months its effect on business conditions in this country can be estimated with some degree of accuracy. So many new channels of business are opening, as a result of the closing of certain old ones, that many further changes in conditions are sure, but they will come more slowly than those of the last five months. Business has made a wonderful recovery since the paralysis that followed the declarations of war. But it still is below normal in most lines. Of course individual experiences differ; there are florists in the grain states who say business never was better, while the heaviest decreases have been felt in the manufacturing districts along the Atlantic seaboard. Under the circumstances it may be useless to try to average the effect of the war, but it looks as though the florist who finds his sales for the five months not more than twenty per cent below those of the same time last year, when business was specially good, should feel that he has done his share.

In a recent interview Lord Kitchener, head of the British war office, was quoted as saying that the war will last not less than three years. The opinion, and of course it is nothing more than an opinion, is worthy of serious consideration, for it may be doubted if conditions in general business or in the florists' trade will become normal so long as the war lasts—perhaps not for a long time afterward. A readjustment in the trade seems necessary.

TWO WAYS.

He who keeps his eyes on the horizon stumbles less than he who studies the cobblestones.—Ancient Chinese philosopher.

One man's aim is to edit his newspaper so it will be as nearly like another as he can get it. A second man's aim is to make his paper as distinctly different as circumstances will permit. Or, stated another way, one man's idea is to divide the field with his competitors, while the other's plan is to create a free field for all.

I consider The Review, as improved recently, far and away the most convenient of the various florists' trade papers. The placing of the index in the front has, in my opinion, added decidedly to the value of the paper, to say nothing of the other improved features. I take three trade papers, and while I find much of value in each of the others, if I had to cut down to one paper, I would let the others go and retain The Review. —Philip Marot, Swarthmore, Pa., December 22, 1914.

MAKING CREDITS.

Deciding, usually in a hurry, whether or not a man is entitled to credit is not the easiest task in the world—not if the question is to be decided right in a large majority of the cases. It is easy enough to pass judgment in accordance with commercial agency ratings, but a large number of florists have no ratings; nor can they make a showing of assets that will justify the extension of credit. If there ever was another line of business in which a good name was of greater value or more zealously to be guarded, that line does not suggest itself at the moment.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The story of the Christmas market in Chicago, that part of it not covered in last week's issue, is quickly told: It was highly unsatisfactory to everyone whose interests lie with the wholesale and producing end. The retailers came out a little better.

There was far too much stock. The supply, everyone agrees, was much the largest the market ever has seen at Christmas. Perhaps a good illustration would be to say the increase was represented by the quantity left over, about the usual number of flowers being sold. But prices were not so good, even, as last Christmas, so it is easy to figure out that most growers and practically all wholesalers took in less money than they had counted on, and less than last year. The exceptions would be those who cut little last Christmas and cut heavily this year. A few such are known, especially among the carnation growers. The worst sufferers were those who cut little, as prices were so low their sales shrunk even more than the quantity of stock handled. In such an event it is difficult to arrive at anything like actual figures, but it probably will not be far out of the way if it be said that twenty per cent more flowers than last year brought twenty per cent less money. There are those whose supply increased much more and there are those whose sales shrunk even worse.

An excellent illustration of the state

BEAUTIES

FOR YOUR JANUARY BUSINESS

WE invite your special attention to our January crop of Beauties. Not only have we a large supply, but the quality is unusually good. You will recognize that the call for Beauties frequently is better in January than at any other time, and you can do a fine, profitable business if you use our stock.

ROSES IN VARIETY

We are proud of our Rose stock—and we know you will be proud to handle such Roses. In building up our supply our first aim has been quality; our second, variety, and our third, quantity. We have all three objects, and can offer a full line of highest quality in large quantity.

KILLARNEY BRILLIANT WHITE KILLARNEY KILLARNEY
BULGARIE (Taft) MRS. WARD MILADY
RICHMOND MRS. RUSSELL OPHELIA SUNBURST

Our prices never are higher than others ask if able to offer an equal grade of stock. Our "Select" grade is equal to what many offer as their best. Our "Special" and "Extra Special" grades are in a class by themselves.

CARNATIONS

Buyers will find it to their advantage to order Carnations of us. We have the quantity and our stock is widely known as always the most uniformly high quality large lot in this market. We want you to see the present cut; it's very fine.

VIOLETS

We handle the cream of the crops of the Hudson river doubles, and they are fine. An abundant supply. Also a fine large pick of the fragrant home-grown singles. You will need these in quantity for corsages.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

We can furnish fine Valley in quantity. You need it to go with the violets in the corsages, as well as for bride's bouquets, etc. It's as near indispensable as any flower on the list.

We have all the Specialties, such as fancy Cattleyas, Snapdragon, Pansies, Stevia, Sweet Peas, Daisies, Mignonette, Bulb Stock and every other flower that's in season.

EASTER LILIES

of the market is the report of one wholesaler, who says that where last year his house bought over $2,000 worth of stock from other wholesalers, this Christmas less than $100 worth was so purchased. Everybody had enough. The shipping trade was the backbone of the market. The orders were fully as numerous as at the best previous Christmas, but they were not so large as usual. The out-of-town people wanted good stock, if not always the longest stems, and did not expect to get flowers for next to nothing just because the market was overstocked. After the shipping orders were out all the houses were in the same boat. An unexpected feature was that while the larger stores, catering to the better class of trade, seemed to buy about as many cut flowers as ever, numbers of the smaller stores appeared to buy scarcely anything—they had prepared to do the Christmas business practically all with plants and supply house stock and it was too late to change their plans when it was found the market was overloaded with cut flowers.

Regretfully, it must be recorded that growers' averages in many cases were pulled down by the shipping of the worst lot of pickled stock this market has seen in many a day. With cuts so large and the market so weak as was the case between Thanksgiving and Christmas, it was only natural, perhaps, that growers should hold back their stock. They might have got away with it if the supply of fresh stock had run short, but with more fresh flowers than could be sold there was little chance for anything that showed signs of age.

One flower was in about as bad a situation as another; the oversupply extended to practically all important lines. Perhaps it was worst with carnations. Some estimates of the quantity offered put it as high as three times last year's Christmas supply and there are individual growers who are known to have shipped from four to six times as many as in the same week last year. That sleepy and split flowers should have no sale was not to be wondered at, and of course the market weakened rapidly after the shipping demand had been satisfied. Even red was left.

The eastern Beauties did no good; no more Beauties were sold, either at wholesale or retail, at this year's low prices than have been sold at better prices in previous years. Retailers who bought in the east are said to have come out all right, but wholesalers who speculated were lucky if they broke even and the eastern stock spoiled the market for local growers. Relatively, roses did better than anything else. There was an oversupply, it is true, but good roses at from 8 cents to 15 cents sold well. The novelty roses were most in demand, of course, but fine, long Killarney could be had at such reasonable prices that it held down the prices for the novelties. Mrs. Russell sold up to 50 cents per flower, as did Milady, but the shorter lengths suffered by comparison with the Killarney offered at the same price. Russell was carried over, the same as other roses. Richmond for once went around, and more.

Violets were, contrary to general expectation, as much in oversupply as anything else. The quantities of Beauties and violets ordinarily sold in New York and Philadelphia that this time came to Chicago was the subject for wide remark. Violets sold well in the good retail stores and had it not been for the volunteer shippers the market would have had a pleasant story to tell on this item. Singles were not nearly so plentiful as the Hudson river doubles. There were moments when poinsettias were not easy to find, but late arrivals went unsold. Cattleyas and sweet peas were the least plentiful of flowers, but no complaint is heard. It is well understood that when roses and carnations are in oversupply there can be no shortage of miscellaneous flowers, so all the other items may be dismissed with the simple statement that it was not possible to sell them all even by letting the buyers set the price.

In the retail stores a somewhat better story is told. Taking them as a whole, they came much nearer equaling last year than the wholesalers did. They had nearly all stocked more heavily than usual on medium-priced plants and on ruscus baskets, etc. A good many appear to have made no attempt to push cut flowers, although of course they all sold more or less and some of those who advertised liberally did the largest business in their history. It is said one store waited on between 1,500 and 1,600 customers December 24. Inevitably, a few plants were left, but it was a fair clean-up. The same may be said for the supply-house stock. If business had been better than expected the stores would have finished off with a run on cut flowers, but it was about all over by the time the plants were sold. In general the retailers got their stock enough cheaper this year so they came out about as well as usual, although there are numerous exceptions.

The market was quiet after the holiday. All flowers were in large supply and prices lower than usual during the days between Christmas and New Year's. There was some increase in the shipping business as the middle of the week approached, but the Christmas experience operated against any considerable booking of advance orders and, so far as Chicago is concerned, 1914 is expiring quietly.

George Wienhoeber's Shift.

Perhaps the most interesting item of news developed by the Christmas rush is the announcement of the purchase of the store of Lubliner & Trinz, 41 South Wabash avenue, by George Wienhoeber, for the last twelve years manager of the Fleischman Floral Co. Mr. Wienhoeber is to take possession January 1 and will conduct the business under his own name.

Even those who have not approved the methods of advertising by which the large business of the Fleischman concern has been built up will concede that Mr. Wienhoeber has had wonderful success at the Jackson boulevard store and will hope to see him do equally well for himself on Wabash avenue, where he has acquired a 10-year lease on favorable terms.

Lubliner & Trinz have for some time had interests in the moving picture line that have overshadowed their florists' enterprise. The store was offered for sale some time ago with the idea of devoting all their time to the films.

Dr. Maurice Kubel, president of the Fleischman Floral Co., has not yet announced the appointment of a manager to succeed Mr. Wienhoeber.

Various Notes.

There are a number of reports of frozen stock, but C. W. McKellar appears to have suffered the heaviest loss, over $200, through the freezing of a shipment of cattleyas from the east. A claim has been filed against the express company.

apolis, offering a secret chemical that is said to cause cut flowers to remain fresh for from three to six months. All that is asked for the exclusive rights in Illinois is $5,000 and a penny a flower for the stock treated. The correspondent asks for a box of flowers on which to demonstrate! If people could keep cut flowers six months it would mean the end of the greenhouse business, but there seems no reason for immediate alarm.

August Poehlmann has accomplished something worth while in arranging for a direct connection between the Morton Grove office of Poehlmann Bros. Co. and the system of the Chicago Telephone Co., via the Rogers Park exchange, thus doing away with toll and the delays incident to calling through long distance. The greenhouse call now is Rogers Park 684.

Charles Erne attributes the lack of demand for Christmas to the accumulation of unusually large supplies of stock all through the country, as the result of slack business and cold weather during the preceding fortnight. He thinks that had business been brisk or the weather warm no such accumulations of stock would have been possible and the normal Christmas demand would have resulted.

The A. L. Randall Co. is busy this week taking inventory in the supplies department. The clean-up on Christmas specialties is said to have been the best since the company went into the supply business.

Clifford Pruner has been at home for a week, nursing his bad leg.

N. P. Miller says Kennicott Bros. Co. received 800 King gladioli from Florida one day too late for Christmas. The entire shipment had been sold for delivery December 24.

Felix Reichling says Peter Reinberg cut 75,000 carnations Christmas week and had to buy 1,500 December 24 to complete the filling of orders. The Beauty crop was a few days late.

The E. C. Amling Co. had quite a quantity of pompon mums for Christmas, but found the buyers had lost their appetite for them. Stock that sold quickly during its season could not be cleaned up. Jonquils arrived in time for Christmas.

As indicating the increase in the cost of growing flowers, N. J. Wietor mentions as one item that Pocahontas coal that once cost, in Rogers Park, $3.10 per ton now costs $3.75. When thousands of tons are burned in a season, the difference is important.

Winterson's Seed Store reports an excellent call for Spiræa Gladstone, the importations of this variety being cleaned up ahead of Queen Alexandra.

A. T. Pyfer says the Joliet plant of the Chicago Carnation Co. did not cut nearly so heavily this Christmas as last, but that the stock from the Pyfer & Olsem range more than made up the difference, so that considerably more flowers were handled than last year.

C. L. Washburn reported C. E. Gullett, of W. H. Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., a visitor December 28. Mr. Washburn makes little complaint as to December business.

The Bohannon Floral Co. did a good Christmas business. The force was increased, as usual, to take care of the

The new broom will come into play at the next meeting of the Florists' Club, January 7. There should be a large attendance, as there will be an exhibition of novelties, in addition to the installation of a new man for each office.

Mrs. Frank Williams, proprietor of the Atlas Floral Co., reports sending out an unknown messenger with Christmas deliveries valued at $60 that never were heard of afterward. Otherwise, business would have been satisfactory.

The Boston Store is to rebuild the northwest corner of State and Madison street and it is stated on authority that a regular flower department will be started, preferably on lease to an outsider. Heretofore the store has had occasional big sales, but has not handled flowers or plants regularly.

John Zech indicates that he would make no complaint as to the sales for Christmas week except that, with normal conditions, the quantity of stock handled would have given a total far in excess of the best previous record of his firm.

The Fleischman Floral Co. is reported to have received $2,000 for a decoration at the Blackstone hotel December 29 for J. Ogden Armour.

turn out so heavy as was at first feared. John Kruchten, who sells the cut, of course missed the Christmas crop, but nevertheless had enough for all his orders.

Charles Zapfe is about, none the worse for his odd fall of a fortnight ago.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Christmas was most peculiar. Trade was quiet the week before and buyers were slow about placing orders for cut flowers up until the last minute, when there was a grand rush. The wholesale houses can probably say they sold more and better flowers than ever before, but the prices were lower and the total of business will probably be less.

The wholesalers had their troubles with the express companies, which were swamped. The greatest losses were on violets. The shipments which should have come in Thursday morning did not arrive until Christmas morning, after all business was over.

From the retail stores there are conflicting reports, but all were of one mind on the plant question; the plant sales broke all records. Some reported slow sales on cut flowers, while others admitted they had sold more flowers than ever before, but prices were much below the usual holiday level. However, taking all in all, I believe they all had a much better business than they expected.

The green goods end must have been bad, especially from the shippers' viewpoint, as much of the holly and wild smilax was sold for less than the freight and today the railroad people are offering the trade smilax still on the track for the freight charges. Putting this stock on the market outside the trade, which handles the product the balance of the year, makes for the wholesalers a lot of dissatisfied customers while affording no profit to the shippers.

The plantsmen all seemed pleased, as they cleaned up everything in blooming stock. The sale of palms and ferns was below the average, but these are staple goods and will be all right for Easter and spring trade. Clarke.

E. J. McCallum, of the McCallum Co., states that this concern was obliged to "close its doors to the Christmas trade," being completely sold out of stock in all lines.

The Market.

On the whole, Christmas business was not at all satisfactory. Prices were largely responsible for the slump, as the quantity of stock moved was as large as, if not larger than last year's, but the total sales were not nearly up to what they should have been.

Every florist seems to agree that cut flowers did not move as well as they should. Plants, however, sold exceptionally well and were in excellent shape. The loss, therefore, was at the cut flower end of the business, as wreaths, ruscus and other decorative stock sold readily. On Monday and Tuesday the market showed a lot of poor stock, for which there was practically no call, while the demand was heavy for first-class stock at good prices for long distance shipments. Taking the whole week into consideration, stock in general cleaned up fairly well and little was held over.

Carnations were good the latter part of the week, but were far cheaper than last year. Owing to the quantity of poor stock received early in the week, the ice boxes were overloaded until Thursday, when the demand became so great that it was necessary to use some old stock to fill all orders.

Roses were fine and sold well. There was surely no shortage, as had been predicted, but as the sales were heavy, they were cleaned up fairly well. There was an enormous demand for Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, especially the long-stemmed stock, which was so fine that it put American Beauties in the background and made the prices on Beauties drop accordingly. Russells were sold as high as $7.50 per dozen and the stock was well worth the price.

Wisconsin-grown violets were practically the only thing on the market in which there was a shortage. Stock was scarce, but fine, and as there was a wonderful demand, the stock brought exceptionally good prices.

All good stock, of every description, was pretty well cleaned out Thursday evening, and with the quantity of stock disposed of, had prices been what they should, the Christmas business would have shown up much better than last year's. H. J. S.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Christmas, from the wholesale cut flower standpoint, will go on record as the least profitable in history. Never were prices so low, and stock never was so abundant. Who ever heard of violets the day after Christmas selling at 35 cents per hundred in the New York market, or lilies at 4 cents each, orchids at 25 cents each and carnations at $10 per thousand?

Roses were the backbone of the entire structure and saved the day, for, notwithstanding a generous supply, prices for all varieties held steady. American Beauties were specially in demand, with selected flowers bringing 75 cents each, and none too many for the demand. The novelties also were disposed of at satisfactory prices, but no unreasonable or abnormal quotations prevailed. All the standard sorts ranged from as low as 2 cents up to 10 cents, and the leading novelties did not go above $3 per dozen.

The break in carnations was unexpected. The supply was enormous and the best prices were obtainable early in the week. The nearer the dawn of Christmas the lower fell the prices, many thousands remaining unsold on Christmas eve. Even the red varieties shared in the general slump. From $4 per hundred down is a fair summary of the carnation situation.

A remarkable overflow of orchids was one of the surprises of the holiday season. One firm handled 5,000 of them. Prices were disappointing. Valley seldom sold above 4 cents, although much of it was well worth 5 cents. Lilies fell to 6 cents for the best, and large quantities sold as low as 4 cents. There were few mums and only a light demand for them. Violets were aggressive and independent when the holiday week opened and humble when it closed. The firms which make the violet their specialty were greatly disappointed. The accumulations were heavy as the week closed and prices were down to less than half the Monday quotations.

There was a great abundance of other flowers, daisies, mignonette, hyacinths, narcissi, pansies, wallflowers and forget-me-nots. Callas, lilacs, asparagus, smilax and evergreens of every variety were also plentiful.

The ribbon houses found the demand lighter than usual. The supply houses enjoyed the greatest prosperity of their careers and the green goods men were simply overwhelmed with business.

A cold wave was another trouble-maker that arrived December 24 and held through Sunday, zero being reached December 26, the coldest December weather ever known in New York. The drop in temperature added to the troubles of the plant growers and the retail florists, everything having to be heavily wrapped before delivery. But it was a plant Christmas nevertheless, with few calls for the high-priced combinations, but a great number for the medium-priced offerings and about equal to less warring seasons in the aggregate of distribution.

Various Notes.

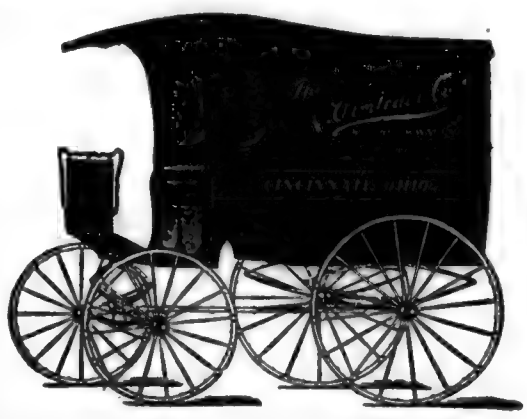
The Kervan Co. says this was the best Christmas yet. Day and night all last week the veteran and his quartette of sons, with their helpers, were as busy as busy could be.

Samuel Woodrow says this was the best holiday trade he has ever experienced. Not a plant of any value was left.

J. K. Allen reports a splendid rose trade, especially on the new varieties, and there were no poinsettias left in pots or pans.

B. Rosens reports an unprecedented sale of the frieze roping, of which he claims to be the sole importer.

The New York Florists' Supply Co. found its extra store a great convenience. Mr. Cotsonas says the new store at 118 West Twenty-eighth street will soon be ready for occupancy.



Hanschild & Co. are concentrating their business at 102 West Twenty-eighth street, with violets as their specialty.

Nicholas Lecakes is much pleased with the holiday trade as a starter in his new enterprise.

George Polykranas, manager of the United Cut Flower Co., says they have ninety-eight growers shipping to them.

Russin & Hanfling say the novelties purchased in Europe before the war, by their Mr. Russin, sold far beyond their expectations.

J. J. Coan, manager of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., reports handling large

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

It was a white Christmas. Nobody expected it, or the cold wave that rushed in at the same time as the snow, and nobody expected a particularly good Christmas in the cut flower market. Perhaps nobody was disappointed in this view, as the Christmas business lacked the snap of former years. Yet when it is considered how general is the depression in other lines, business was as good as a conservative forecast could possibly have expected. The wholesale commission houses and the large retail stores did about the same amount of business in dollars and cents as in their best previous years, but it took more flowers to do it, and more effort. Prices, of course, were much lower. The growers, and some of the retail stores, have not done so well as in previous years, the former on account of the low prices, particularly where their stock was not just so, the latter through the uncertain shifting sands of patronage in these unsettled times. The extreme cold December 24 undoubtedly cut down sales in the retail stores.

The market opened with a heavy load of flowers that made the asking prices moderate. These prices were maintained for the select stock until the shipping orders were half filled, when, with increased receipts, they broke on several of the staples in quantity lots. From that time on the market was weak and irregular as a result of the heaviest receipts ever seen here. Business continued up till Christmas morning. When it was over there still were numbers of flowers unsold in the commission houses. Some of these could have been sold had they arrived earlier; others were in poor condition, green or overripe, or a poor quality. Some were of the wrong color of the variety. It must be said in justice to the wholesalers that their asking prices were moderate, quite moderate for the season; that they spared no effort to move the stock, and that they would have done so save for the unfavorable conditions.

Beauties were one of the few flowers that could be controlled. The price was fixed at 75 cents each for the best and it stayed there throughout. Red roses came next in popular favor. They were chiefly Richmond, with a few Hadley and d'Arenberg. They brought from 30 cents for the specials down to 6 cents for the shorts, and were all sold. Pink roses were the weakest spot on the list. Russell, Mock and other new roses led, at excellent prices for select stock. Killarney fell far behind, dragging Killarney Brilliant with it. The receipts were simply enormous. The price ranged from 15 cents, except for a few extra select that brought more, down to 3 cents, and many were left. White Killarney sold better than the parent variety, chiefly because there were so few of them. Sunburst and Ward were in demand. Maryland sold a little better than Killarney, grade for grade, probably because there were not so many of them.

Carnations started out bravely at 8 cents for select stock of Mrs. C. W. Ward, with 10 cents and occasionally 12 cents for extra fancy red. When the shipping orders were all filled a rush of carnations came in. Some of them could have been used earlier to advantage; as it was, they broke the market completely, bringing the price down to 4 cents, while white went begging; no one wanted that color. There were many carnations left unsold. Violets, chiefly Hudson river doubles, brought from $1 to $1.50 per hundred. They were in moderate supply and in fair demand. Valley went nicely at 3 cents and 4 cents; gardenias, briskly at from $3 to $5 per dozen for good flowers. Orchids were in heavier supply than expected. They fared fairly well until the close of business, when signs of weakness were shown. Fancy mignonette broke from 8 cents to 6 cents, with few buyers and many unsold. Paper Whites were not favored, even at ridiculously low prices, $15 per thousand. Callas were quite scarce at $2 to $2.50 per dozen. Easter lilies were more plentiful at $1.50 to $2 per dozen. There were lots of poinsettias at $3 per dozen. Greens were not in demand. Sweet peas brought from $1 to $2 per hundred in limited numbers. There were few Romans from $2 to $3 and a moderate number of daisies and pansies a little over normal in price.

The Christmas plant market showed a falling off from the high water mark of last year. Flowering plants were most popular, cyclamens and poinsettias particularly so. Begonias gave signs of waning popularity, due to several causes. The basket sizes of flowering plants had a great run. Made-up baskets and hampers were sold in numbers, probably a little less than last year. Small and medium foliage plants were better stock than the larger sizes. Crotons of bright color were in favor, but dracænas are not so well known as they deserve to be. Table ferns were used in great number. While there were no marked changes in prices, it was noticed that a little better value was given, especially in foliage plants.

The cut flower market since Christmas has been quiet. Fresh stock of quality has been in fair demand at prices that have declined rather more than usual. This is due probably to the depression caused by the leftover stock, which, while nobody wants it overly much, everybody wants to use as a club. The receipts are, of course, lighter, but the bright, sunny weather is bringing in the flowers that just missed in quantity quite sufficient to suit everybody.

Various Notes.

John P. Habermehl says that his firm sent out more packages from the Bellevue-Stratford than last Christmas, that their average value was a little less, and their total value about the same.

Herman Warendorff, of the Ansonia, New York, paid us a flying visit.

Alexander Craig Patterson says that Phil was late, I would not like to tell you how much late, in discovering the bagging needle. It is a good thing anyway, and worthy of claiming Mr. Patterson for its discoverer.

Many of the retail flower shops have greens left over. This suggests the thought that it might be worth while to leave the cheap greens to the corner grocery, where they are handled anyhow.

M. Rice Co. reports the results of the Christmas business as exceptionally gratifying and far exceeding expectations. It is stated that the Rice Co. never has had a year in which the supply of special Christmas goods has been so completely cleaned up, which speaks well for the florists' business throughout the country.

William J. Baker received the first daffodils at Christmas and appeared in person to greet them.

Bristol, Pa.—Jacob Schmidt has moved into his new office, at the greenhouses on Otter street. The building is sixteen feet square and is well equipped with all conveniences.

McCRAY
Florists' Display Refrigerator

The McCray keeps flowers fresh longer than any other. Its system of refrigeration maintains an even temperature of the proper degree for the preservation of cut flowers and entirely eliminates the great loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The McCray is built to permit an attractive and inviting display of your flowers, its various compartments being of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flowers.

The interior linings are of either opal glass, bevel plate mirror or white enamel and are very handsome and easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your woodwork or other fixtures.

The handsome appearance of the McCray is an improvement to any store and is a great stimulant for increased sales and pleased customers. Investigate the McCray and ascertain why they are the best for florists.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Washington florists are well satisfied with the volume of business done for Christmas, and while many of the stores have not yet got their figures together, it is believed that it will be found that the month of December was better than the same month in 1913.

Everything in the way of blooming plants moved well, and the stores were able to clean up pretty well. In the cut flower line there were plenty of all varieties to be had. American Beauty roses, double and single violets, orchids, gardenias and sweet peas were in heavy demand, and two of the wholesale houses report having closed out practically their entire stock of these.

As usual, there were more narcissi than the market could consume, and this flower was among the few that hung fire. Chrysanthemums were in little demand, although fairly plentiful. Although it had been expected that valley would increase in price, there was the usual movement at $4 per hundred. Pussy willow made its appearance for the holiday trade.

Various Notes.

William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., said: "We had more trade than we could attend to for the three or four days preceding Christmas, and never before have we sold so many high-priced flowers. While the snowstorm and the cold interfered greatly with the delivery of plants, we overcame this difficulty through the use of eleven closed automobile delivery wagons, all of which were heated. We had an extra force of thirty-five employees and in addition we brought in ten men from the greenhouses to wrap up plants. Even though this c ailed considerable additional expense, we feel well repaid by the satisfaction evidenced by our patrons; all of our deliveries were made before noon on Christmas day."

Larz Anderson, former ambassador to Japan, was seen in Washington recently wearing a large white orchid as a boutonniere. He was later seen with a large yellow orchid in his buttonhole. The local florists are in hopes that Mr. Anderson will set a new style in boutonnieres and are perfectly willing to furnish the Larz Anderson type.

A fashion report in the national capital states that the proper place for women's corsage bouquets during the coming season will be at the back of the waistline. At a display of spring models in New York last week a small bunch of little flowers had been placed under the sash bow at the back of an evening dress for summer wear, and at a new play staged in New York the leading lady wore a flat bouquet at the back of her girdle.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington will be held Tuesday evening, January 5, at 1214 F street, northwest. A special program is being prepared for this first meeting of the year and arrangements are being made for a motion picture exhibition showing war conditions in Europe and current events, at that time. BALTIMORE.

Christmas Trade.

There was only one redeeming feature of the Christmas just passed, and that was the increased plant sales. Azaleas, cyclamens, poinsettias and, in fact, all blooming plants were in good demand, and most of the stores were completely sold out. But in cut flowers quite a different story must be told; in this line, sales were only a small part of the usual amount. A snowstorm came up on the morning of December 24 and continued throughout the day, giving us the first "white Christmas" in many years, to the retailers' disadvantage.

The condition of the wholesale market is rather hard to describe. There was chiefly the oversupply of carnations, of all colors; even red blooms were unsold, something which has never before occurred in this city. The greatest demand was for the best grade of roses, principally Beauties. Orchids, violets and gardenias also sold well. Medium and short roses were unsalable, except a limited quantity for funeral work, showing that cut flower sales were confined to those who bought the best of quality. Even among the wealthy class of people, economy seemed to be the rule. A well known retailer spoke of the business in this way, which pretty well fits the case: "A customer who in former years spent $10, this year spent $5; he bought the same quality but a smaller quantity."

There was a large supply of greens, a large quantity being left unsold. Calla lilies were scarce and for some orders it was necessary to substitute Harrisii, of which there was a good supply, but sales were not large. Cut flower novelties were in good demand, and the supply of Sweetheart and Fireflame roses and, in fact, anything out of the ordinary, was pretty well cleaned up. Cut poinsettias were in fair demand and good supply, with some left over.

The sales of artificial designs for cemetery use were much smaller than usual, and a number of florists had a large quantity left over. Holly and holly wreaths were plentiful and prices were low, but, even so, no large quantity was disposed of.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore was held Monday, December 28, with President Johnston in the chair. The weather was warmer, and there was a good attendance of members. H. Snydam, representing the Garland Mfg. Co., Des Plaines, Ill., gave some good hints on using a cement putty product of his firm, which a number of members had trouble in using. There was considerable discussion of last week's business, particularly with regard to the low prices of cut flowers, principally carnations. The reason given by a commission man was that the growers had at least a twenty-five per cent larger cut than was expected; consequently the larger supply considerably lowered the price. F. C. Bauer had on exhibition some blooms of Francis Scott Key rose, which were of an unusually bright color. The librarian was authorized to purchase a number of books on horticulture, for addition to the club library. After the question box had been taken up and discussed, the club adjourned.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

We have been making a careful study of results obtained through our various advertising mediums, and, among the trade papers, we have found that we are obtaining the best results from the Florists' Review.

During the Convention in Boston, many visitors who came to our booth to inspect our advertising display mentioned the fact that they have seen a great deal of our advertising in the Florists' Review.

After careful investigation we are satisfied that yours is the leading Trade Paper and that the best results from advertising may be obtained by using its columns.

Yours very truly,

Penn the Florist.

The Market.

The general verdict seems to be that, everything considered, Christmas trade was remarkably good. The growers and wholesalers did not do nearly so well as a year ago, but the retailers did a splendid business, in some cases going well ahead of 1913. It is some years since we experienced such cool weather prior to and following Christmas. This hurt the plant trade considerably and caused many buyers to turn to cut flowers instead.

The best selling flowering plants were azaleas, of which more could have been sold, Cincinnati begonias and cyclamens. Poinsettias fell off decidedly in popularity and large numbers were unsold, the delicate nature of the plants no doubt militating against their sale. Ardisias did not sell so well as usual, nor did solanums. Oranges with well colored fruit had a good sale. There was also a good sale for camellias, ericas, ferns and primulas.

Roses were easily the leaders among cut flowers, being far ahead of carnations in favor and selling out much better. Select Beauties made $50 to $75 per hundred; none reached the $100 mark this year. More Beauties could have been sold. It was feared that the demand for these would fall off heavily, but such was not the case. Russells were not numerous; the best made $4 to $5 per dozen. Sunburst and Ophelia made from $4 to $32 per hundred; Stanley, Mock and Killarney Queen, $3 to $32;

Ward, $3 to $20; Hadley and Richmond, $4 to $40; Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney, $2 to $16. The demand for the last named was the weakest.

Carnations fell far below other years in prices and popularity. A small number of selects made $8, but $6 was the more general price for good Beacon, Champion, Dagmar and Pocahontas. Pink Delight and other good pinks made $4 to $5, whites $2 to $3; yellows no one seemed to want. On Christmas day many whites sold as low as $1 per hundred. A year ago some growers averaged $8 per hundred for all their flowers.

Violets sold well at $1, $1.25 and $1.50 per hundred. Valley made $3 to $4, sweet peas 75 cents to $1, some fine freesia $12.50, calendulas $3, bachelor's buttons $1 to $2, yellow marguerites $1 to $2. Chrysanthemums were numerous, but did not sell well. Gardenias made $4 to $6 per dozen; Cattleya Trianæ, $6 to $9 per dozen; C. Percivaliana, $4 to $5 per dozen. A number of tulips and Trumpet narcissi appeared. Of Paper Whites, Romans and stevia there was the usual glut and low prices. Antirrhinums did not sell well.

Since Christmas the market has lacked animation. Christmas night a cold wave struck us, with minimums locally of 6 to 10 degrees below zero, with still lower readings December 27. Some plants and cut flowers have arrived frozen. Roses continue to sell better than carnations. Violets are not abundant and move well, but nearly all other flowers are moving slowly. A little spurt is hoped for December 31, but New Year's trade locally is not specially heavy.

Various Notes.

Dealers in greens all did a fine business. Laurel wreathing was in short supply, but all other greens were sufficient for demands.

F. W. Fletcher, of Auburndale, has over 120,000 of his specially selected strain of Freesia Purity in benches, which will make a grand show in a short time. Nelrose and Phelps' White snapdragons are flowering well with him.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, had for Christmas a considerable variety of tulips, including La Reine, Mon Tresor, Proserpine, Cochenil and White Duc van Thol, and an abundance of Golden Spur narcissi.

Herman Waldecker, of Braintree, is sending in some of the finest mignonette I have seen this season.

A. G. Lake, of Wellesley Hills, is this season growing yellow marguerites heavily and is cutting quantities of blooms this early.

Robert Montgomery had a splendid cut of roses for the holidays, some 15,000 all told, and no local growers had finer quality flowers.

William Sim had over 75,000 single violets for Christmas. He has quantities of sweet peas coming on, but will not commence picking before February.

The W. W. Edgar Co. reports a good Christmas clean-up on flowering plants, azaleas and Cincinnati begonias going finely.

Wm. Caraher, salesman for the Sutermeister estate, of Readville, had some splendid Christmas freesias, which made $12.50 per hundred.

William Hannan & Sons, of Dorchester, are cutting French Golden Spur narcissi in quantity, in addition to Lilium longiflorum.

J. A. Budlong & Son Co., of Auburn, R. I., had a fine cut of Beauty roses for Christmas. Among other varieties Sunburst, Stanley, J. L. Mock, Killarney Queen and Hadley were in strong demand.

Welch Bros. Co. report that trade was fully as good as could be expected. American Beauty roses, in which they specialize, sold well. Patrick Welch improves slowly, but is not yet able to return to business.

McAlpine Bros., of Exeter, N. H., had a fine lot of red roses for the holidays, some 40,000 during the week, of Crimson Queen, Hadley and Richmond.

Edward Winkler's new seedling carnation, Morning Glow, continues to give an account of itself as a producer, and its beautiful color makes it sell on sight.

The Waban Rose Conservatories had a good Christmas cut of roses. Specially fine were Hadley, Russell, Killarney Queen and Ophelia. They are getting numerous orders for their new rose, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, which promises to equal Hadley and Russell in favor.

H. M. Robinson & Co. had a heavy volume of Christmas trade and were well satisfied with it.

Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, had a fine pick of carnations for Christmas. Their Beacon and Princess Dagmar were notably good, but all other sorts were of splendid quality. M. A. Patten finds Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine a better seller than Lorraine.

With the Retailers.

Penn advertised heavily for Christmas, one particularly striking advertisement occupying a half-page in the widest circulating Boston daily. He is mailing copies of this advertisement to all the retailers using The Review's columns. He reports Christmas trade surprisingly good and well ahead of 1913. In plants, azaleas, ardisias, cyclamens, Cincinnati begonias and poinsettias were the leaders. Roses, violets, gardenias and cattleyas were the best selling cut flowers. Baskets and window boxes of plants sold well.

that they never sold out so clean before. In addition to cut flowers and plants, baskets of evergreens and colored flowers and grasses were in great demand.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. did a fine business. Large-sized azaleas and camellias sold especially well, few being unsold.

Galvin's did a tremendous business at both the Tremont street and Back Bay stores. Mr. Galvin says trade at his two Boston stores and at the New York store broke all Christmas records. Poinsettias were the weak feature in flowering plants. American Beauties were in strong demand.

Wax Bros. did a splendid business, both in cut flowers and plants, and the sales exceeded those of 1913.

H. R. Comley, on Park street, was well pleased with Christmas business, which far exceeded his expectations.

At Carbone's, on Boylston street, business was brisk. Here many novelties are always to be found, not only in plants but in Italian and other ware. In the latter lines sales were heavy this season.

The Rosary, on Boylston street, had an optimistic report and so had Harry Quint, on Tremont street. On Summer street, Mrs. J. W. Rogers and H. Kolow both report excellent business.

W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Christmas business in St. Louis, according to the leading florists, was much better than expected. The volume of business came on Thursday and Friday, but the days preceding were quite dull. In the west end, where society does its buying, the retailers report a great plant trade; anything that looked well sold well, and at good prices. The quality of the plant stock was excellent in every respect. The left-over stock was small. Bright colored stock had first choice. Poinsettias had the best call of all plants sold, and these disappeared from the stores and show houses with wonderful rapidity. Azaleas came next in demand. In these, some really handsome plants were seen at the various establishments throughout the city. Lorraine begonias ranked next. Large plants did not sell so well as last year, but the smaller ones had a great demand. The high prices quoted on cut stock by the wholesalers caused the store men to push plants, which caused a clean-up on plants at all the stores, especially those in the south and west ends of the city.

The wholesalers who had told of the high prices and the scarcity of cut stock found themselves with any amount of stock on hand. Thursday and Friday the demand was not near expectations and prices went down on all grades of stock, as the retailers and the public will not stand for the sudden high prices. One wholesaler remarked that he had not nearly so much stock as he had had last year, but it did not move; the growers, too, will have to learn not to hold back stock to make the retailers believe there will be a scarcity, and flood the market the last two days, expecting to get the high prices quoted. Those who had no advance orders in fared much better than those who had. With prices lowered, stock began to move, but not so much of it as was expected. The noticeable feature this year was the shortage in violets, sweet peas and Roman hyacinths. Roses in all varieties were most plentiful, with the greater part of them Killarneys. There were not any too many of the newer varieties. A large number of Wards came in, and a few specials brought $20 per hundred and some as low as $8 and $10. Extra good stock could be had as low as $5 per hundred. Beauties did not move as well at early quotations, but the drop from $12 per dozen to $8 caused some demand later on. Carnations took a sudden drop when stock failed to move, and some extra good stock was sold at $30 and $40 per thousand, with ordinary stock as low as $20 per thousand. Valley and Paper Whites were as usual. Extra fine poinsettias sold at $3 per dozen and moved well. Many complaints were heard on account of the slow sale of greens and extra good quality holly, with prices extremely low. All retailers remark that this was a great plant Christmas, perhaps better than in any previous year, but in cut flowers it was poorer than in any previous year we know of.

As New Year's day calling has been greatly revived, there should be a good demand for cut flowers. Stock should be plentiful, with prices quite moderate. A number of advance orders have been booked for New Year's celebrations.

Various Notes.

Among the downtown florists, Grimm & Gorly, the Riessen Floral Co., the Mullanphy Flower Co., Alex. Siegel and F. J. Foster had their hands full of Christmas orders and were cleaned up well by Friday noon. These florists go in heavily for cut flowers, and they report that Christmas business this year was as good as any they have had. They also report having handled more plants than usual this Christmas.

The Bourdet Floral Co. surely had the largest and best blooming plant stock this year, and the retailers cleaned them out early in the week. Jules Bourdet, head of this firm, says it was a great Christmas.

Sanders Nurseries had a grand display, and O. K. Sanders says they never had such a good Christmas as this year, with many out-of-town orders to fill. Special mail deliveries came in as late as 12:30 a. m. and all were filled promptly.

Kalisch Bros. Floral Co. received half a carload of blooming plants from a Chicago plant grower, which came in frozen, as did also a lot of Scotch heather from New York. This was a great disappointment to them and the loss greatly handicapped them.

Young's splendid Christmas displays at both their stores attracted a large number of buyers. They, too, are highly pleased with the plant business and shipping orders.

F. H. Weber says he had a great business in everything. His telegraph orders were larger than for any Christmas in recent years.

The two stores of Ostertag Bros. were continually crowded Thursday and Friday. They are more than pleased with business done.

The Kelley Floral Co. reports a splendid business. Goldfish was its specialty, and these made excellent Christmas presents.

Fred C. Weber was cleaned out of blooming plants early. Poinsettias went better than ever. Large plants were not in as great demand as usual. Cut flowers sold as usual.

George Waldbart had a beautiful lot of poinsettias for the holidays, as well as fine cyclamens, Lorraine begonias and azaleas, all of which had a heavy demand. He reports that a better Christmas could not be wished for.

In the south end, R. J. Windler, the Eggeling Floral Co., C. Bergstermann, Chas. Beyer, the Schoenle Floral Co. and F. J. Fillmore & Son are all well pleased with this year's Christmas business. They all were heavily stocked with plants, but cleaned up on all.

William C. Smith, chairman of the spring flower show committee, will find more time from now on to attend to the planning of the show. He says we surely will have a spring show.

The members of the County Growers' Association should not forget the new year meeting, Wednesday, January 6, in the usual meeting hall. Those who attend will hear something of interest to them regarding the Christmas stock

The Market.

Christmas reports are not the same in different quarters. Trade was not quite so good as last year. This report comes from the wholesale cut flower growers, but they are well satisfied with results, as conditions have been against them. Christmas eve there was eleven inches of snow, with zero weather. It was hard to make deliveries, as every plant had to be heavily wrapped. Each florist had complaints of plants freezing, in spite of the care taken, but considering the number of plants delivered the loss by freezing was small.

There was an adequate supply of stock of all kinds to meet the demand. It seemed that this Christmas everybody wanted either the pretty baskets displayed in the windows or the pot plants, which were in fine shape and full of bloom. For every order for cut flowers there were twenty for pot plants. Poinsettias and cyclamens were the leaders. Azaleas were plentiful, but few were in first-class condition. Cincinnati and Lorraine begonias were a big factor. Ferns and araucarias sold better than expected.

Various Notes.

The Alpha Floral Co. had a day and a night force working to get out orders. While sales were not so large as in previous years, there were more of them.

Joseph Austin reports an increase in his Christmas business. He had a heavy run on Chatelaine, Prima Donna and luminosa begonias.

A. F. Barbe sold more holly than ever before. Blooming plants and cut flowers were up to last year's sales.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a large cut and was able to Jas. B. Masson, across the state line, says he sold everything he had in stock.

Adolph Mohr was cleaned out entirely of blooming plants. He also sold a great many ferns.

J. E. Murray & Co. sold all the pot plants and baskets and are well pleased.

Samuel Murray reports a larger plant trade than in any previous year. The demand for novelties, fancy boxes and baskets increased splendidly. Novelty roses sold beyond his expectations.

Arthur Newell made no effort to sell holly wreaths and greens, as his business in pot plants and cut flowers occupied too much time.

T. J. Noll & Co. report Christmas business this year 100 per cent increase over last year. Mr. Noll says play fair, advertise in The Review and you will reap the benefit.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports an increase of business in fancy basket work and is well satisfied with the results of last week.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

WOULDN'T this be an excellent year to put an end to the free seed farce?

OF course the big red tomato is the feature of the Livingston 1915 catalogue, only this time there are four of them.

THERE is a subdued note in the 1915 catalogue covers. It looks as though the red tomato's potency as an eye-catcher had been somewhat forgotten.

IT was no mistake to cut the price of peas in the retail catalogues. Except that most of the stock was bought a year ago on growing contract, the prices might be lower than they are.

THE annual convention of the National Canners' Association and allied organizations will attract a large number of seedsmen to New York the week of February 9 to 12. The meeting is to be held at Hotel Astor.

AMONG those present at the recent meeting of the Minnesota Canners' Association at St. Paul were A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and C. P. Guelf, Chicago representative of Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.

INFORMATION from Japan indicates that the 1915 crop of giganteum bulbs will be short and that prices will be higher. Large sizes, especially, will be short, it is said, and anything larger than 7 to 9 will cost considerably more than this season.

THE building in which are the quarters of the Monroe Seed Co., at Monroe, La., was badly damaged by fire on the morning of December 16. The loss to the owners of the building and the occupants is estimated at $4,000, fully covered by insurance.

WHEN J. Charles McCullough, of the J. C. McCullough Seed Co., and Albert McCullough, of J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., both of Cincinnati, returned home after several weeks' stay in Florida, they brought with them not only photographs but the skeleton of a huge shark, weighing 1,200 pounds, to convince any doubting Thomases of the size of their capture.

THE Thorburn catalogue, which last season weighed, with the envelope, just over eight ounces, has this season been kept within the flat rate weight limit by cutting the size from 160 pages to 144 pages. This has been accomplished by the use of new cuts, outlined halftones of smaller size than those previously used, which of course necessitated a complete resetting of the book. But nothing has

Our Competitors

Now that we are nearing the close of another year we feel it our duty to thank those competitors who have greatly assisted us by knocking or imitating our ads. So long as the subject matter pertains to the bulbs we sell, we feel gratified for their help. We had assistance especially in selling Formosum early in the season, later in our Fire Sale of Paper Whites, and occasionally one of our friends rubs it in about branded goods. Now, to sell a good article without a brand that it might be known by, would be bad for both seller and buyer. If a florist buys a case of lily bulbs, and it is good, he wants another of the same kind. The brand identifies it. All good articles of standard value are branded—soap, shoes, hose, implements, etc., and if you will notice it is chiefly the branded goods that produce results. They have to. It is the stuff the seller is ashamed of, or afraid of, that is not branded. In business nowadays the name associated with good merchandise is everything; and that is why Horseshoe Brand is associated with lily bulbs. We are proud of our brand because it represents a good article. We sincerely thank these belliaking advertisers whose ads are read between the lines—WARD.

been lost; it is at least as good and probably better than any of the 113 previous editions distributed by the house.

HAROLD F. WINTER, of Sutton & Sons, Reading, England, is calling on the trade in the east.

IT is stated that the 1914 imports of Japanese lily bulbs by Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, total 15,238 cases.

IN September it was possible to sell at a good price any cold storage valley pips one cared to release—but everybody was holding on. Now, with the year's supply assured, cold storage stock of the 1913 crop is not in active request.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture is trying to help the south diversify its crops and has issued two special leaflets, one on hairy vetch and one on rape as a forage crop in the cotton belt, each of which should increase the demand for seeds.

THE gentlemen in charge of the government's seed distribution are not seeking publicity in the matter of their efforts to purchase stock for 1916. With your Uncle Samuel beet seed is beet seed, provided it germinates, but there is more than the usual reticence this year in the avuncular seed shop in Washington.

NORTH DAKOTA SEED LIEN LAW.

In a suit brought to enforce a lien against crops for the price of seed wheat furnished to grow them, the North Dakota Supreme court lately decided that the last bona fide delivery of a part of a single purchase of different kinds of seeds constitutes the date from which the 30-day limitation for filing a lien begins to run; that a lien is not vitiated by an innocent misstatement in the lien claim of the number of bushels of seed furnished, nor by filing it against both the tenant, who bought the seed, and his landlord. (Freeman vs. Clark, 149 Northwestern Reporter 565.) S.

PEA PACKERS' PLANS.

Pea packers as a body are not able to look so far ahead as 1916; the best they can do at the moment is to figure on 1915—and the prospect seems none too rosy. The journals that are credited with representing the canning industry contradict themselves. In one sentence they say the supply of first quality peas of the 1914 pack is well cleaned up, while in the next they indicate the acreage for 1915 will be materially reduced, especially in Wisconsin, the big pea packing state. It would not call for a sharp reduction in the acreage if the 1914 pack really has been cleaned up the way the market reports say. Packers as a class are not proving specially good sports. They could buy spot seed at a lower price than most of them paid on contract and they are accepting delivery on the contracts with rather poor grace. Not many canners contract for their full requirements, however, and few of them at present are in the market for spot seed, which in a measure accounts for the weakness of peas in general. It isn't to be wondered at that contracts for 1915 crop still are difficult to develop. The Review reported at the time of the Wisconsin packers' convention that seed selling was slow, and the turn is not yet in sight, although of course it will come in time.

ARRIVALS OF VALLEY PIPS.

On the steamer Bergensfjord, which reached New York December 24, were 1,041 cases of valley pips, and on the Ryndam, from Rotterdam, which came to port the same day, were nearly half as many. Of those on the Norwegian boat, one consignment was from Christiania and the rest from Bergen. Although large numbers of valley pips are coming by way of Rotterdam and Copenhagen, by far the greater part of them are consigned to this country

BULB EXPORTS FROM HOLLAND.

Through official channels the figures of the bulb exports from Holland for the month of September, 1914, have been given out and are here published in comparison with the figures for the same month last year. The record, in kilogrammes, is as follows:

Country—	Sept., 1913	Sept., 1914
United States	99,950	1,599,100
Great Britain	3,538,400	2,829,300
Sweden	178,800	1,076,000
Denmark	158,400	156,200
Norway	51,400	90,600
Germany-Austria	1,443,300	2,306,900
Belgium-France	439,100	48,900
Russia	105,700	None
All other countries	55,100	33,100
Totals	6,070,150	8,140,100

It will be recognized that these figures, covering only a part of the season, possess no great value, but at the same time they will be studied with interest. Among other things, the table shows the Hollanders did in one month rather more than one-third of a normal season's exporting, and sent away over 1,100 tons more bulbs than in the corresponding month last year. The figures may be presumed to represent the greater part of the season's exports, although large quantities were shipped in August and in October. The changes shown in the table are, of course, due to the war. The great increase to the United States represents the haste to ship while shipping was good, as the increase for the season, as shown by the figures for the port of New York published in The Review, while large, is nothing like the percentage here in evidence. Perhaps the most remarkable feature is the showing made for Great Britain and Germay and Austria. While the English did not want their bulbs and shipments fell off over 700,000 kilogrammes, the Germans and Austrians took nearly 900,000 kilogrammes more than usual.

WAR AND THE SEED TRADE.

The introductory page of the Burpee 1915 catalogue is devoted to a statement of the effects of the war on the supply of seeds, and at two places in the book are paragraphs on the same subject. On page 166 one reads:

"Because of the war we are obliged to omit some varieties of flower seeds which today (October 24, 1914) it does not appear possible to obtain from our growers in Europe. There is some hope, of course, that the seed may arrive later. In that case we shall issue, in February, 1915, a supplementary circular which might be called a 'War Bulletin,' giving information as to seeds of varieties omitted from this catalogue, which we find by that time our growers on the continent of Europe have been able to forward. Owing to large plantings of flower seeds on our Fordhook, Sunnybrook and Floradale Farms, and also to the fact that already several shipments from Europe have been received, including pansies from Germany and other flower seeds from France, England, Italy and Holland, we are now able to supply seed of every flower and vegetable catalogued on the preceding pages."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, N. Y.—One hundred fourteenth annual catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, plants, insecticides, fertilizers, tools and other requisites; 144 pages, arranged in the usual clear and accurate Thorburn style. Tree and shrub seeds are included; the lists of grass seeds for lawns, golf links, meadows and other purposes are noticeable for their completeness.

Ratekin's Seed House, Shenandoah, Ia.—An illustrated catalogue of seeds, nursery stock, implements, etc. Ninety or more of the entire 112 pages are occupied by vegetable and agricultural seeds, and the latter are especially prominent. The nursery list is general in character, but fruits predominate.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Burpee's Annual for 1915," containing 182 pages of well illustrated, carefully compiled matter, with attractive colored covers and with colored plates showing specialties in tomatoes, celery, Lima beans, asters and sweet peas. As usual, the largest space is devoted to vegetable and flower seeds, including a dozen or more pages of sweet peas, but farm seeds also are listed.

Cold Storage Lily of the Valley

Owing to war conditions, good stock is scarce. Secure your requirements at once for holiday forcing. Finest selected pips, packed in cases of 250, 500 and 1000 each.

Wm. Elliott & Sons, New York, N. Y.—Seventieth annual catalogue of seeds, plants, bulbs, roots, shrubs, fruit trees, small fruits, horticultural tools, fertilizers and other supplies; sixty-eight pages, excellently printed and illustrated.

W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, N. Y.—Illustrated catalogue of seeds, plants, bulbs, roots, fertilizers, insecticides, horticultural tools and requisites, rustic chairs, vases, etc.; ninety-six pages and cover.

Henry F. Michell Co., New York, N. Y.—Twenty-fifth anniversary number of Michell's wholesale list of seeds, bulbs, plants, garden tools, fertilizers, insect destroyers, etc., with "A Brief History of the House of Michell." The 100 illustrated pages contain comprehensive lists in all departments of the business, with a particularly good showing in implements and general supplies.

CORNERED

The unprecedented demand for plants and flowers at Xmas surely drove the pessimistic florist into a corner, if not clear off the plate. From all quarters comes, "The best business ever," far exceeding expectation and preparation.

Don't again underestimate. Fill up empty space and get ready for the coming big days—Easter and Memorial. You have never had enough blossoms at Memorial time. Seedling Silver Pink will make you happy then. The accompanying cut is a Memorial picture. You could span a dollar's worth of blossoms anywhere on the bed. Our customers call it the BUSY snapdragon. It is that and more.

We have a big lot of splendid plants—healthy, branched, ready—at only $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Other varieties are: Yellow, $5.00; Garnet Gem, $8.00; Nelrose, $6.00. White all sold.

The turn of the tide has come—seed sowing time is again here. New crop seed of my original Silver Pink at $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Cultural directions free. All orders cash.

Now is the time to sow some of the Summer Sweet Pea Seed, outdoors or in cold frames, to have good crop for Decoration Day. I have only the best commercial varieties, like: Frank Dolby (lavender), Nora Unwin (white), Gladys Unwin (pink), etc.; 1 lb., $1.50; 5 lbs. of each, at $5.00.

My reselected Pink Spencer, White Spencer, Lavender Spencer, Lilac Spencer, Orange Spencer, Red Spencer, etc., at $5.00 per pound; in 5-lb. lots, at $4.00. Guaranteed over 90% true.

Countess Spencer, White Spencer (Burpee), Blanche Ferry Spencer, C. Routzahn, King Edward Spencer, at $1.50 per lb.; in 5-lb. lots, at $1.00, as long as surplus lasts.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Portland, Ore.—W. G. Wood has obtained a permit to erect a greenhouse on Lombard street, between Dwight and Woolsey, to cost $450. He is to do the work himself.

San Jose, Cal.—A. & E. Schlaudt, who for twenty-five years have conducted a florists' and nursery business at 638-44 North Second street and a store at 144 South Second street for a year and a half, have moved the store to 119 South Second street. G. V. Hiam is buyer and manager at the store. Mr. and Mrs. Schlaudt will devote their time to the uptown place, where their son, C. E. Schlaudt, is in charge of the nursery.

Eugene, Ore.—George Israelson, manager of the Eugene Floral Co., has taken in as partner W. C. Kaber, for twenty-three years connected with the Kaber Co., of La Porte, Ind. Mr. Kaber is an expert grower, and will take charge of the growing, while Mr. Israelson will devote more of his time to the selling. Since taking over the Eugene Carnation Farm two years ago, Mr. Israelson has more than doubled the glass area. He got in touch with Mr. Kaber, he says, through a classified ad in The Review.

ROSES IN OREGON.

We have 200 rose bushes that we are going to plant outdoors next spring. We would like to take them out of the benches right after January 1. How shall we go about it? Should they be dried down before lifting and where can we put them until planting-out time? L. G. S. & F. C.

It will be a good idea to dry off the roses somewhat before lifting. You can store them on the floor of a cold cellar, with the roots packed in damp earth, or heel them in a coldframe, covering the tops with dry leaves, pine needles or some other light material, placing the sashes over these. If you cannot spare a cellar or frame, open a trench outside on a piece of land which will not hold water and bury the plants completely. Let the crust freeze over, then give the surface a mulch of some kind. They will carry over perfectly well treated thus in your Oregon climate. C. W.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Everything points to a particularly good holiday business. There is plenty of good stock, the weather is all that could be desired and the town is full of visitors. The recent rains have settled the question of early plowing and seeding and, for the present, warded off any danger of frost; so the agricultural and fruit elements will be inclined to spend money freely. Wholesalers reported all choice available stock cleared up early on Thursday and inquiries from outside kept coming.

The retail stores were late in making their displays, but at the last they came out with elegant showings along all lines. Some of the made-up baskets were a little heavy and crowded, but others were much better. We are still a little weak in the basket line here, judged by eastern standards, and it seems a pity that this exceedingly remunerative branch of the business is not followed up more. It is too early yet to say how the retailers fared with their plants, but the growers all sold out in good shape.

Various Notes.

The annual banquet of the Germain Improvement Association, consisting of the male employees of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., was held at the Hayward hotel cafe December 19. A royal time was had by everyone, including an elegant course dinner and music by the cabaret performers at the cafe and some of the association members. The slogan of the firm, "Germain's Seeds Germinate," was worked out in red carnations and the tables and room were tastefully decorated with plants and cut flowers by the nursery department. The same evening the female employees of the house were the guests of the association at the theater.

The Huntington Beach Nursery hit the Christmas market just right with a fine lot of Jerusalem cherries, which sold readily. Geo. W. Wardwell, of this establishment, makes a specialty of ferns, palms and araucarias, and his stock is in fine shape now.

From all appearances, August, 1915, is going to be a busy month horticulturally in San Francisco. The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen holds its thirteenth annual convention August 12 to 14, the fifth convention of the California Association of Nurserymen being held at the same time. Then comes the S. A. F. convention, August 17 to 20. Vice-president-elect D. MacRorie, of the national organization, has already hired two halls for the exhibits, each with a floor space of 8,500 feet, and is after a third. There are rumors of a big "something doing" fund, by which the visitors will be sent "down the line" at a clip somewhere around the speed limit. Should the American Pomological Society see fit to join the crowd, there will surely be a historical time. Mr. MacRorie has a big thing in hand, but he is a big man in more ways than one, and is to be depended on to show all a gorgeous time. His fellow conspirator and arch-fiend of a booster, H. W. Kruckeberg, is to act as pilot to the crowd en route to Los Angeles after the Bay City festivities; then San Diego, Panama, or wherever they wish to finish.

The Redondo Floral Co. is an old name in Los Angeles and the store is keeping up its reputation. There was a splendid show of plants here for the Christmas trade, and both A. F. Borden and Albert Knopf expressed themselves as more than pleased with the business done and in prospect.

At the election of officers of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, held December 18, A. Shields was chosen president, Geo. Kennedy continuing as secretary and C. Forsyth, treasurer; Geo. Nillson was elected vice-president, A. Wilson financial secretary and Wm. Davidson sergeant-at-arms. A librarian was also elected, Julius Thelin.

to sum up the profit, from all indications it was the best known in the history of our city. There was a good variety of stock. While the prices were rather high for the quality sold to the retailers, they managed to pass it along at a good profit. Small plants sold out early, only a few large plants and baskets being left over. Roses and carnations were in good supply and quality. Violets were scarce. Orchids and valley sold well. Ferns and green goods moved in great quantities. Holly was scarce, as there was no local supply.

Various Notes.

J. Seulberger reports business as beyond expectations. Everything was sold and in a satisfactory way.

The Thorsted Floral Co. says that it was a landslide, the best in the history of the place. It was an all-night job to get the orders out.

The H. M. Sanborn Co. reports entire satisfaction with the results.

Clarke Bros. had a good clean-up; lots of stock handled at good prices and an increase over former years.

G. Rossi, of Berkeley, has sold his place to the school board, which will build on the site. The price is reported to be extremely satisfactory.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business immediately before Christmas was rather slow, but, as usual, there was a rush at the last minute, and the stores, employing, in most cases, extra help, had their hands full. There was no shortness of stock in any line. Good chrysanthemums sold well, bringing something like old-time prices. There was a large number of blooms on the market, and the quality was much better than usual at Christmas. Carnations met with a good demand, and while there was no scarcity, there were no reds to spare and increased prices did not come amiss. Roses were plentiful and of good quality. Most stores were making special efforts to sell plants, and these were in good shape and plentiful variety. The baskets of immortelles and artificial flowers were in demand up till the day preceding Christmas, when the real article was mostly sought for and purchased.

Various Notes.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy did good business in decorating stores and offices, which helped to keep help employed during the slack season before Christmas.

The Market.

The first four days of Christmas week were sharp and bright, with temperatures a little higher than those of the previous week. This weather was ideal to bring out the shoppers and it has helped the florists. Christmas day was somewhat wet, but this did not seem to interfere with trade.

The wholesale growers were cleaned out of nearly everything early in the week and the balance was called for later on. Except some varieties of cut flowers, the retailers had plenty of stock on hand and hardly anything was left over. Prices for all sorts of stock were nearly up to normal. Sales were in smaller quantities than usual, but

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg Has fulfilled every prediction made for it last season and is a big winner everywhere. There is no red rose grown that will make as satisfactory returns for the space occupied. Of exceedingly strong, sturdy growth, throwing splendid stems at all times; splendid foliage. The one best bet in red roses.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

Ophelia has proven of exceptional merit as a forcing rose; a great grower, clean and strong, very free, and a most beautiful color—brilliant salmon-pink, shading to orange. A fancy rose that you will be more than pleased with.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Killarney Brilliant This is the very last word in the Killarneys—an exceptionally strong grower, increased petalage and of heavier texture. A most brilliant and pleasing color; is doing well everywhere, and will be planted heavily this season.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer The most popular rose of its color ever introduced; has won its way to the very top on merit alone. A grand grower, very free, a splendid keeper and the most pleasing shade of pink; sells on sight, at top prices. Will be planted heavier than any other pink rose this season.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

All the new and standard varieties in quantity. Let us figure on your requirements for the coming season. We can make the price right for first-class, well grown stock.

an increased number of items seems to be the general report. Altogether it has been a satisfactory week. Several firms opened branch stores as usual, but all report a reduction in expenses this season, so that the net profits realized are doubtless equal to those of a year ago.

Various Notes.

Tonseth Floral Co. opened a temporary branch at West Park and Washington streets, and the Floral Studio opened one at Park and Alder streets. Clarke Bros. and Martin & Forbes Co. occupied temporary quarters for shipping only.

Several varieties of mums were shown, Pink Maud Dean being one of the best.

The Market.

Local florists both wholesale and retail have every reason to be satisfied with the business done this Christmas. With the finest of weather and an abundance of stock, the stores did a rushing business, the bulk of stock handled being greater than in any previous year. A great run on made-up stock is reported from all, while the potted stock moved well. Carnations were somewhat short in supply, especially red and dark pink, while violets fell far short of the demand. Roses sold well, as did Paper Whites and Romans.

Various Notes.

The California Florists did a big business, making a large increase in the store force necessary. Some exceptionally fine poinsettias were displayed, which sold well.

The Hayden-Watson Co. reports a record business. A window display of made-up stock was the feature of the store decoration.

The Smith Floral Co. had an artistic window, with a fine lot of stock, which cleaned up well.

A. A. Hinze says business was good, with plenty of stock of all kinds.

Much greens and holly was handled by the street venders, who occupied doorways and other available places to display their goods.

The Florists' Club meets January 7, at which time the new officers will be installed. J. L. S.

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results. —Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

["The Practical Book of Outdoor Rose Growing for the Home Garden," by George C. Thomas, Jr. Published by J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia. Size, about 6¼x9 inches and one and one-half inches thick. Ninety-six full-page colored plates, besides charts and halftone illustrations. Price, handsomely bound in green cloth, $4 net.]

Have you noted and fully appreciated the foregoing statement with reference to the illustrations, and especially the ninety-six colored plates? Even if the book possessed no other feature of great value, these pictures of about 100 varieties of roses, in their natural colors, would give the work high rank in interest and utility. The pictures were prepared from photographs made by the autochrome process, by means of which it is possible to reproduce all the delicate tints and shades of color with the utmost faithfulness and accuracy. It is stated that Mr. Thomas, the author, "devoted three years to making and perfecting autochrome photographs from perfect examples of roses." Such a collection of pictures, lifelike representations of the most beautiful of all flowers, must surely add immensely to the interest of the book, besides assisting greatly in the comparison and identification of varieties.

But, apart from the remarkable character of the illustrations, is the book a practical one—practical in its principles and purpose? That is the question which is uppermost in the mind of the commercial grower, especially when, as in this case, the book is written by an amateur, not by a professional florist.

Well, the same idea, the idea of the absolute necessity of practicality, seems to have been uppermost also in the mind of the author—not only uppermost, but permeating his mind entirely, as its chief motive. The constant desire to be practical is manifested throughout the book; it appears in the wording of the title; it appears in the foreword, where the author says that his aim is to supply "practical working rules"; it appears farther on, where he asserts that it is not his intention to puzzle the grower "with all the scientific details of each phase of rose culture," but to "give a good working idea of the methods employed." Then he adds: "For those who may care to follow out such matters to their utmost conclusion, the names of exhaustive works are given." The author's endeavor is to supply only such brief, pointed instructions as are needed in everyday work, but he tells the reader where to get quires and reams of more abstruse information if he wants it.

Of course, in his effort to make his book practical, the author may not have succeeded in all particulars as well as he would if he were making it his chief business to turn flowers into dollars, and the commercial grower may discover, possibly, that the book does not answer some of the questions that he would most like to ask. He may be quick to accuse the book of sins both of omission and commission.

But, on the other hand, the very fact that the author is an amateur, with abundant leisure and means for experimentation, gives his book a practical value that it would not otherwise possess. The author, it is said, "has achieved remarkable success in rose growing. It has been a lifelong hobby with him to try out all known varieties, and his rose gardens are famous." He incidentally states in his book that he has annually imported from 300 to 1,000 roses of new varieties. It would be strange if all that expenditure of time and effort and money would not be of some benefit to the commercial grower who cannot afford such expenditure.

In the chapter entitled "The Best Varieties with their Characteristics," the author gives, first, a list of "sixteen best all-round roses, which have been proved by tests to be the best adapted in beauty and usefulness to outdoor growing." This selection of sixteen is followed by a more general, comprehensive, tabulated list, occupying seventeen pages. All of the especially favored sixteen varieties and a large proportion of the others are shown in the colored illustrations.

The author's experiments are conducted on his own home grounds, in the "approximate climate of the middle Atlantic states, where the extreme temperature in winter does not often go below zero and the summer heat seldom exceeds 95 degrees," but "suggestions are also made," as he says, "for growing roses farther north and farther south."

The book is for sale by The Review at the publishers' price.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

L. C. Stark, vice-president of Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo., for Christmas remembered many of his editorial friends with cartons of Delicious apples, an ever welcome gift.

A charter has been issued to the Hoxsie Nurseries, Inc., to engage in a general nursery business at Hoxsie and Warwick, R. I. The capital stock is fixed at $10,000. The incorporators are Ralph M. Greenlaw, Charles E. Tilley and Edward J. Moons, all of Providence, R. I.

A branch of the Fresno Nursery Co., Fresno, Cal., is being opened at Oakdale, Cal. The company has leased a piece of the Southern Pacific railroad right-of-way, and W. F. Zwickey will be the resident agent. M. R. Jackson, of Fresno, has been in Oakdale making the necessary arrangements.

The Delaware County Orchard & Nursery Co., Delaware, O., has purchased the 20-acre tract adjoining the Greenwood Lake property, fronting on Lake street. The company expects to build a large greenhouse on the property. The officers of the concern are: President, J. C. Vergon; secretary, C. O. Allen, and treasurer, Ward Smith.

The contract for the landscape work about the New York state building at the San Francisco exposition has been awarded by the state commission to Siebrecht & Son, proprietors of the Rose Hill Nurseries, at New Rochelle, N. Y. The same firm will furnish the palms, ferns, bay trees, etc., for the interior decoration. Three cars of evergreens, etc., and one car of stock for use inside the building have already been shipped. Henry A. Siebrecht, Sr., is at San Francisco directing the work. This firm had the contracts for the decoration of the New York building at the Chicago and St. Louis expositions.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

The J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., of Greensboro, Pinehurst, Sprout Springs, and Pomona, N. C., was awarded the contract for beautifying the grounds of thirty stations of one of the leading railroads in the south, operating 8,000 miles of track. The company has been busy shipping stock for this work.

Lewis H. Wise, the landscape designer, of Jersey City, N. J., was engaged by the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co. to make plans for these grounds and he has just finished laying out and planting stock at Lynchburg, Va. The station grounds at this place cover about ten acres. W. W.

LICENSE TO SELL EVERGREENS.

The Supreme court of Vermont reversed a conviction under the law of that state which makes it an offense to engage in the business of selling evergreen trees without a license, the other day, because the complaint failed to show that the defendant dealt in more than twenty trees a year. The law provides that any person, firm or corporation that buys or sells in any year more than twenty evergreen trees less than seven inches in diameter at the butt as cut, not grown upon his own land, shall be deemed a "dealer in evergreen trees" within the meaning of the other provisions of the law, which make it an offense, punishable by a fine of not more than $300, to become such a dealer without taking out a license; and the court held that the burden was on the prosecution in this case to show that defendant was a "dealer" in the sense defined by the law. (State vs. Perkins, 92 Atlantic Reporter 1.). S.

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Providence, R. I.—The Everett Forestry Co. filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court here Thursday, December 24. The action followed the vote of the stockholders in the concern, taken a couple of days before, which authorized the treasurer to file the petition. The liabilities are scheduled at $15,610.06 and the assets are set at $1,407.79, all book accounts due. The company is the successor of Everett & Frost, having taken over the business about a year ago.

THE HARRISONS HEARD FROM.

The C. S. Harrison Select Nursery Co., at York, Neb., has just received a shipment of irises from England, adding to the firm's collection of 200,000 in 250 varieties. The company is enlarging its plant.

C. S. Harrison has bought, on his own account, two lots in the heart of the town of York and planted them to irises and peonies. Should the season be dry, he will be prepared to irrigate with town water.

The Harrison Nursery Co., composed of the sons of C. S. Harrison, has an interest in forty acres of oranges at Portersville, Cal., as well as in the packing company there, which has just packed 200 carloads of oranges. The Harrison Nursery Co. is doing a sales business of $100,000 a year.

Leads Straight to the
PALISADES NURSERIES

THERE you will find all kinds, and you can take your pick from the best that grow. Perennials add a feeling of permanency to your home surroundings. They change their plumage, but not their face, and keep reflecting the seasons all the year around.

FALL PLANTING—To grow most hardy perennials and old-fashioned flowers successfully, plant in October and November, like planting Spring-flowering bulbs. They then root during Fall and Winter, and are ready for Spring and Summer blooming.

No grounds are really garden without a big showing in perennials. We are headquarters for perennials, and assure the widest latitude in choice as well as the most courteous promptitude in correspondence and service. Our motto—"Maximum Quality at Minimum Cost."

northwest to the writer of the following, taken from the Spokesman-Review, of Spokane, Wash., which will be read with interest by the nurserymen who supply the fruit trees for that section:

"Reports from the state of Washington express considerable apprehension lest the rapid increase in apple orchards in that state cause a permanent overproduction which will not only tax the harvesting and shipping facilities to the limit but also affect the profitableness of the industry. This year's immense crop caused considerable annoyance, but from the official report of the department of agriculture of the state, just issued, the prospect for still greater apple yields is something to be seriously reckoned on in the future.

"According to this report, 723,199 apple trees were planted in the state of Washington alone in the spring of 1913. In the fall of 1913, 306,132 more went in, while in the spring of 1914 the number of apple trees coming into bearing was increased another 555,962, a total of 1,585,293 in less than two years. The importance of this to the apple industry, when viewed in the light of the fact that other states of the northwest also show large increases, is evident.

"Among other nursery stock planted in Washington in 1913 and the spring of 1914, as shown in the department's report, are: 366,489 pear trees, 43,435 peach trees and 130,059 cherry trees. Berries of all kinds were also planted in abundance."

PROPAGATION OF PAPAW.

Can you give me any information on how to propagate the papaw, whether from cuttings or seed? We have tried it both ways without success. N. J. N.

Sow the seeds in a warm greenhouse. Soak any dry or old looking ones first, and select seeds from the best fruit. Watch carefully to prevent damping off, and pot off when of sufficient size. The seedlings must be grafted when comparatively small. The most successful method, adopted in Florida, is to take any of the many small shoots which start when a papaw is topped, and, when it is a few inches long, sharpen it to a wedge point, head the leaves back and insert this graft in the wedge made with a sharp knife in a headed-back seedling. Grafting is found to be superior to propagation from either seed or cuttings.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Christmas trade was much heavier than was anticipated. It came up to last year in some cases and was only a little below in others, so taking it as a whole the craft has nothing to complain of, as nearly everyone thought trade would be lighter than last year. There was enough stock to go the rounds, except roses, which were in great demand toward the finish and quite a good many more of certain kinds could have been used, especially Richmond, Ward and Sunburst. There was a good supply of carnations, as most of the growers were in heavy crop. Violets sold well and were in good supply. The demand for Beauties was about equal to the supply, which was not heavy. Cut poinsettias sold well. The supply of azaleas was heavy, but they were all cleaned up. Cincinnati begonias moved nicely. Cyclamens, poinsettias, primulas, etc., all found a ready sale and made deliveries extra heavy, as it turned quite cold Christmas eve. Christmas trees were at a premium. J. M.

DENVER.

The Market.

Most of the stores report Christmas business as good as last year, while two or three retailers claim to have done the biggest business of any Christmas that they can remember. Azaleas were the best sellers; they were to be had at a wide range of prices, from small Petricks in 4-inch pots, which retailed at $1.25, to some large plants of Hexe, at from $15 to $18. Poinsettias seem to be losing favor every year. A surprisingly small number of them were sold this year. Next to azaleas, cyclamens were perhaps the best sellers and then Lorraine begonias, Jerusalem cherries, primulas and cinerarias in the order named.

A large number of baskets filled with holly, winterberries, California holly, pine cones and red ribbon were sold at prices ranging from $1 to $10.

Cut flowers of all kinds were plentiful and the demand for them good. Carnations retailed from $1 to $1.50 for pink and white to $1.50 to $2 for the reds. Pink and white roses brought from $2 to $4 and the red ones $3 to $5 per dozen. American Beauties were in good demand and brought from $6 to $18 per dozen. Violets and sweet peas sold at $3 per hundred and orchids at $1.50 each. Corsage bouquets sold better this Christmas than ever before. R. S.

Kankakee, Ill.—Charles Schafer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis December 16, is improving.

MATCHLESS A GREAT SUCCESS

This Ought to Be OF INTEREST to YOU that local growers have placed the largest individual orders for my new Carnation "ALICE," offered to the trade this season. Some have doubled and trebled their orders on successive visits.

The color is an exquisite shade of clear, soft pink, midway between Enchantress and Gloriosa. Habit of plant, ideal, strong, very early and a continuous and without doubt the most productive commercial variety I have offered to date.

Prices—Per 100, $12.00; per 1000, $100.00; per 2500, $237.50; per 5000, $450.00; per 10,000, $800.00.

If you have not seen it, send for descriptive circular and get your order in now.

Cerise Winsor

A VARIETY EVERY GROWER WILL WELCOME.

This is a sport of Winsor, known everywhere as a variety that is easy to grow—everybody does it well. Has the same habit as Winsor, with darker foliage and larger buds and flowers—a fine deep cerise pink. A free bloomer and a good shipper. Will fill a need in its color. ROOTED CUTTINGS.....$10.00 per 100; $80.00 per 1000.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

In spite of rain, wind and snow December 24 and 25, everything salable was moved at good prices, trade being much better than that for any previous Christmas. On account of so much cloudy weather beforehand, it was necessary to buy a few cut flowers from other markets, but plants of all kinds were plentiful and of excellent quality, and were more in demand than cut flowers. Medium-sized azaleas and cyclamens predominated, while begonias, poinsettias and other plants sold fairly well. On account of the extremely bad weather, delivery was a difficult task, but few complaints have been registered.

Various Notes.

C. W. Crouch had a fine trade and sold out everything clean. Cut flowers, as well as all plants, sold well.

C. L. Baum is well pleased with the results of Christmas trade. On comparison, he finds it better by twenty per cent than any previous Christmas. He had a large amount of funeral work during the week, which, with the enormous Christmas trade, worked his force both day and night.

A. H. Dailey finds that inexpensive potted plants are far better sellers at Christmas time than cut flowers. He sold out practically everything.

Mrs. Rosa Hall Ryno reports a splendid trade, with an increase of twenty-five per cent over that of last year. She had a large supply of poinsettias, which found ready sale at good prices.

Addison J. McNutt, although he has not yet made comparison, feels confident of a nice increase over Christmas of 1913. R. E. M.

Hamilton, Ill.—C. P. Lindsey has erected a greenhouse, 21x100 feet, in which he is growing vegetables for market. He plans to put in flowers as time passes. A Kroeschell boiler is installed and up-to-date equipment of every kind has been provided. The plant has been named the Montebello Gardens.

NOTICE

Inasmuch as Mr. Chas. L. Baum has registered a yellow sport from Mrs. Chas. Rager, and in order to avoid confusion in the future, we have decided to disseminate our stock under the same name. The two sports are identical and will be known in the future as Miss Lena Baum.

Don't fail to plant some of this splendid new variety the coming season. You will find it just as satisfactory to grow and as good a seller as its parent, the only difference being in the color and that is a splendid shade of clear light yellow.

Delivery will begin in February at the following rates, from 2-inch pots:—

	Dozen	Hundred
February and March delivery	$5.00	$40.00
April and May delivery	4.00	30.00
June and later	2.00	15.00

THE THIRD EDITION

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear

ERIE, PA.

The Market.

Although business has not the snap of former years, the florists' spirits are buoyed up by the Christmas trade. It proved better than was expected under the circumstances. Every florist was busy. Some of the retailers worked until 5 p. m. Christmas day, and all the flower shops were open until noon.

Various Notes.

A succession of notable society events is causing a big demand for Beauties, orchids, lilies, sweet peas, violets, pink and white roses, all kinds of decorative evergreens and large baskets. One of the foremost in elegance and beauty was a large reception held at Music hall Wednesday evening, December 23. The decorations for this event were elaborate and expensive. Smith & Fetters Co., of Cleveland, and John Laver, of Erie, were the decorators.

Our wholesale house, the Erie Floral Co., reports a satisfactory demand for stock.

Charles G. Offerle has purchased a fine new delivery car. M. W. M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

For Christmas week there was a good supply of about everything incidental to the yuletide, and everything was practically cleaned up. Red stock in plants and cut flowers had the first call, and azaleas, begonias, poinsettias and cyclamens in pots moved readily and at fairly good prices. In cut flowers, poinsettias, carnations, roses and other red blooms were easily disposed of. Prices advanced slightly, but clear, crisp weather served to keep stock moving as fast as it came into the market.

Various Notes.

The Hogg Greenhouses, Theodore R. Peterson, proprietor, did a big business in miniature Japanese gardens, the novelty taking well.

Macnair, of the Sunshine Shop, on Weybosset street, had a big drive on partridge berry bowls, selling several thousand.

Charles W. Morey, of Woonsocket, has received the contract to remove a number of trees from the highways in that city.

William B. King, of Apponaug, has been elected a member of the executive committee of the Apponaug fire district.

A large new icebox has been installed by Alfred Carpenter, at the Union Station Flower Stand.

Mrs. K. Max, of San Francisco, is visiting her brother, Joseph Koppelman, and her sisters, Mrs. Charles Smith, of this city, and Mrs. Nathan Fishelson, of Boston, for a few weeks.

William Doel, of the Pascoag Greenhouses, has been having a remarkably fine cut of carnations. He reports a clean-up business for Christmas.

Barney Bros. have discontinued their flower store in this city after a two months' trial.

At the final meeting of the common council Monday evening, December 21, the body unanimously adopted a resolution presented by one of its members to omit the usual floral tributes on inauguration day and asking their friends to send the money to some of the charitable funds. As the municipal inauguration usually calls for a large number of baskets, bouquets, etc., if the resolution is adhered to the local florists will lose several hundred dollars. W. H. M.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING A VIOLET HOUSE.

I am about to build a greenhouse, 20x50, even-span, with no glass in the side walls, but with glass in one end. Please state the size and number of pipes that will be needed and the best arrangement of them. The house is to be used for violets in solid beds. The location is southeastern New Hampshire. H. M. J.

If the house is well built and only moderately exposed to the sweep of the wind, it can be heated for growing violets by running a 2½-inch flow pipe two feet under the ridge and from this feeding two coils, each containing three 2-inch pipes, which should run from the middle of the end of the house to the corners and back to the boiler on the walls. This would amount to about sixty feet of 2½-inch flow pipe and 360 feet of 2-inch pipe for the returns, in addition to the amount required to connect with the boiler. In mild weather not over two pipes in each coil will be needed, and it will be well to place a valve upon one pipe in each coil rather than rely entirely upon keeping down the temperature by means of ventilating and low firing.

TO AVOID FROZEN TANK PIPES.

I am erecting a tank, 8x12, on a steel tower forty feet high, close to my hot water boiler. I intend to use the tank as an expansion tank and want to find out the best way to keep the pipes from freezing. My location, you will notice, is in northern Missouri. I intend to lay a tight floor under the tank, thus making a dead air space under the tank, and I shall also put a tight cover over the top. I shall build a tight box around the pipes leading to the tank. Could I place a coil of hot water pipes in the bottom of the box and keep them from freezing, or would they freeze at the bottom of the tank where the water starts out? Would it take much heat to run a pipe into the tank and keep the water above freezing point? I do not want to put too much more work on the boiler. I think myself that some hot water pipes at the bottom of the box would be the best arrangement, as I do not think a tank ever freezes at the bottom, but I should like to know positively about this. Any information in regard to the size of the pipes or the method of installing them would be greatly appreciated.

B. A. B.

It would be possible, no doubt, to box in the pipes leading to the tank, so that they would not freeze, by using two 2-inch dead air spaces and using two others of the same size filled with mineral wool. But, since the tank is close to the boiler, I would prefer to run a 1-inch pipe from the top of the boiler to a point just below the tank and there connect it with the pipe leading to the tank, which should be connected inside the greenhouse with one

The Value of a Thermostat

LET A FLORIST TELL IT

HERE is what a greenhouse man said in a letter to The Review: "The value of a thermostat in a greenhouse may possibly interest you, so I take the present opportunity of explaining its advantages. Three weeks ago I installed a Standard thermostat, made by the Standard Thermometer Co., putting it in my rose house, 200 feet from the residence. After sundown each day I set the low contact hand at 57 degrees and the high contact hand at 65 degrees. The black temperature hand, to record 60 degrees, plays between these figures. Should the temperature rise or fall, the alarm bell, just over my bed, rings loudly. I consider this instrument a boon to any florist with a medium-sized range, for it dispenses with the services of a night fireman. With correct firing, I can keep a steady temperature of 60 degrees at night in the rose house and also in four other houses, in all about 5000 feet of glass."—THOMAS E. TOWERSON, Spring Station, Ky.

of the return pipes near the boiler. There will be a rapid upward flow of hot water, and a corresponding downward flow through the main tank pipe. To prevent loss of heat, these pipes should both be wrapped, although there would be no danger of their freezing. The hot water will enter the tank and keep it considerably above the freezing point.

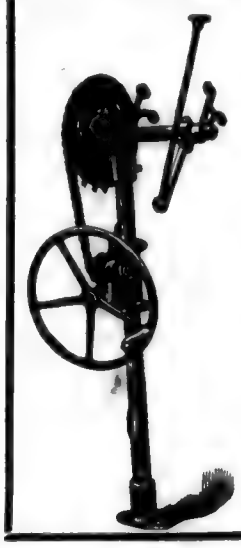
If more convenient, the flow pipe could be connected directly with the tank at the bottom. The plan of building a floor under the tank, as well as providing a cover, is a good one, and a box should also be built around the pipes. If the flow pipe is connected as suggested, there will be no occasion for using a coil of heating pipes inside the box.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Christmas business, from the retailers' point of view, was immense; from the wholesalers' point of view, good, and from the growers' point of view anything but good. The supply was abnormally large and forced prices down to a point that was hardly above the pre-holiday prices. The retailer, buying thus cheaply, was in a position to realize handsome profits. Carnations and roses went begging. This fact included even American Beauties and red carnations. Violets were about the only flower that cleaned up readily. All others moved rather indifferently. Plants sold well and were more popular than in previous years.

After Christmas receipts continued heavy. Plenty of stock of all kinds is available and it is of a high average quality. The demand, however, is not any too strong and it is absolutely impossible to effect clearances.



Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell reports a good demand for red berries, boxwood and club moss for the holiday trade.

Last week's visitors included Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.; J. T. Herdegen, Aurora, Ind.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Henry Lodder, Walter Gray and Karl Heiser, Hamilton, O.

C. H. H.

William Murphy's friends perpetrated a surprise at his home Christmas day, when they provided a Christmas tree decorated with toys and various messages of good cheer. Mr. Murphy has been confined to his room for eight weeks and the remembrances from his friends helped greatly in brightening his Christmas day.

The Market.

As predicted by the writer a few weeks ago, this was the best Christmas ever experienced by local florists. Every retail man spoken to so far says his sales ran away ahead of last year's. It appears that the only flower which was not in as heavy demand as expected was the carnation. Possibly this is due to the great demand for baskets of ferns, etc. These are purchased by those who would otherwise fall back on flowers less expensive than roses. The demand for Beauties this year was exceedingly good. Red roses also cleaned up well. Violets were quite popular.

In plants the demand was especially heavy for azaleas, poinsettias and begonias. Baskets also sold well.

Various Notes.

Asman & Dunn report a big holiday trade, as do J. K. Stock and George Davis.

The L. Bemb Floral Co. was kept on the jump every minute. This firm has an extensive telegraph trade and no doubt handles the bulk of the out-of-town orders coming to this city. The company also specializes in table decorating, and this work alone keeps considerable help busy.

John Breitmeyer's Sons, it is needless to say, had all they could comfortably handle. They had as many as fifteen automobiles going on Thursday, and found this none too many.

B. Schroeter does perhaps the largest plant business in the city, and one order alone amounted to $250 for baskets. This firm also had a big run on prepared material and disposed of immense quantities.

E. A. Fetters had his window beautifully decorated as usual, but Wednesday noon, December 23, the cotton used caught fire in some manner and the whole decoration went up in smoke. For a minute it was thought that the store would follow, but fortunately the fire was confined to the window. Much fine stock was lost.

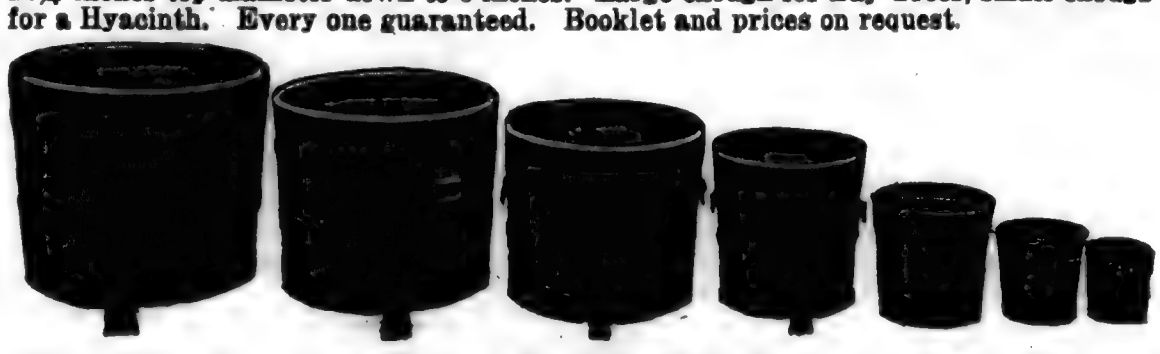
Both J. F. Sullivan and Norman Sullivan report the best trade ever experienced in the history of their respective stores. Norman Sullivan had just put a new delivery car into service and is wondering how he ever got along without it.

The Schroeter-Stahelin Co. reports a splendid Christmas trade, far beyond all expectations. The firm had several dinner decorations during the week, which added considerably to the total receipts.

John M. Carey did a big business. He recently repainted the whole interior of his store, making it quite attractive.

The Detroit Floral Co., Robt. Flowerday, Jr., manager, reports a splendid holiday trade.

Miesel Bros., who recently opened a new store in the eastern part of the city, had a fine trade at both their stores.



The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange is well pleased with the result of the Christmas trade. They supplied the greater part of the holly used here and also sold immense quantities of prepared material of every description. Unfortunately, through the delay of the express companies in handling stock, they lost the sale of many thousand violets and many Beauties, which arrived too late to be of any use.

Walter Taepke is highly elated over Christmas business. He had a splendid showing of plants and cut flowers, and cleaned up remarkably well. H. S.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Christmas business was a riot; that is the only way to describe it. Some stores, particularly those in the down-town district, began to be busy Saturday, December 19, and by Tuesday they were rushed. Thursday saw the beginning of the riot. Anything and everything sold well. There were no leaders this year; each sold what he had and sold it all. Stores that were filled with over a thousand plants, baskets, etc., a few days before Christmas had only a dozen or so left when the rush was over. Cut flowers went well, but not so fast as plants, which had first call at nearly all stores. The gross amount of sales was away ahead of any other year. Low to medium prices prevailed on all plants. Extra large, high-priced stock was not called for; in fact, the storemen had seemed not to make any preparation for it.

Plants at $3 to $5 each had a fine call. As to the stock, it was fine. Potted stock of all kind, azaleas, poinsettias, cherries, cyclamens, etc., were well grown. In fact, it was the best and largest Christmas stock ever handled in Cleveland stores.

Beauties were above the average in quality and quantity. Roses, carnations, valley, etc., were equal to all demands, with quality fine. As usual, some growers tried to see how long red carnations would keep, but kept them just a day too long. There was less pickled stock this year than in other years. We are all gradually getting educated one way or another. Double violets from the east were late in getting in. One wholesaler kept a taxi at the depot waiting to rush the violets as soon as they came in, but they did not come until Christmas morning, when it was too late. Thousands were refused and thrown out.

There is only one reason for this rush of business at a time when all business is sluggish and below the average; that is, coöperative advertising. As mentioned in these notes before, a fund of $300 had been guaranteed by the florists to be used for newspaper advertising. The job was well done by all the newspapers and much extra advertising was gained in the news sections. This was the first time this kind of advertising has been tried here, other than for Mothers' day. It should stand repeating Valentine's day, February 14. It is sure to repay well any amount of money subscribed to it. F. A. F.

GOOD NEWS

WITH the advent of the New Year, we desire to take this opportunity of advising our old friends and customers as well as our new friends and prospective customers, that a busy force of bricklayers, concrete men, carpenters, painters, glaziers and electricians have been at work for several weeks, and are now nearing completion with the work of repairs and additions which, when complete, will ADD to our factory floor space which will mean that our factory space will be two and seven-tenths times its size in 1915 than in 1914, this together with additional lumber yard room of about (150) one hundred and fifty per cent, with an additional railroad switch for receiving lumber, iron, steel, glass, etc. A large north, light room for our estimators and draftsmen, with the addition of more machinery, will place us in a position to do a business nearly three times as large as in 1914.

ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY PER CENT

We now have on hand thousands of HOT BED SASH, and machines working on more, and it will pay you to get our prices on same.

Our Capacity for Manufacture of Greenhouses is Almost Unlimited

We wish to thank our good friends who have helped to make 1914 a banner year for us, and to assure them and their friends that any size order from one Hot Bed Sash to the largest Range of Greenhouses will be appreciated and will receive our careful attention.

A visit to our factory will convince you that our machinery and shipping facilities are unequaled. Come and See Us. You will not regret the time spent.

Wishing You a Happy, Prosperous New Year, we await your commands.

This is what happens to wooden posts in a few years.

Our wrought iron post ought to last a half century or more.

How Our Greenhouse Posts Save You Money

THEY SAVE YOU MONEY by making you spend less money. Putting it the other way about—you do actually spend more at the very start—but that's the end of it.

Listen to this—30 years ago we put up some houses for the Piersons at Scarboro, N. Y., and used wrought iron posts. Five years ago in replacing the base board they dug down around the post just to see how it was, and found it practically as good as the day it was put in. But listen once more—these posts were wrought iron—not steel.

Wrought iron is hard to get these days. You may pay for wrought iron, but that's no surety that it's not steel. The firm you buy it of might buy it of a firm who "said it was." We don't take anybody's "say-so" for anything we buy—we test everything. It's the only safe and sure way.

Of course, we would like to sell you materials for your entire house, but if you are not quite ready for that yet, then why don't you try our guaranteed wrought iron post and patented galvanized Ice Clearing Eave Plate with roof bar clasps attached? It would be sure enough a good start in the right direction. Tell us the length of your house and we will tell you exactly what the guaranteed wrought iron posts and galvanized eave plate and clasps will cost.

CARNATIONS.

CARNATIONS,
ROOTED CUTTINGS
NOW READY.

It doesn't pay to propagate one's own stock. In the first place, unless great care is taken the stock loses vitality from year to year, and, in the second place, you can buy of us cheaper than you can root them. But don't buy the surplus of some grower—buy of a specialist—like ourselves, where every care is taken to build up and strengthen the stock plants and retain the free blooming qualities of the varieties. We offer:

PEERLESS PINK. Dark pink, the ideal carnation. Making good with those who bought last year. Very free bloomer, nice even color. The money maker. Rooted cuttings, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

500,000 CARNATION CUTTINGS.

We are devoting our entire plant to the growing of carnation cuttings. Our stock plants are grown cool and not allowed to flower, so all the strength goes to the cuttings. Experience had proved beyond question that these are far superior to cuttings taken from flowering plants. We have an abundance of stock and our propagators are instructed to use only perfect cuttings. These are now rooting nearly 100%.

We invite you to come and see our stock.

GOOD STOCK for you for another season means SUCCESS; POOR STOCK means FAILURE.

Our guarantee goes with every cutting and, if not satisfactory, may be returned and money back.

New Albany, Ind.—Fifty dwarf orange trees in the greenhouses of J. G. Bettman & Sons, at 1601 East Main street, are in bearing.

Olean, N. Y.—The greenhouses of Elmer Rawlings, which were moved to his new establishment, at Allegany, N. Y., about two miles from the old location, are all erected and filled with a large stock of geraniums and other plants in which he specializes. Pansies are grown in large quantities. His new place has many advantages, chief among which is the nearness to the express office. Business has been good all autumn.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First and second volumes just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

CLASS ARTICLES.

Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling.

GENERAL INDEX.

The final volume will contain a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind. With the Index, Key, Synopsis and alphabetical arrangement of the Cyclopedia, any reasonable question asked by the consultant will receive a ready answer.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

It is 60 feet wide and 400 feet long. The sides are 7 feet high, with 18 inch transom sash, operated with our close working apparatus. The power plant is a model one—in fact, one of the finest in New England. It is connected to the greenhouse by a glass passage house 10 feet wide and 25 feet long.

First Big House of the New Sinclair Range at Smith's Ferry, Mass.

IN a recent issue of Horticulture, I ran across a little write-up of the big house of Sinclair's, that handles the subject so well that I am just going to reprint it here.

"The house is of the most up-to-date construction in every particular. It is 60 feet wide and 400 feet long. On one side it is connected to the service building by a 10 feet by 25 feet passage.

"The house is of flat-rafter iron-frame construction, having only two supports across it, giving an unbroken space 34 feet wide between the columns. The central span is supported by a compression truss composed of double angles. The columns are of double angles riveted together, and all of the different members are connected to each other by steel gusset plates. The side posts and rafters are in one piece from the ground line to the column; the roof pitch being obtained by bending the rafters while at white heat. The side posts are bolted to heavy cast iron flanged bases.

"The galvanized 'Z' shaped eave plates are 7 feet high, and the sides are arranged for a continuous side ventilating sash directly below the eaves, solid glass below the sash and 5-in. thick concrete wall to the ground. An important feature of the ventilating apparatus is the Tell Tale Device which is attached to each machine directly above the hand wheel, showing accurately in inches the amount of roof sash openings.

"The heat is gravity steam. One-half of the house is benched for carnations, and in this end the heating pipes are placed under each bench and along the sides. The other end of the house was left open for sweet peas, and the heating coils are carried on the side walls and columns; the returns being placed in a trench which runs both lengthwise and across the house.

"With the exception of the service building and chimney, which were built by a local contractor, Hitchings & Company had the contract for the entire job."

RE-GLAZING A HEAVY EXPENSE.

A wood that will hold glazing "points" and continue to hold them is one that's worth while in Greenhouse construction. Cypress is of that sort, and besides holding the point it does not rot as quickly as most other woods. It "stays put."

So with putty. Cypress takes kindly to putty, and keeps the glass well puttied in. Frost does not work havoc on Cypress. Neither does heat and cold, nor wet and dry conditions.

These suggestions have a cashable value to you, Mr. Greenhouse Man, if you will but act upon them at re-glazing time.

...ell, of which something of a specialty has been made.

December 15 A. Albert, at Sixtieth and Gibson avenue, met with a serious loss through the failure of his night man to keep up steam. He alleges intoxication and estimates his loss at from $700 to $1,000. There are ten houses, leased from the estate of J. Gibson McIlvaine & Co. Mr. Albert has been in possession only three months.

Where $5 Would Have Saved a Freeze-out

Why do growers persist in taking such long chances? There are scores of instances where the investment of a few dollars has saved a whole season's work—but there are too many cases where the failure to have a little, inexpensive Standard Thermostat has resulted in big losses.

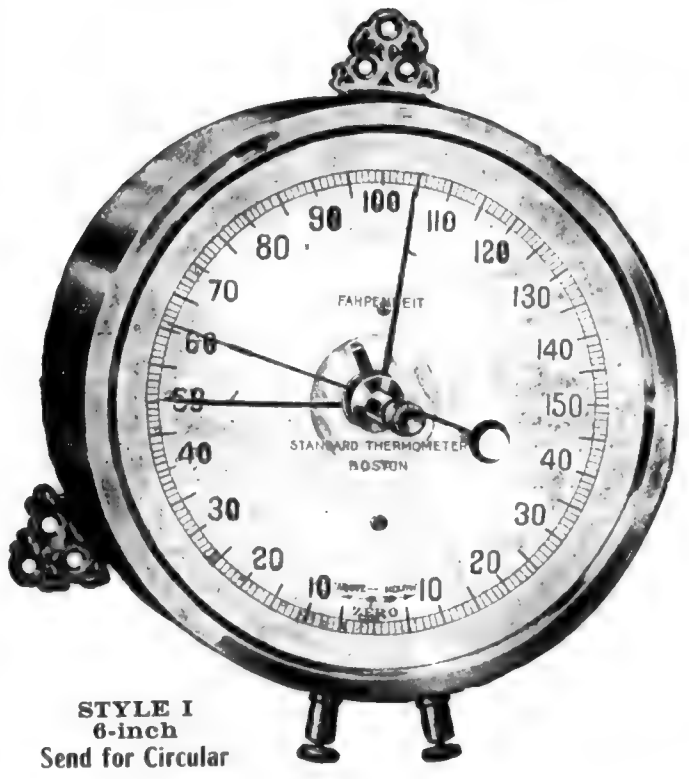

WHAT $5.00 WILL DO

On a certain February 11, B. L. Elliott, of Pittsburgh, was awakened by the ringing of his Standard thermostat alarm. He found his previously reliable night man fast asleep, and the temperature falling fast. In another half hour he would have lost $30,000.

Two nights later the night fireman of E. J. Ahern, Wellesley, Mass., met with a fall that rendered him unconscious. He had no Standard thermostat alarm and the entire place froze up solid.

This simple Standard thermostat is on the job night and day. Adjust the hands at whatever point you please and the thermostat WILL RING A BELL whenever the temperature rises or falls to the danger point. You can locate the bell at your bedside or anywhere else you please. Anybody can put it up.

The price of this efficient instrument is only $5.00.

TWO EXPERT FLORISTS

Visited our place the past week to see if we did our grafting in a manner that would suit their requirements. These men are great big growers and require first-class work.

They expressed themselves as well pleased—as satisfied—that we use the best grade of English Manetti, and that we know how to do the work. We welcome inspection from any prospective purchaser of grafted roses.

We have all the new kinds as well as the older roses.

Our baby yellow rose, Geo. Elgar, is meeting with favor with visitors here, and with the retailers everywhere. Flowers the size of Cecile Brunner, but bright yellow. Samples sent if you are interested in planting it.

One of Our Customers

Wrote us a few days ago that our assorted ten dollar boxes of roses was the best way for the storeman to buy that he had ever seen.

This man has been getting these boxes of us three times a week all winter, leaving the selection to us. Our packing girls select the kinds that are in best crop, and best selling condition, and always give a big ten dollars' worth.

He went on to say in his letter that the roses always came in such fine condition—so fresh, and free from the usual results of too many handlings—that they were so carefully packed, and that he liked the light wooden boxes we use.

We are cutting large crops of splendid roses now, and welcome an opportunity of showing new customers one of our assorted boxes, at five, ten or twenty dollars.

Or if you wish—tell us the kind you like—the grades—and we will ship you good stock at five to ten cents.

Our baby yellow rose, Geo. Elgar, is meeting with favor with visitors here, and with the retailers everywhere. Flowers the size of Cecile Brunner, but bright yellow. Samples sent if you are interested in planting it.

One of Our Customers

Wrote us a few days ago that our assorted ten dollar boxes of roses was the best way for the storeman to buy that he had ever seen.

This man has been getting these boxes of us three times a week all winter, leaving the selection to us. Our packing girls select the kinds that are in best crop, and best selling condition, and always give a big ten dollars' worth.

He went on to say in his letter that the roses always came in such fine condition—so fresh, and free from the usual results of too many handlings—that they were so carefully packed, and that he liked the light wooden boxes we use.

We are cutting large crops of splendid roses now, and welcome an opportunity of showing new customers one of our assorted boxes, at five, ten or twenty dollars.

Or if you wish—tell us the kind you like—the grades—and we will ship you good stock at five to ten cents.

KEEP YOUR PLANTS FROM FREEZING

BY USING THE FAMOUS

Clark Indestructible Steel Heaters

Made in 20 styles and sizes, from 90c up each. Over half a million in use by florists and those who ride or drive in cold weather.

Do not confuse Clark Heaters with inferior makes using sand or gravel under the covers.

Clark Heaters are for service, not weight.

THE HEAT IS SUPPLIED BY

Clark Carbon

The only fuel brick made that always comes of uniform good quality. It never disappoints—never remains half consumed, like other bricks.

Each brick of Clark Carbon is guaranteed to last longer and yield more heat than any other brick made.

Always buy Clark Carbon for good results.

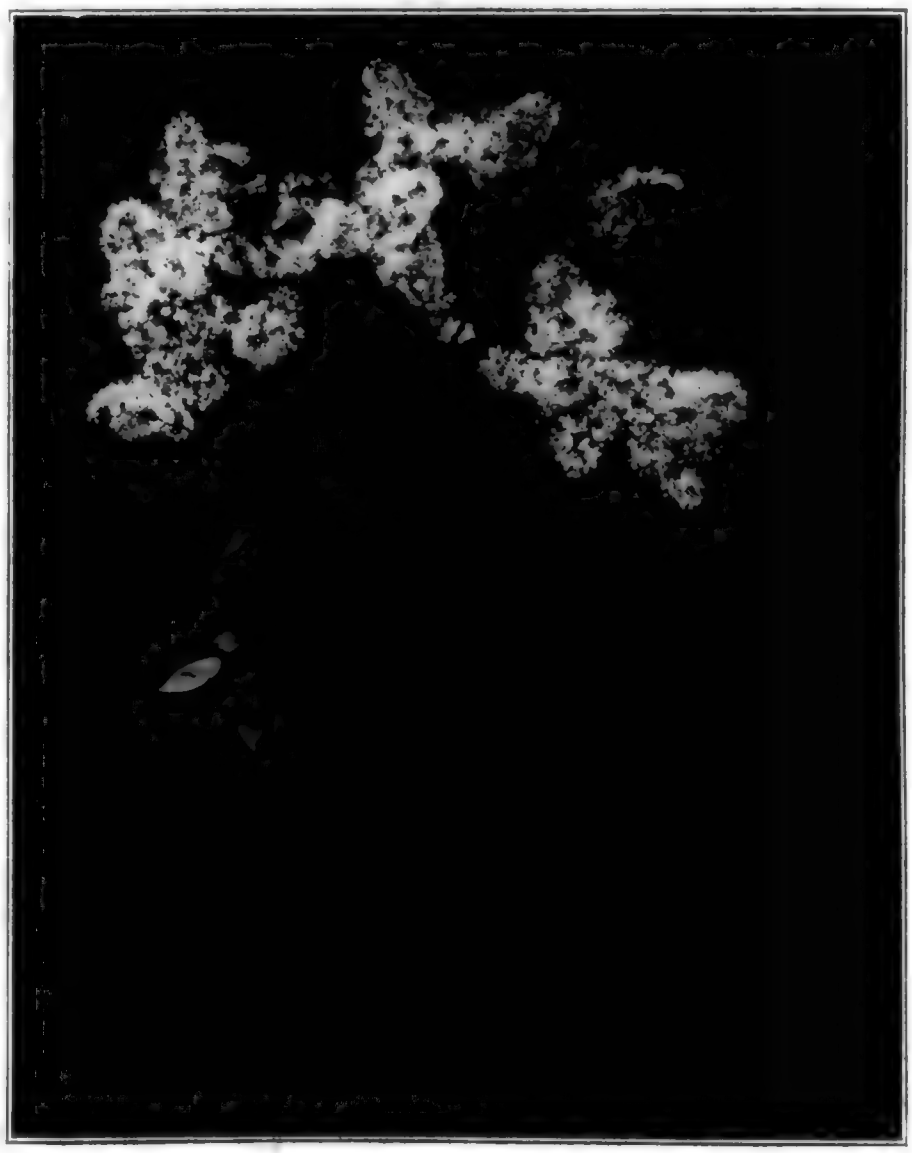
GAIN OR LOSS IN GREENHOUSE LILAC

Lilac forcing in America is a comparatively insignificant part of the florists' business. Is this entirely due to natural and economic conditions, which necessarily make lilac forcing unprofitable in this country, or is it partly due to the growers' neglect to develop the lilac's possibilities? The growers in general, rather than the writer of this article, must answer that question.

IN a general way the adage, "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well," may be as truthful as it is aged and revered, but it may sometimes be dangerous doctrine, nevertheless. Its wholesomeness and practical truthfulness depend on circumstances. If a grower, or other person, is naturally and persistently careless and slovenly, there may be no better motto to offer him than the old saying just quoted; it should be presented to him at every opportunity, rubbed into him and administered to him in every possible way. On the other hand, if a grower, or other person, is constitutionally so painstaking that his methods are too slow and expensive, it would be manifestly absurd to lecture him continually about the necessity of doing his work well; he needs admonition of an entirely different sort. Thus our teaching or preaching, in which we all indulge a little, should be modified sometimes—it really should—to fit our audience. Not to please our audience, you will notice, but to fit it.



Worth Doing Well.

However, with reference to the forcing of lilac in America, there seems to be little or no danger of overworking the maxim that, if it is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well. In the case of many florists, it may not be wise to attempt the forcing of lilac, if only for the reason that it needs more heat than do most other crops, but he who does undertake the job should resolve to do it at least a little better than it is generally done, for it is not generally done any too well. At many greenhouse establishments which otherwise hold a high rank, the forcing of lilac is one of the little side issues—so far to one side, indeed, that it is liable to be neglected. Of course, there are some exceptionally good lilac forcers in America, but that is just the trouble—they are exceptional. The majority of growers have not thought it worth while to make any serious endeavor to force this plant.

For instance, once upon a time there was a certain grower who conducted his business on a large scale and usually with great success, but his manner of forcing lilac may be described as follows, so far as it is capable of description:

A Hit-or-Miss Method.

One of his brick-covered boilers protruded into one of the greenhouses. When the lilac season arrived, a batch of potted lilacs was set on fop of said protruding boiler, and left there with a brief parting benediction or "Good luck to you!" When the man with the hose reached that end of the greenhouse, the lilacs had an uncertain prospect of receiving, or not receiving, more or less of the refreshing moisture which was swished and splashed around promiscuously, as in a tempestuous, erratic spring rain storm. On account of their lofty and isolated position on the boiler top, the lilacs were not always reached even by the edge of the hose-dispensed showers. If the lilacs flourished under such treatment, the grower was able to supply the chance midwinter demand for lilac plants or blooms. If the treatment resulted in failure—why, the failure was half expected, anyway, and there was no severe shock of disappointment. Since there were no great hopes, there were no great regrets. The whole process was a simple one and was not accompanied with much worry. In the estimation of this grower, it was a small matter at any rate; the resulting profit or loss was not seriously considered.

Forced Plant of Marie Legraye Lilac.

A Matter of Money.

It must not be imagined for an instant that there is any intention in this article to disparage the American grower because the lilac as a greenhouse plant has much less commercial importance in this country than in Europe. The whole question is, as it must be, strictly a "matter o' money"—said to have been one pupil's way of spelling "matrimony." There are generally the best of practical reasons for the fact that certain flowers are popular, both in the trade and out of it, while other flowers, even though as meritorious as the lilac, receive small consideration. The average American grower is shrewd enough so that he does not miss many opportunities for profit. If in the forcing of lilac, under American conditions, there are golden opportunities, or silver ones, that have not yet been discovered, the American grower is certain to discover them sooner or later. Though American growers, as a class, could undoubtedly increase the popularity of the lilac by giving greater attention to the forcing of it, they might not find it remunerative to do so. They have reasons for believing, at least, that they are pushing the flowers which bring them the best returns.

But the fact remains that if a grower undertakes to force lilac at all, he should do the work well, at least fairly well, for careful, systematic methods are economical and profitable, while slipshod methods are wasteful.

As Some Experts Do It.

The following suggestions on lilac forcing embody, in the main, the ideas advocated by B. B. C. Felix, of Felix & Dykhuis, Boskoop, Holland. But, as the opinions of other experts are also introduced to some extent, and blended with the views of the Holland grower, he might not wish to be held responsible for the entire method of forcing as here outlined.

Most of the lilacs used in America for forcing are imported and they should be pot-grown plants, so pruned as to be well branched and of compact habit. Grafted plants are nearly always preferred, as they are much more easily and quickly prepared for forcing than is the own-root stock.

Before a lilac can be forced into bloom, it must have a period of rest. The plants, when grown in pots, go into a dormant state about the latter part of October. It is essential at this time to keep the plants somewhat dry, so that the wood may ripen early and thoroughly. When the foliage has dropped off, the plants are stored where they are sheltered from severe frost. A slight frost will be beneficial, as will be explained farther on.

When the lilac plant goes into a dormant state in October, nature has not yet fulfilled its task. Although the superficial observer sees nothing uncommon on the buds, inside of them there go on a number of chemical processes that make them ready for the coming spring. Not before the buds are fully prepared can a full-sized flower be produced. Before the plants are forced into flower, therefore, it is necessary that the period of rest be sufficiently advanced. That is why a plant forced in January or February forces more easily and gives better results than when forced in December.

Shortening the Rest Period.

To shorten this period of rest, freezing, hot water treatment or etherizing is applied with good results. Plants that have been exposed to frost have their period of rest shortened. For this reason it is advisable to heel the plants in outside so they are exposed to frost. Hot water treatment is best applied in a basin of water at a temperature of 85 to 95 degrees. Only the buds and shoots need to be treated; the root balls are left out. This treatment takes about six to ten hours. If the temperature of the water is lower, say at 70 to 80 degrees, ten to twelve hours will be necessary. Plants that have been exposed to frost need shorter treatment. Etherizing is done in an airtight box in which ether is placed and vaporized. This treatment takes about twenty-four hours.

Lilacs can be had in bloom at Christmas, but the success with them is not sure when they are not previously exposed in one of the three ways to shorten the rest period. It is therefore advisable not to bring more plants inside than is necessary, for the results are uncertain. The later the plants are brought inside, the better. They force more easily and make better flowers and trusses.

Temperature and Moisture.

It is well to allow about five weeks for the earliest forcing. A high temperature is necessary, beginning at 60 degrees for the first few days and increasing to 75 or 80 degrees.

Care must be taken to spray abundantly three or four times a day, through the branches and buds, and also to have the root balls in the pots sufficiently wet. On account of this spraying, the surface of the soil will look rather wet, but this is deceitful, for the lower parts of the roots are sometimes too dry. On the other hand, the roots should not be too wet. The plants do not consume much water in the first eight days and if too wet, the roots will rot. Here it is where the forcer should use his own judgment. The buds have to be constantly kept moist. Within ten to twelve days the buds break open and are about of a finger length. This is the time to lessen the heat until the trusses have attained their full size, which takes about two and one-half weeks. Also the spraying should methodically be lessened. When the flowers begin to expand, a thin spray once or twice a day will be sufficient. If the flowers are open the spraying should be stopped. Spraying on the open trusses is ruinous to the blooms.

Later in the Season.

Of course the aforementioned temperatures can be reduced with advantage to the flowers if there is no reason for hurry. And late in the winter, as the natural flowering season of the lilac draws nearer, the plants can be easily forced into bloom in a comparatively low temperature. In March and April they can be forced in any ordinary house where the night temperature is about 60 degrees. The bright-hued varieties are often forced in darkened rooms, or in temporary forcing boxes or frames, in order to blanch the colors. Show plants in pots, however, should be grown in full light, in order to preserve good foliage.

Marie Legraye, single white, is the easiest to force, and consequently the earliest. After this variety come Charles X, single lavender; Souvenir de Louis Späth, single purple; Mme. Lemoine, double white, and President Grevy, double lavender. These are the varieties that give best satisfaction, according to Mr. Felix. Some growers recommend Mme. Casimir Perier, double white, as one of the best of the doubles for early forcing. It is generally agreed, however, that there is no variety that excels Marie Legraye.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS

Rotterdam, Holland.—Although it might be expected that in time of war the sale of flowers, usually considered a luxury, would suffer, prices obtained here are satisfactory. The increase in the exportation of bulbs this year is not so fine a showing as it seems, for sales were made under disadvantageous circumstances and collections are causing a little uneasiness.

Hamburg, Germany.—The American shipments of valley pips have nearly all been dispatched, mostly via Danish ports but a few via Rotterdam. There are, however, great quantities for which there is no immediate market and which are being frozen in cold stores to await developments. The United States will not for the present be asked to absorb more than the usual quantities.

London, England.—There is a persistent but unverified rumor of the loss of a ship carrying large quantities of seeds from the south of France to England. Rumor has it that the cargo contains 2,000 tons of seeds, for a number of consignees. As one commentator says: "It is no trifling matter, under present circumstances, to lose about 2,000 tons of seeds on which reliance had been placed for the coming season's trade. Granted the loss is mitigated by the fact that the cargo was insured, still you can't plant the insurance money and harvest onions or beans."

Oost-Duinkerke, Belgium.—Em. Draps-Boudry, whose establishment is now in the center of activities of the military forces, has fled to England.

Contich, Belgium.—In the bombardment of Antwerp the concussion caused by the bursting bombs broke practically all the glass in the eighteen greenhouses of Frantz de Laet, widely known for his collection of cacti. The woodwork of the houses is for the most part intact. The Germans looted the whole of the contents of the houses, so that nothing but the bare walls remain.

Ghent, Belgium.—On the whole, it may be considered that this important horticultural district has suffered little as compared with some other parts of Belgium, but grave fears are held for the future. It is apparent to even the least skilled observer that should the German line be dislodged, as all Belgium feels it must eventually be, the right wing will swing back through Bruges and Ghent, making its stand behind the Scheldt, which will bring the fighting directly into the plant-growing district, which now is only a few miles behind the line from Westende to Roulers. The growers fear that their troubles are not all in the past by any means. They are booking any orders offered, hoping from the bottom of their hearts they will be able to make shipment, favored by the fortunes of war, when the time comes.

GOING AFTER THE PUBLIC.

A New Year's day conference at Detroit was held by Albert Pochelon, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, and L. W. C. Tuthill, of New York, well known as a specialist in horticultural advertising. The subject under discussion was a campaign that will bring the sending of flowers by wire to the attention of the public. Thus far the special effort has been to develop the facilities for the prompt delivery of flowers at distant points, and so successful has this effort been that any florist may now feel safe in promising safe and speedy execution of an order almost anywhere in America. With this object attained, it has been apparent that the time has arrived for acquainting the public with the facilities that have been provided. Up to now the public has heard nothing of the telegraph delivery of flowers except as individual florists have advertised the service, but it is hoped to soon institute a campaign that will reach flower buyers everywhere. Mr. Tuthill submitted a plan to Mr. Pochelon.

Since a national campaign of any importance will call for the employment of quite a sum, it is probable that, instead of waiting for F. T. D. dues to accumulate, the funds will be obtained by subscription, many of those in the trade not F. T. D. members standing ready to contribute.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Gottlieb F. Knauss, grower of violets at Hyde Park, N. Y., by these creditors: Fallkill National Bank, $13,535; Clara F. Lent, $5,000, and Minnie Frank, $5,000, all of Poughkeepsie. The claims are largely as endorser of notes of the Bridgeport Construction Co., state road contractor, which went into bankruptcy November 19. It was alleged that he is insolvent and has transferred all his real estate. He transferred eleven and one-half acres of land in Poughkeepsie to Wm. B. Knauss, a brother, for $2,500, and seventy-four acres in Hyde Park to Christian F. Behret for $4,000.

HOOSIER FLORISTS TO MEET.

The annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held at the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, January 12. The business session will commence promptly at 1:30 p. m., followed by a supper in the evening, which will cost each member $1.25 per plate.

The secretary has written the growers and disseminators of novelties to send sample blooms for this exhibition and he requests that the members bring along something in the way of a plant or cut flower to add to the exhibition.

In order to create more interest in the annual meeting, the society appropriated $50 for the purchase of two silver trophies to be competed for from year to year. A committee consisting of A. F. J. Baur, John Hartje and Herman Junge has prepared rules for the competition, as follows:

The Indiana rose trophy: Twenty-five blooms, in three or more varieties, shall be shown in one vase. Blooms must be the exhibitor's own production.

The Indiana carnation trophy: Fifty blooms, in four or more varieties, shall be shown in one vase. Blooms must be the exhibitor's own production.

Competition shall be open to the members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana only.

The quality of the stock shown shall be the only consideration in making the award.

Only disseminated varieties shall be used.

Judging shall be done according to the American Society's scale of points.

The trophy shall be competed for annually, at the January meeting.

The winner's name shall be engraved on the trophy, and he shall have it in his custody until the next following annual meeting.

Entries must be in the hands of the secretary two days before the meeting. Address O. E. Steinkamp, 3800 Rockwood avenue, Indianapolis.

Gentlemen:-

How do you manage to send out such a uniformly good paper every week? Perhaps this is none of our business, but it concerns us because it affects advertising returns.

At any rate, we intend to more than double our advertising space in your columns for 1915.

Yours very truly,

PINCHING BACK ANTIRRHINUMS.

Would it be unwise or in any way injurious to pinch back seedling snapdragons the second time while they are in the small pots before benching, provided they are rather tall and have only two or three branches?

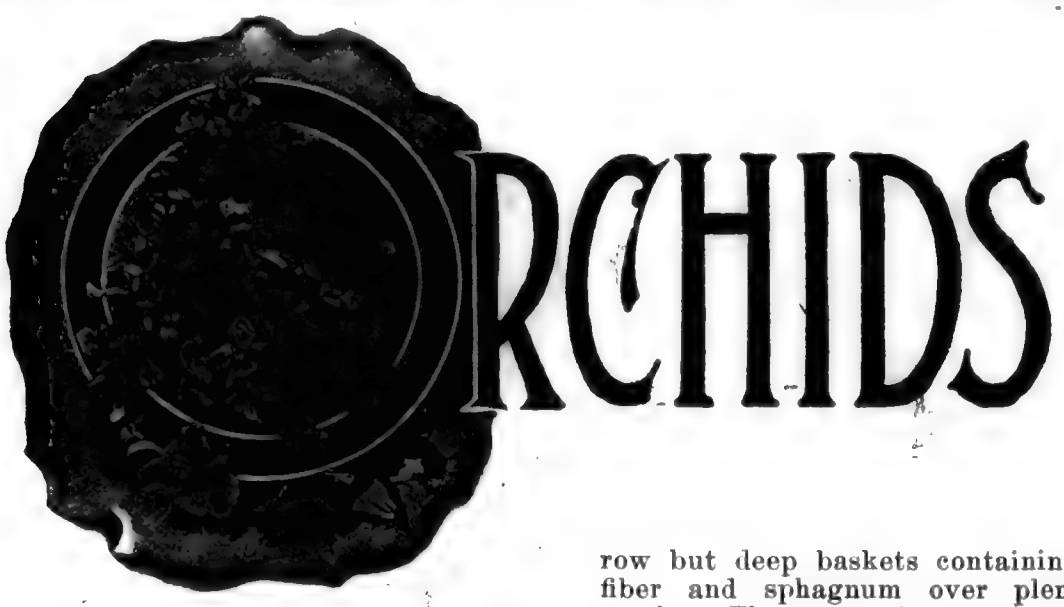
W. G. K.

If you pinch the snapdragons while the shoots are young and soft, they will break weakly. However, if you permit the shoots to run up a few flowers on each, and then cut back, the plants may have a somewhat stumpy appearance for a short time, but will send up much stronger shoots. C. W.

NITRATE OF SODA.

In what proportion should nitrate of soda be used in watering plants? How often should it be used? H. A. B.

Use at the rate of one ounce to a 12-quart can of water, or one pound to a 50-gallon barrel. In midwinter, if used at all, it must be with great care. It is a forcing fertilizer, and if used frequently will soon soften the plants so that they are of little value. It is of use in toning up sickly plants. One or, at most, two doses twelve to fourteen days apart are usually sufficient. Then use some fertilizer containing less nitrogen. For bench crops do not use it if the soil is dry; water with clear water first. C. W.



PARTITIONS IN HOUSES.

My houses run north and south and are seven feet to the eaves. The houses are connected and most of them are planted with carnations; so the temperature is the same all through the range. I want to plant the house at the west with roses and the house east of it with miscellaneous stock that requires a different temperature from that of the carnations. Could I put glass partitions between these houses, or would the heat from one house penetrate the glass into the other? I do not like to put partitions of lumber between the houses, on account of the direction in which the houses stand. The ground slopes to the east and I think the wood partition would cast too much shade on the carnations.

E. C.

Use boards next to the ground, to the level of the beds or benches, and let the rest be glass. A tight partition will not permit any heat to escape.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

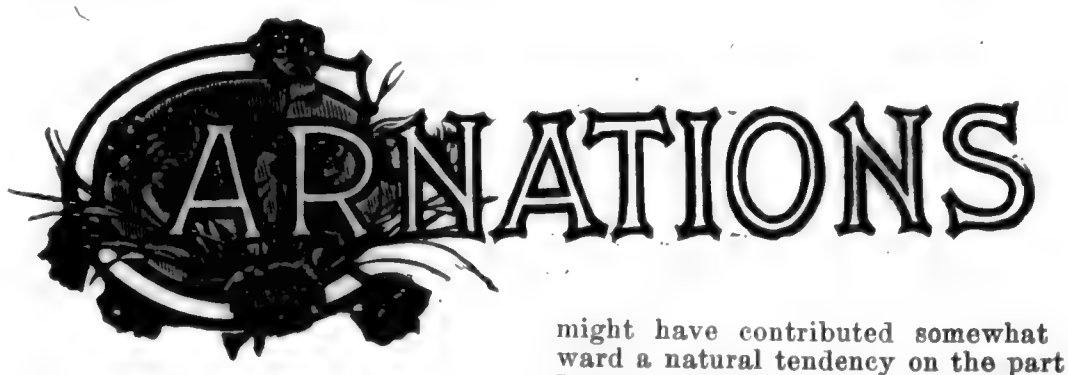
Oncidiums.

Oncidium Rogersii is now nearly over and the plants should have a resting period of some weeks before being overhauled. This is unquestionably the most valuable oncidium for florists. Its long-branched spikes of golden yellow flowers are useful for decorations in the fall and early winter. O. tigrinum, with its lusty branched spikes of yellow flowers, heavily spotted, is now in season, following Rogersii nicely. It is our best Christmas oncidium and its flowers have the advantage of being sweet-scented. O. ornithorhynchum, with its drooping spikes of rosy lilac flowers, is still in good shape. This makes a charming basket plant and the flowers are sweet-scented. All these oncidiums do better if grown without sphagnum. Many of the small shell snails lurk in the moss and they soon raise havoc with the flower spikes, eating them off almost before they can be seen.

Odontoglossums.

Plants of Odontoglossum crispum, Pescatorei and Hallii are now sending up a nice crop of spikes. They should be protected from attacks of snails by little bands of cotton-wool. These odontoglots should now have a house where they can get full sunshine and a temperature of 52 to 55 degrees at night, rather than a cool, sunless northern exposure, such as is often given them. In the lighter, warmer house the foliage soon takes on a rich bronzed hue, and the plants become tougher and will stand the hot summers much better than when they are wintered in a cold, dark house. O. grande, now done flowering, should have a resting period in a night temperature of 50 degrees. The free-flowering, pure white, sweet-scented Guatemalan species, O. pulchellum majus, is showing its spikes. This odontoglot does well at the cool end of the cattleya house and is one of the most easily grown and free-flowering of the family.

Phalænopsis.



Where several varieties of phalænopsis are grown in a special house, phalænopsis flowers are seldom lacking. P. amabilis is now done with its Christmas crop. Many spikes coming along on Schilleriana, Rimestadiana and grandiflora give indications of a beautiful show for a few weeks. Phalænopsis always does best if hung from the roof, doing particularly well in narrow but deep baskets containing fern fiber and sphagnum over plenty of crocks. They must have a hot, moist atmosphere and drafts must be avoided at all hazards. Sponge the leaves over occasionally with tepid water, as a protection against thrips and red spider.

TREATMENT FOR CATTLEYAS.

I have a small collection of orchids, including C. Trianæ, C. labiata, C. Mossiæ, C. Gaskelliana and C. Mendellii. I should like to know when each variety should be breaking growth and what the treatment and temperature for each variety should be. After the plants have flowered, is it proper to dry them off and put them in a cooler house, or should they be kept watered and in a temperature of about 60 degrees at night? F. L.

All the cattleyas named will do well in the same house. A night temperature of 55 degrees in midwinter will suffice and on severe mornings 5 degrees lower will do no harm. It is a great mistake to maintain a high temperature by overheating the pipes. Nothing can be more ruinous to plants. C. labiata finishes flowering early in December, C. Trianæ about the end of March, C. Mossiæ in May, C. Mendellii in June and C. Gaskelliana in August. After flowering, keep the plants a little drier at the root for a few weeks, until the new bulbs start to push, when any repotting can be done. Water should be applied somewhat sparingly until the roots become active, when a liberal supply is necessary. It is a mistake to dry the plants off as you would dendrobiums. It was at one time thought necessary to dry them severely, but such treatment is more harmful than helpful. There is no need to move the plants to cooler quarters while resting. All that is necessary is to reduce the water supply somewhat. Give full sunlight in midwinter and air the plants on every possible occasion, both night and day. Except when cold winds prevail, or the temperature is abnormally low, some ventilation should be afforded, either from the ridge or from the sides below the benches.

W. N. C.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT SPLIT.

We are mailing to you today some samples of our carnations, which have been splitting badly during the last week. Fully twenty-five per cent of the calyxes are split. The benches have all been wet to the bottom; not too wet, however. The temperature has been held at 50 to 54 degrees at night and 10 to 15 degrees higher during the day. We used a good feed of liquid manure about one month ago, and recently we put a little slaked lime on the soil to keep down the moss. During the day, when the ventilators are open, there is some draft over the plants, but this has been the case right along. The temperature outside for the last week has been from 15 to 25 degrees below zero at night, causing a heavy coating of frost on the glass inside; could this frost and the heat from below cause them to split? If not, to what can you attribute the trouble? S. G. C.

There are a number of conditions that may cause splitting. Some of these conditions we can control, while others we can not. Your temperature seems to have been fairly good; so that eliminates one of the most frequent causes of splitting. That "good feed" you gave about a month ago might have contributed somewhat toward a natural tendency on the part of Beacon and the Enchantress varieties to split at this time of the year. Another frequent cause of splitting is the weather. If you have a spell of cloudy weather and it is followed by a bright spell, there is likely to be some splitting, and the more strongly the plants are growing at the time, the more splitting there is likely to be. This latter condition is unavoidable on the part of the grower, and can be counteracted only partly by holding the temperature low on the first day or two of the bright spell. Plants that are given moderate culture during the short days of winter are not so liable to give trouble of this kind as those that are crowded unduly. A. F. J. B.

A BAD BENCH.

Under separate cover I am sending some White Enchantress and Enchantress carnation buds, also some shoots from the same plants, and shall be pleased if you will tell me what causes them to wilt and dry up. Just half the bed is affected. White Perfection, Enchantress and Lawson in the same houses are not affected. I have had this trouble with this one bed for the last two years. The plants were healthy and were in good condition when brought in from the field. The first year I had Victory planted in the bed and it was affected in the same way. Victory cuttings taken from those plants, grown in the field and benched in the adjoining house, did not show any signs of the disease, if it is a disease. They are all planted in raised beds.

A 2-inch natural gas main runs diagonally across this house and there is about four feet at the east wall that is uncovered, but if this is the cause of it, it would affect the whole house, I think. There are no signs of any leaks and there is no smell of gas at any time. F. P. M.

The shoots submitted seem to be badly affected with bacteria. Those light spots you see in the leaves are the affected parts. The dry tips are caused by the bacteria spots reaching clear across the leaf, shutting off the nourishment and causing the end of the leaf to dry up.

I cannot say why that particular bed should be affected more than the rest of the house, year after year, unless it is located disadvantageously in the house. If the plants do not receive the proper amount of sunlight, they would be more affected than they would under more favorable conditions. The gas main you speak of is not likely to be connected with the case in any way. Not only would the gas affect the whole house, but it affects the plants differently. The buds had been frozen, obliterating any signs of other diseases they might have shown when fresh.

I would suggest that you do not propagate from these plants. Take cuttings only from your healthy stock and your chances for having good stock next season will be better. A. F. J. B.

UNSUITABLE SOIL.

We have been in business in this part of Long Island for the last three years and our land was formerly cultivated by a farmer, who grew pretty good vegetables, but we are unable to make our plants grow satisfactorily. We let the ground rest for a year; then we put horse manure on it and plowed the manure in. We also sowed a green crop and plowed it under; yet nothing will grow. We are trying to grow carnations and all kinds of summer flowers. After a rain storm the ground becomes absolutely red on top. What can we do to remedy this, so that we shall be able to grow good plants and flowers? There seems to be too much iron in the soil.

I have two concrete tanks, over which I have built a propagating house. The mosquitoes are breeding terribly in these tanks, although we have a cypress floor. The help can scarcely stand in the house on account of these pests. Can you advise us what to do to get rid of them? Would kerosene or crude oil, spread on the top of the water, injure the plants? We use the water from these tanks to water the carnations in the houses. C. T.

I would advise you to submit a sample of your soil to one of the several agricultural experiment stations in your section of the country. They will analyze it and advise you how to improve it. I am not positive that covering the water in your concrete tanks with oil would seriously affect your carnation plants, but I would hesitate to do it, if I were situated as you are. I would prefer to use cyanide to destroy the mosquitoes. This, of course, would relieve the situation only temporarily, but if it became necessary to repeat the dose too often, I would abandon the tanks altogether and use well water. A. F. J. B.

Part of Christmas Carnation Crop of Fifth Avenue Floral Co., Columbus, O.

A CHRISTMAS CARNATION CROP.

Here is a question for the big carnation growers: How many blooms constitutes a good Christmas crop from 25,000 plants? It is asked by the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., of Columbus, O. This concern sends a photograph, reproduced herewith, which shows the condition of the plants in one of its carnation houses December 16. The week before Christmas 8,400 blooms were cut, and Christmas week 14,300 more, making a total for the two weeks of 22,700 blooms from the 25,000 plants. This, the company says, is the high-water mark at its range. Does it, asks the writer, compare favorably with the cuts of the big growers?

CARNATION REGISTERED.

The following carnation has been registered by Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, Mass.

Miss Theo.—Winsor x Winona; rose pink; three inches; well built up; calyx nearly perfect, seldom splitting; stem strong, holding flower at all times; robust grower.

Plymouth, Mass.—Chas. E. Stevens has completed another greenhouse at his range on Stoddard street. The additional space is much needed to take care of his increasing business.

Jamaica Plain, Mass.—The greenhouses on the estate of Quincy A. Shaw, on Perkins street, were destroyed by fire on the night of December 26, at a loss of $3,500. Firemen from Boston and Brookline were summoned, but could not get at the fire easily enough to extinguish it.

Hanover, Mass.—Since the addition of a house 61x117 feet last summer, the range of J. W. Beal comprises 25,000 feet of glass. The stores at Rockland and Bridgewater, in charge of Mrs. Warren Johnson and Charles Cooper, respectively, and the agency at Brockton, in charge of Mr. Dwyer, only take about one-half the stock grown. The rest goes to the Boston market.

East Bridgewater, Mass.—J. K. Alexander during the autumn harvested twenty-five acres of dahlia roots.

Marblehead, Mass.—William H. Symonds has completed a small greenhouse on the land adjoining his house, on Mount Vernon street. If this proves a profitable venture, Mr. Symonds has plenty of land to allow enlargement.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Andrew Swatt, driving the delivery automobile of Jas. Horan & Sons, collided with the chemical engine of the local fire department Christmas morning when the latter was on its way to a fire. The fire department places the blame on the driver of the florists' car and will demand $700 to pay for the repairs. Stephen D. Horan asserts that the driver of the engine is responsible, because he did not sound the siren upon approaching the street crossing, and will protest the fire commissioner's decision.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilies.

The lilies for Easter should now be four or five inches high. I am referring more especially to the giganteums. If they are at this stage and are given 60 degrees at night right along, they will be on time. If, however, they are just peeping through the soil or are not showing at all, they are a little backward and must have a brisk heat right along. Giganteums must have heat from start to finish to come through successfully, and remember that while it may seem a long cry to Easter, it is necessary to have the buds well in sight by February 20 in order that they may be in season.

In the case of Formosa lilies, which are much taller growers than giganteum or multiflorum, if the plants are now ten to twelve inches high they can come along in an average night temperature of 50 degrees and be all right. These are variable in height. Some will grow five feet high, others only half that height. Some will carry a dozen buds to a stem; others, seemingly of almost equal strength, a solitary flower. This lily, owing to its height, does not make an ideal pot plant, but for cutting it is unexcelled and it is remarkably free from disease.

Poinsettia Stock.

Poinsettias are unsalable after Christmas and any unsold plants might just as well be stored away for stock. Lay the pots and pans on their sides under a bench free from drip, or store them in any frost-proof shed. When the soil becomes quite dry and their leaves have fallen, shake the plants out and pack them closely in flats. They will carry perfectly in this way.

Gardenias.

Great care is now necessary with gardenias. When the weather is extremely cold, little ventilation possible and strong fire heat necessary to keep up the temperature, any excess of water at the roots will soon start the yellows. Low night temperatures and a surplus of atmospheric humidity, added to careless watering, will soon cause the plants to lose their dark, healthy color. Keep the night temperature as near 65 degrees as possible. On severe mornings it can drop to 60 degrees. Syringing should be done only on clear days, and early in the day, so that the foliage will be dry before nightfall. If a bright morning should be followed by a dark afternoon, go over the plants with a stick and give them a shake to remove some of the surplus moisture. It is better not to attempt any feeding at this season, or buds are sure to drop.

Schizanthus.

For late spring flowering, now is a suitable time to make a sowing of schizanthus. S. Wisetonensis or some of the dwarf large-flowered hybrids are the best for pot culture. Sow the seed in pans, then prick off into flats and later pot off singly. It has not been possible yet to fix S. Wisetonensis and procure any particular color. Much of its charm, however, lies in its sportiveness. None of the colors produced are bad, but of course it would be something of an advantage if we could purchase seed which would give us white, pink or lavender-colored flowers. Schizanthus should be grown cool all the time; 42 to 45 degrees at night is ample; at 50 degrees it becomes more or less drawn.

Mignonette.

As the cold becomes the greatest the quality of the mignonette spikes seems to improve. Like violets, this popular flower is at its best in a low temperature; 40 degrees at night is sufficient. In order to secure the finest spikes, the number to a plant should be limited and other growths removed. However, only a few growers usually want those fancy stalks; the average country florist can use spikes of moderate quality to far better advantage. Where plants are flowering they will be improved by a top-dressing of old cow manure, well broken up.

Canterbury Bells.

Start the Canterbury bells now in a cool house. A temperature of 45 degrees will do for a start and it is not well to give them over 50 degrees at night at any time. In watering be careful not to pour directly onto the leaves, or there is danger of their rotting, particularly where the crowns are extra large. Canterbury bells make handsome pot plants. They can hardly be classed as Easter plants, for, unless Easter comes late, they cannot be satisfactorily flowered. For Memorial day they are splendid, not only as pot plants but for cutting. For this date, the plants need not be started for some time yet.

Propagating Begonias.

The earliest batch of begonia leaf cuttings are now well rooted. Little plants are appearing and many will soon be fit for potting. As Christmas is the principal season for all flowering begonias, the stock now is probably pretty well depleted and if an ample stock of leaves is not yet in the sand, get them in without delay. Gloire de Lorraine is not yet out of date. It is true that it will not realize the same price as Glory of Cincinnati at Christmas, but for earlier blooming it takes the lead. The new Melior will also be considerably in evidence another year. Everyone who has tried it has words of praise for it.

TO AVOID FROZEN TANK PIPES.

In The Review of December 31, page 78, I noticed a question from B. A. B. about the protection of the pipes of his expansion tank from frost. While The Review's answer to B. A. B.'s question was correct, it may be of interest to him, and possibly to others, to know about my arrangement.

My tank has a capacity of 3,000 gallons. It is on a steel tower thirty feet high and about forty feet from the boiler. The main supply pipe is a 1½-inch pipe running below the frost line to the boiler house and from there to the greenhouse. A 1-inch pipe is run from the top of the boiler to a high point and there vented; then it is run down into the trench alongside the main supply pipe and up to the tank in a double boxing, containing two 2-inch dead-air spaces, and connected to the tank bottom just the same as the main supply pipe. A ½-inch pipe, with a valve, connects the main supply pipe, which runs closely alongside the boiler, with the return pipe near the boiler; this forms a heating coil and I find that if the valves are just half open, there is circulation enough. In mild weather I keep the ½-inch valve closed and only the 1-inch valve open for the expansion. I have had this tank only two years, but I have not yet noticed that more firing is required, even in our coldest Ohio weather, than was needed before.

MORE ABOUT CONCRETE BENCHES

I was much interested in the article in The Review for December 24 on concrete bench construction. I have had considerable experience with this kind of bench, for there are only two short wooden benches in my whole range of 15,000 to 20,000 feet of glass, the rest being concrete.

I built these myself, throwing out the wooden ones as fast as they rotted, and now, instead of the old-style, short-lived bench, I have something that will last for all time. My benches are all of the monolithic style.

The side benches have two rows of posts underneath, but the 5-foot ones have three rows. I make the legs in tar-paper molds and use the same paper several times. The legs are about five inches in diameter and are placed four feet apart. Posts in the two outside rows stand opposite one another, those in the center row alternating with them.

I make concrete as follows: Two parts of sharp sand, two parts of gravel and one part of cement. For reënforcing, I use poultry netting for the top and sides and any old wire for the legs. The leg reënforcement runs into the bench top, so that when the leg is set it is impossible to move or even jar the bench. For drainage, I punch holes with a rotating motion when the concrete has set for about a half-hour. I leave the leg molds on for thirty-six hours. If they are left on longer, the paper will stick.

As to cost, I have figured carefully, and find that without considering the time it takes to build it, a concrete bench costs the same as a wooden one when lumber is $25 per thousand feet. I pay $1.75 per cubic yard for sand and gravel and $1.50 per barrel for cement.

In the last benches I built for carnations, I put galvanized pipe upright in the posts to hold the supports for wires, and the idea is a fine one. There are no cleats anywhere on the sides, and no braces on the ends. You may pull as hard as you want to and nothing will give way.

As to the quality of stock that can be grown on concrete benches, anyone having doubts is invited to come and be shown. For a propagating bench the concrete one has no equal. Stone is a much better conductor of heat than wood, so that only half the number of pipes are required.

Some day florists will be making their own gutters, and they will be the lasting kind—concrete. I have been giving this idea a great deal of thought, and believe it is possible and practicable. For a backbone, I would employ a reënforcement of angle iron, such as is used in windmill towers. Two rows of this will be cross-tied and further reënforced by long fence wire. Then I would put my mold on top of the posts and pour in the concrete, and the result would be a tight, one-piece gutter that would defy time and the elements. How to fasten the sashbars on, might be a puzzle at first, but I can see a way out of that.

J. L. Johnson.

FAVORS CONCRETE BENCHES.

In The Review for December 24 M. B. S. asks for advice on concrete benches. I have benches of this kind and am much pleased with them. At first I was kept guessing, just as M. B. S. is, but finally I thought I would fit one houses 28x125 with concrete benches. Now I find I like them better than those of wood, because they give more uniform drainage.

The growers who do not have concrete benches are always criticizing them, perhaps because they cannot afford them or do not like the job of making them. Some said to me, "Those benches are too cold to grow carnations in;" so I took one of them over to my house a few weeks ago and said, "Feel those benches and see if you don't freeze your hand." He felt the benches and was convinced that concrete benches are warmer than wood, because when concrete gets warm it stays warm, just as a brick does. Then too, wood swells and closes the space between the boards of a wooden bench; concrete stays uniform.

As to the strength of these benches, I can say that if they are made right they will not break or cause trouble in the least. They can be given more rough usage than a wooden bench. Three men, each weighing 175 pounds, can stand on one of our slabs, which are three feet long, eight inches wide and one inch thick in the center, with a 2-inch rim amound the outside. Now, that is more than you can put on a piece of cypress of equal length.

The cost of our benches was small, as we can get all the gravel we want two feet below the surface of the ground. We used 200 sacks of cement and mixed the concrete 3 to 1 throughout the job. The cement cost us $70 and the reënforcing $14; so you see we got off as cheaply as with wood. There are four benches 5x122 feet. The benches are sectional, with boards or slabs running lengthwise, just as in a wooden bench.

Fred J. Louck.

Pueblo, Colo.—Waldemar Fleischer, son of G. Fleischer, is in the employ of the C. C. Pollworth Co., at Milwaukee, Wis., where he has been since the spring of 1913.

Lancaster, Pa.—William R. Grove, of Manheim, was married to Miss Jane K. Rodgers at the parsonage of the Grace Lutheran church December 26. They will reside at 29 East Lemon street.

Bluefield, W. Va.—W. C. Alexander, son of the late J. W. Alexander, of Charleston, who was for years his father's assistant, married Miss Mae Byles, of Buffalo, November 17, and has opened a fine flower store in the old Western Union stand. He has done well to date.

Erie, Pa.—Mr. and Mrs. Frederic James Barlow announce the marriage of their sister, Miss Margaret Marie Bemus, to Frederick Lautenschlager, Saturday, August 29, 1914. Mr. Lautenschlager is well known in the trade as the representative of Kroeschell Bros. Co. They will make their home in Chicago.

Savannah, Ga.—John Wolf has more than the usual reason to celebrate New Year's: it is the anniversary of his starting in business and of his marriage. January 1, 1915, he had spent just twenty years as a florist here and it was the fourteenth anniversary of the wedding that brought him an efficient helpmate.

Anderson, Ind.—J. S. Stuart and J. A. E. Haugh, for many years partners in everything, have been sharing illnesses equally. Mr. Stuart was confined to his home for a fortnight before Christmas, after which it was Mr. Haugh's turn.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—The front cover of the December number of the Parcel Post and Store News, a local advertising monthly, bore a picture of the popular movie actress, Lillian Walker, among the chrysanthemums in the greenhouse of R. P. Atwell.

Lewiston, Ill.—Miss Lulu Martha Davidson has received many expressions of sympathy in the death of her father, who passed away January 4. He was 80 years of age and died of the infirmities resulting from his long and active life. Never a florist, he was, nevertheless, well known to the patrons of his daughter's successful flower store, in operation here some five years.

Tilton, Ill.—H. A. Dubois, in digging to locate a leak in a steam pipe below the ground, Saturday morning, December 19, had one of his feet scalded when the earth under it gave way, so that he stepped into a pool of boiling water. Medical attention failed to alleviate altogether the intense pain, but it is believed Mr. Dubois will be able to be around in a few weeks as well as ever.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The florists of this city expect to do a larger business in 1915 than in any previous year, as this is a central shipping market for horses, mules, beef, agricultural and various manufacturing products. Since the start of the conflict in Europe, business has been all that was expected, although not up to the standard of last year. Business has steadily increased since the beginning of the war and it is expected that the war will help business from now on.

New Year's business was good and up to expectations. Most of the florists who have palms rented all they had and some could have rented more. A great many baskets, boxes and centerpieces were made up for New Year celebrations. The cut flower supply was well cleaned up, but fancy prices were out of the question.

Various Notes.

The first 1915 baby born in Kansas City is McClurg L. Kice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Kice. Mr. Kice is an employee of the Rosery.

Arthur Newell had the decoration for a big affair at the Baltimore hotel New Year's eve. He used all the palms, ferns and other decorative stock he could get hold of.

Samuel Murray reports business for New Year's as good. Fancy baskets and boxes were more in demand than a year ago and table decorations were numerous.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had some large decorations last week, with more to follow this week. Mr. Rock is well pleased with the way the new year has started.

T. J. Noll is well satisfied with the business done in the last part of 1914.

H. Kusik & Co. were busy last week taking inventory. The clean-up on holiday specialties is said to have been the best since the firm went into the supply business.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely, across the state line, reports a good business for New Year's and is well satisfied.

The Alpha Floral Co. was exceptionally busy last week with funeral work and decorations. Mr. Elberfield is well pleased with business done in 1914.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

There was an abundance of all kinds of cut flowers for the holiday season. Prices were firm and high. There was some poor stock, however, such as inferior Beauties, Mock roses and orchids, which were rejected by the retail dealers. Roses in all varieties were excellent. Carnations were of first quality. Valley, sweet peas, orchids, gardenias and violets were plentiful. All kinds of flowering plants were available.

Various Notes.

J. B. Wiese did a big business during the holidays.

The Dale Estate, of Brampton, is sending some excellent orchids and valley to this market.

J. Brookins has some excellent orchids and sweet peas. These found a ready sale during the holidays.

W. J. Palmer & Son had the decoration for the debutante reception of the Misses Large, of North Tonawanda, which was a big affair.

Henry Kraus, for S. A. Anderson, made a trip to Albany, for a decoration at the capitol January 1.

The biggest and most elaborate decoration Buffalo has seen in many years was that of the Knox ball at the Twentieth Century Club, December 28. Not only the ballroom but the entire club house was decorated and there were numerous gift bouquets, from French bouquets to huge bunches of orchids and roses. S. A. Anderson did the decorations, with the aid of Charles Felton, designer, and the able assistance of Jos. Streit and a score of others. George Kramer did the Japanese garden, through which access was had to the supper room. E. C. A.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

The funeral business of the last week has been quite heavy and proved acceptable in view of the fact that a large source of income to the stores heretofore occurring from large New Year's decorations was lost to them this year.

The supply of flowers was larger than has ever before been experienced at this time of the year and it is said that there were enough to take care of another holiday rush. This has caused a marked drop in prices. Particularly is this true of carnations, which can be had as low as $2 per hundred. Rubrum lilies are good, but are offered with few takers. Jonquils have made their appearance. The cloudy weather of the last few days has seriously affected the color of pink roses.

Various Notes.

The event of the week was the ball given by Mrs. Clarence Moore. The work, done by J. H. Small & Sons, has been the subject of much favorable comment on the part of not only the guests but those of the trade who viewed the decorations.

Among the visitors in Washington during the week were I. Rosnosky and Sidney Bayersdorfer, both of Philadelphia. C. L. L.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The receipts in the market are far heavier than present needs. The demand is active but is insufficient to take up the entire receipts, or any more than a substantial part of them. A lot of stock that is held at other points too long and is then dumped into the market naturally fails to find a sale. Shipping business, particularly in greens, is good.

Beauty receipts are good. The general quality is high. Both Killarney and White Killarney are in heavy supply and generally are good. Richmond and Shawyer are excellent. Carnations are plentiful, but the quantity of real fancy stock offered is rather limited. The lily receipts are sufficient for immediate needs. Other offerings include violets, valley, orchids, narcissi, callas, Roman hyacinths and poinsettias.

Various Notes.

Wm. Murphy is getting along nicely, and well on the road to recovery from his recent illness.

C. E. Critchell reports an unusually good call for leucothoe.

Fred Gear was among those who had considerable work for the incoming officeholders, who took their seats at the courthouse January 1. C. H. H.

Newburgh, N. Y.—The Newburgh Floral Co., of which Dr. Wesley Wait was proprietor, has gone out of business.

Reading, Pa.—John Giles has leased a store in the new Berkshire hotel. The room has a large display window opening on Fifth street.

Amsterdam, N. Y.—O. H. De La Mater, of the Hill Top Greenhouses, will add a Ford delivery car to his service before the Easter rush comes around, and may add a house for roses in the spring. He started in business three years ago and has now four Lord & Burnham Co. houses.

Minot, N. D.—George E. Valker has just completed what he says is the largest range of glass in North Dakota. It consists of five houses, covering 130x150. Carl Hougan, formerly with Holm & Olson, St. Paul, now is the growing boss and produces fine stock. The main lines are holiday plants, ferns, bedding plants and vegetable plants, also carnations, lilies, violets, peas and bulbous stock. There are two greenhouse concerns here and each does a nice business for a city of 6,000 population.

Albion, N. Y.—R. H. Marsh, formerly at Brockport, N. Y., has bought the A. T. Vick place and will carry on a wholesale and retail business.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—The Doswell Floral Co. reports its new 80-horsepower boiler working finely, taking the place of two smaller boilers now held in reserve. Two new rose houses are being benched and piped, the plan being to turn on the steam about March 1. This is the first season roses have been grown here and excellent success has been achieved. Easter and spring stock looks well.

Moline, Ill.—Julius Staack & Sons have brought suit against the city of Moline for $20,000 damages, and also entered suit against the city and the Tri-City Railway Co. together. It is charged that storm water flowing from Twenty-second street to a point between Sixth and Seventh avenues flooded the property and destroyed plants in the greenhouses. One suit is for a date when the railway company was laying tracks on Twenty-seventh street and the other for a time several months later. Improper grading is given as the cause of the damage.

COLD SNAP BRINGS FIRES.

Waterloo, Ia.—Fire starting in the partition between the boiler room and the garage at the greenhouses of Chas. Sherwood December 27 destroyed the delivery automobile, garage and roof of the boiler room. It was checked before it could harm the greenhouses or plants. The damage was $1,200, covered by insurance.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—About $300 damage was done by a fire at the greenhouses of T. L. Metcalfe, at Sixth and Clay streets, Sunday morning, December 27. Between the time the night man went off duty and the day fireman came on, the boiler became so hot that it set fire to the woodwork. Before the blaze was discovered and extinguished, it had done about $50 damage to the building and $250 damage to the plants. There was no insurance.

Des Plaines, Ill.—Fire at the Solomon Garland range December 22 destroyed the boiler house, coal sheds, one greenhouse and the automobile. The night fireman, returning from looking after the boiler in the violet houses, found the boiler room in a mass of flames. As the establishment is outside the fire limits, the efforts of the neighbors were all that saved the other greenhouses. The plants in these were frost-bitten and some are ruined. There was no insurance carried.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

New Year's business was reported better than last year. The demand centered chiefly on cut flowers and was quite as good as for Christmas. Considering that we had only four clear days during the month of December, stock of all kinds has been plentiful. Killarney roses are away off in color. The supply last week was made up of roses and carnations. These were plentiful and cheap, with no clean-ups reported. Good stock in roses hardly went over $6 per hundred and excellent carnations were offered at $2 and $3 per hundred. The dark weather had its effect on violets and sweet peas. These are scarce and as a rule clean up daily. There were quite a few gladioli in the market last week, but the trade did not take to them. In bulbous stock there is excellent valley and plenty of Paper Whites, but Roman hyacinths have so far been scarce. Asparagus is reported to be somewhat scarce, but of other greens the supply has been as usual.

Various Notes.

George B. Windler, who had a loss by fire recently, has his place in fine shape again. The damage was estimated at nearly $4,000. The fire coming when it did, just before the holidays, caused much inconvenience.

The trustees of the Florists' Club, who have charge of the club's entertainment and dance to take place in Westminster hall, January 27, say the sale of tickets is progressing nicely. The pasteboards will be mailed to all members this week.

December 28 the trade had quite a busy day furnishing flowers for the opening of the new banking rooms of the German Savings Institution. Many beautiful designs were sent.

THE MEN YOU MEET

WILLIAM J. KEIMEL.

IN THE evening of January 7, William J. Keimel will succeed the man who is, perhaps, his closest friend, as president of the Chicago Florists' Club. Keimel is a pacifist; he is for peace and plenty and usually he gets what he wants, for success has become almost a habit with him. Years ago, while with Poehlmann Bros. Co., he became known as a successful rose grower. Shortly he started into business at Elmhurst, Ill., with his brother-in-law and associates, as the Wendland & Keimel Co., and the success was continued. Mr. Keimel is the treasurer and general manager. Although for many years a member of numerous trade organizations, this is the first time he ever has accepted an executive office in one, and his friends count on a year of unusual prosperity for the club.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle will hold its New Year's meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred C. Weber, on Berlin avenue.

Marion Uhlschmidt, manager for the east side branch store of Grimm & Gorly, says the holidays were satisfactory in the sale of both plants and cut flowers.

Ostertag Bros., as usual, had a number of good decorating jobs for New Year celebrations in the downtown hotels and cafes.

W. C. Smith's flower show committee will meet this week and prepare the final report to be presented at the club's meeting.

Many telegraph orders came to The Review's advertisers for New Year. These orders have become quite large of late, especially on holidays, and advertisers again reaped a harvest this time.

Gladioli for Christmas and New Year's were quite a novelty. H. S. Berning had quite a large shipment of them from Florida.

David Geddis, manager of Vandervoort's floral department, says the holidays this year were away beyond his expectations.

J. Byers, traveling salesman for the Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, spent New Year's here calling on growers. He was much pleased with his first visit here.

The St. Louis Seed Co. is settled in its new quarters at 411 and 413 Washington avenue. Last week was moving week. They opened for business Monday morning, January 4.

Robbers broke into George Waldbart's garage December 28 and took a joy ride in his fine touring car, which was later found in the country somewhat damaged.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its New Year's meeting Thursday afternoon, January 14. This meeting will be one of great importance, as the final vote on the proposed spring flower show will be taken.

This month's display at the Missouri Botanical Garden will be in charge of Max Schiller and should prove a great attraction for growers.

Carl F. Giebel, son of Philip Giebel, read an important paper on "Tropical Insects" last month at a meeting of the entomological section of the Academy of Science.

In the constitution and by-laws of the Florists' and Nurserymen's Employees' Union, Local No. 44, we noticed the following scale of wages: Nurserymen, $18; helpers, $10 per week. Designers, $25; helpers, $15. Store salesmen, $15; helpers, $8. Women help is governed by the state labor law. No reference is made to florists or helpers in greenhouses, but some of them are expected to join the union.

J. J. B.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Wood Bros., Fishkill, N. Y., have rounded out a satisfactory year and are preparing for another equally flourishing.

Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., initiated the new year with an individual message to his employees, full of optimism and of promise, to be fulfilled, under certain conditions, before its close.

Percy Herbert, of Yuess Gardens Co., Newburgh, N. Y., is of the opinion that the demand for flowering plants for holiday sales has come to stay. There was no trouble in disposing of well grown stock this season.

George H. Chadborn, of Schaefer's, Inc., Newburgh, was sufficiently recovered to assist through the holiday rush and was congratulated by his patrons. He has had a long siege of sickness, following an accident early in the summer.

Mark Crawshaw, West Newburgh, found little change in the holiday demand, which was highly satisfactory.

A sequel to the severe storm last March was the suit, tried last week, of Dr. Wesley Wait, of the Newburgh Floral Co., against the Postal Telegraph Co., whose poles snapped, falling through some of the greenhouses, demolishing them and ruining the stock. Through a technicality the suit was dismissed, but may again be entered for trial.

The old year saw the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against Gottlieb F. Knauss, violet grower, Hyde Park, N. Y., as the result of connection with a construction company at Poughkeepsie.

Saltford Bros., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., are looking for the usual prosperity following the reopening of Vassar and other schools, which favor them with a large share of first-class patronage.

Conrad C. Gindra, Poughkeepsie, sees in the new year reasons for optimism and, with careful planning, expects satisfactory business.

Ley & Bro., Highland, N. Y., will continue to grow Adiantum hybridum, which has proved so remunerative. Their entire plant is devoted to the culture of this fern.

Valentin Burgevin's Sons, Kingston, N. Y., are much pleased with the new addition to their range of glass. The season will find them prepared with their usual extensive, select stock. So far they have no kick coming.

William Williams, Kingston, has had a good season, but believes that the signs of the times denote the survival of the fittest and that the conservative buyer is the one best able to meet the bills when they fall due. W. M.

CHRISTMAS TRADE REPORTS ARE GOOD

Great Falls, Mont.—The Electric City Conservatory reports Christmas sales as far ahead of last year, due to the new store opened five months ago.

Mendota, Ill.—B. Katzwinkel says: "Christmas and New Year's business was excellent, both in plants and cut flowers."

Lawrence, Kan.—A. Whitcomb & Son report a ten per cent decrease in Christmas business. The increase in the demand for flowering plants keeps up.

Great Falls, Mont.—M. Kranz, of the Montana Floral Exchange, says sales for the holidays exceeded those of last year, in spite of stagnation in the copper industry.

Boulder, Colo.—Charles F. Fawcett says Christmas was ahead of last year. He pushed plants because he grows them, whereas he would have had to order cut flowers from a distance.

New Iberia, La.—The "sunny south" is a misnomer at this time of year; C. W. Outhwaite reports only two days of sunshine in three weeks. Rain and cold made Christmas business light.

Mitchell, N. D.—After making preparations for a twenty per cent larger business than the year before at Christmas, the Newburys had doubts as to the wisdom of the move, but by advertising sold out completely. Wreaths and plant baskets brought the best returns.

Benton Harbor, Mich.—E. S. Thompson says his second Christmas as a retail florist brought double the sales of the first Christmas the store was open.

Anderson, Ind.—Stuart & Haugh say Christmas business turned out better than expected; the largest number of orders ever filled, but many of them not large.

New Haven, Conn.—That fancy baskets and artificial flowers are displacing holly wreaths and the like, is the opinion of John N. Champion & Co. His Christmas sales were about as usual.

Columbus, O.—Christmas sales made the best total ever known here, being far better than expected. John R. Helenthal comments on the number of orders for the shipment of cut flowers by parcel post for gift purposes.

Oconto, Wis.—J. Sylvester says it was the best Christmas yet, with collections fine. He reports cut flower sales increased 100 per cent; holly and wreaths, fifty per cent; wholesale plant trade, twenty-five per cent; retail plant trade decreased ten per cent.

Paducah, Ky.—No wonder Schmaus Bros. are optimistic. They say general business has been better than ever this fall, that the florists' has been better than that in other lines, and that Christmas trade was better than last year. They carried a general line of stock, all of which cleaned up well.

Little Rock, Ark.—Tipton & Hurst say they could have sold more plants and cut flowers if they had had them Christmas day. Business in general is good and for the holiday was better than last year.

Watertown, N. Y.—The poor business this fall lessened the Christmas sales, and Fred E. Avery had only about three-quarters of last year's trade. Baskets of evergreens and red immortelles were his best sellers.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The flower business here has suffered badly under the severe financial strain, and Christmas sales were behind, though not so far as the unfavorable situation would lead one to expect. The Chattanooga Floral Co. did well with wreaths.

Topeka, Kan.—James Hayes noted that people who previously have bought cut flowers this year chose plants and says the lesson of the Christmas trade is that cut flowers must be offered cheaper to bring them back to favor. Holiday sales were the largest ever.

Meridian, Miss.—The automobile and flower trade are the only lines holding up, according to J. W. Marshall, Jr. His Christmas trade certainly was good, running twenty-five per cent ahead of last year. He says he cannot get enough carnations for the holidays; the southern grown, although better keepers, cannot compare with those from the north in quality and are not grown in sufficient quantity.

Fayetteville, Ark.—The Southwestern Seed & Floral Co. found trade was stronger in plants than in cut flowers this season. The company experienced its largest Christmas business.

Eau Claire, Wis.—Although the below zero weather was a hindrance, says O. R. Demmler, holiday trade was quite satisfactory. Azaleas and other potted plants sold well, as did baskets.

Hutchinson, Kan.—Beauties were in increased demand this year at Kline's Flower Shop. E. H. Kline reports better business this Christmas than for the last two years. John Stamm and Yerkes Bros. also report a good trade.

Nashua, N. H.—Orders came later and were smaller this Christmas than they were a year ago; the volume was about the same. The florists' business is better off than most other lines, thinks August Gaedeke & Co., although trade is much the same as usual.

Iola, Kan.—Only three days of sunshine in the four weeks preceding Christmas was a drawback to trade, in the estimation of J. W. Primmer. The cloudy weather seems to have extended over the greater part of the southwest. Holiday business, says Mr. Primmer, was satisfactory.

Providence, R. I.—As the flower trade has felt the financial depression about the same as other lines of business this fall, it was to be expected that Christmas trade would fall off. William Chappell reports his to have been one-half of last year's, and bad in comparison with the year before.

Hartford, Conn.—"There seems to be a growing demand for medium-sized and medium-priced plants of all kinds, good, sturdy stuff," report Spear & McManus, whose Christmas business, say they, was better than that a year ago. For poinsettias, valley and violets there was not so great a demand as formerly.

Fargo, N. D.—Together with some other merchants of Fargo, the Shotwell Floral Co. signed an agreement to close the store at 7 p. m. December 24. According to the company, probably not a sale was lost by this action, and it gave an opportunity for preparation for a good business Christmas morning. The cold and complaints of hard times hurt trade.

Birmingham, Ala.—Cheap plants were most called for at Christmas, for business has been dull and money tight. Skimmias found favor, and fancy baskets filled with plants sold well. Hugh Seales reports his trade satisfactory, in view of existing circumstances, although the receipts were thirty per cent less than last year's. As his rose and carnation crops were good, he bought only Beauties, Richmonds and valley, and went home, sold out, at noon.

Alliance, O.—Cut flowers must be put upon the same price basis as plants and not raised to exorbitant figures for special occasions if the wholesalers and growers do not wish to suffer a greater slump than they did this year, is J. F. Zimmerman's view. Plants are progressing fast in favor, and cut flowers are not keeping pace. Under present conditions the retailer finds it to his decided advantage to push plants, so that, unless there comes a change, cut flowers are likely to suffer still more.

Charleston, W. Va.—The J. W. Alexander establishment had a fine cut of carnations and did a better Christmas business than ever before. Pot plants made another gain in favor, as offering better value than cut flowers.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—The Doswell Floral Co. had a full crop of carnations and scored a ten per cent increase in Christmas sales. There was no change from usual Christmas conditions except that prices in general were a little lower.

Norristown, Pa.—Wm. H. Catanese says the Christmas business all came in two days and sums up the same as in 1913. Medium priced wreaths and plants were most in demand, the prices of cut flowers being too high for conditions of the year.

Pueblo, Colo.—Cold, sunshiny weather Christmas day aided sales and deliveries. G. Fleischer reports business for this occasion about the same as that of the last two years. Small plants had the heaviest sale, but begonias do not sell any more.

Minot, N. D.—George E. Valker says general business conditions have been about the same as a year ago, there not having been the increase that was expected. Christmas sales increased only ten per cent, as against thirty per cent in 1913. He pushed plants, owing to the uncertainty of getting cut flowers at prices that will permit their sale at a profit.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Alpha Floral Co. says luxury buyers turned from the jeweler to the florist this year, so that Christmas sales increased. There was a greater demand for plants, and a corresponding decrease in cut flower buying. The lesson of the cold weather was that more careful preparations should be made for the protection and delivery of plants.

Charleroi, Pa.—The store opened here something over a year ago by the Kinder Floral Co. has given such good results that another was opened a few weeks ago at Monessen, Pa. I. V. Kinder says the business depression has been felt keenly throughout the district, but holiday business was helped by the special effort employers made to pay off before Christmas.

Hartford, Conn.—"Use art in arrangement and charge for it," is the suggestion of G. W. McClunie for a profitable Christmas trade. He found the more expensive wreaths, of statice and barberry, more profitable than azaleas and begonias, because the latter have been cheapened by being sold at too low prices. An increase in the number of charges was the only effect he could see of abnormal business conditions. Sales were better than last year.

Savannah, Ga.—John Wolf says Christmas was just as good as 1912 and better than in 1913 in spite of the worst general business situation in twenty years. He found made-up baskets of plants at from $2.50 to $10 the best sellers. "As long as good roses wholesale above $15 per hundred they will not sell well here," he says; "we can retail a few at $3 per dozen, but no big business can be done above $2 per dozen. It is the same with Beauties; we can sell a lot of them at from $5 to $10 per dozen, but not many at $12 and $15."

OBITUARY

John Richardson.

John Richardson, aged 33 years, in business as a retailer at Scranton, Pa., died December 25, after a brief illness. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Hilda; also by his mother, three brothers and two sisters. The funeral took place the following afternoon, with services at the residence. Burial was at Dalton.

John Monson.

John Monson, proprietor of the Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, Minn., died at his home Monday night, December 28, after a brief illness. He was taken sick a few days before the holidays, but was reported better about Christmas day; then the sudden report of his demise came as a distinct shock to his many friends.

Mr. Monson was 48 years of age. He came to this country twenty-two years ago from his native country, Sweden, where, except for a short time spent in Denmark, he learned and practiced his profession. After he had spent only a short time with August S. Swanson, at St. Paul, the Smith Floral Co., of Minneapolis, tendered him the position of foreman and manager of its extensive range. After three years of success there, he started out for himself as proprietor of the Minneapolis Floral Co., seventeen years ago. He showed what may be accomplished when skill, energy, perseverance and thrift are associated and properly directed, for he built up his business from nothing to the largest in the state.

One of his greatest pleasures was raising roses, and he brought out a number of these which are well known locally. Two, at least, are well known to the entire trade, Kate Moulton and Minnetonka.

Mr. Monson was married about four years ago, and leaves his wife and an adopted daughter, Beatrice. The regard in which he was held by the local members of the trade was witnessed by the large number of them who, although it was in the midst of the busy holiday season, gathered at his funeral December 31. He was buried in Lakewood cemetery.

LILIES FOR EASTER.

What is the best variety of Easter lily to grow commercially? How soon ought the bulbs to be potted to bloom for Easter? H. A. B.

Lilium longiflorum giganteum is the favorite lily commercially. Bulbs should have been potted in October or early November, and the plants should now be several inches high. C. W.

SPIRÆA GLADSTONE.

Kindly give the culture of Spiræa Gladstone. H. A. B.

Pot at once. For Easter-blooming start nine to ten weeks in advance, in a night temperature of 60 degrees. You can hardly overwater them. Feed liberally when the pots are filled with roots. The foliage is easily injured by smoke from tobacco stems. C. W.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

PERHAPS it is because of their national trait, a painstaking thoroughness, that Germans are such excellent florists.

IT is worth while remembering that no permanent business ever was built on a cut price basis. Build on quality and charge fair prices.

TURNING round on a smaller margin may as well engage the trade's attention now as later. It is a condition, not a theory, that demands consideration.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

ONE of the most competent of advertising advisers says retail florists who do not put price tickets on the stock in their window displays are passing up one of the most potent factors in selling.

ONE of the "days" that failed is January 29—the anniversary of William McKinley's birth—but in certain parts of the country it is easily possible to double the sale of carnations that day. All that is needed is a little advertising.

THE developments of the last few months have given force to the demand for a closer scrutiny of credit risks and more care is being taken than ever before to see that buyers do not get in too deep. If the war, with all its losses and alarms, should result in the general adoption and enforcement of some rational business terms in this trade it will prove a blessing in disguise.

WEALTH FROM THE FARMS.

Prosperity must prevail in a country that creates on its farms, in a single year, new wealth amounting to $9,872,936,000, as the U. S. Department of Agriculture says this nation did in 1914. Had it not been for the reduced value of the cotton crop, due to the war, it would have been a record, but 1913 was slightly better. The value of the principal farm crops this year was:

Corn	$1,702,599,000	Tobacco	$101,411,000
Wheat	779,069,000	Rye	37,018,000
Cotton	519,616,000	Sugar beets	27,050,000
Oats	499,431,000	Rice	21,849,000
Potatoes	198,609,000	Flaxseed	10,540,000
Barley	105,903,000	Buckwheat	12,892,000
Sweet potatoes	41,294,000

In the production of the above fourteen principal crops this year's aggregate was about ten per cent larger than in 1913.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

President Welch has appointed H. H. Bartsch, president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, as an "Affiliation" member of the board of directors, to serve one year.

John Young, Sec'y.

STILL PULLING.

Review classified ads have established a reputation as the great little business bringers, and they are still pulling. Like this:

Please stop the ad and put in a new one—they are about running me crazy with orders.—Glenn E. Moore, Rushville, Ind., January 4, 1915.

THE CHRISTMAS LESSON.

There is one thing sure, the experience at Christmas will result in a still larger provision for plant business next December and, doubtless, at Easter. There is, of course, the probability that some day the pendulum will swing in the other direction, but for the moment it is certain the wholesale cut flower interests face a problem; unless business conditions change radically cut flowers will receive even less attention in the future than they did this Christmas. The holiday trade reports show the public bought cut flowers willingly, but many retailers who must buy the stock they sell made their principal effort with pot stock, for the obvious reason that they ran less risk of loss and stood better chance of profit. With an increasing supply of plants the need for cut flowers will grow less.

High prices for special days have militated against the popularity of cut flowers, but of equal disadvantage has been the uncertainty as to supply and quality. Retailers who grow their own cut flowers sold out clean at Christmas, because they could be sure of their supply and could price it for rapid selling, without regard to advance quotations in wholesale centers. It shows quite clearly that the cut flower interests can counter against the plantsmen whenever they are ready to adopt a different policy. To bring cut flowers back to favor it is necessary to do no more than put the advance quotations at a point where the retailers will take hold, reassured by a guarantee that orders will be filled in full with good stock at the prices agreed upon—which is not so easy as it sounds. Since no one regularly can estimate with accuracy the extent of the supply or the demand in cut flowers, to obtain stability seems to necessitate a radical change of trade customs.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

EVANS CHANGES NAME.

Having many times been told by his friends that his own name should be used in his business, John A. Evans has decided to take their advice. Consequently the name of the corporation, Quaker City Machine Co., is in process of being changed to the John A. Evans Co. There will be no other change.

The Market.

The old year went out without a ripple, and the new year has come in with the largest supply of stock this market ever has known in January. One will not be far out of the way in stating that there is an abundance of all kinds of stock, with more than is needed in most lines. Prices are lower, on the average, than they ordinarily are at this date, but there are signs of a possible change to more nearly normal conditions. Within the last few days certain growers have begun to cut more lightly in their houses of Killarney and there has been a slight improvement in the demand for carnations, although the supply is extremely heavy. White Killarney is coming in more plentifully and with a number of the wholesalers has given more concern, during the last few days, than have the pink roses. According to all the rules of the game there should be little call for white roses at Christmas and a fine call for them in January. Many growers have acted accordingly. Taking the market as a whole, there is no shortage on any rose, although of course some of the varieties not largely grown are not always to be picked up on a moment's notice; they can be had by ordering early. Mrs. Russell is in large supply. The quality is not quite so good as it was when the skies were brighter and the prices are not so much above those of other roses as they were. On the whole the behavior of the rose to date is encouraging to the growers. Beauties are in good supply. Even short and medium stems are plentiful.

Carnations have been in such large supply that even with a little better demand some of the wholesalers have had no alternative except cheap sales to clean out. Splits are a burden, for good carnations are so cheap few buyers care for splits, although there is a big percentage of bursted flowers in

ALL THE ROSES

While we have all the roses, here are the ones on which we are best supplied today—you will recognize these as the ones in special demand:

KILLARNEY BRILLIANT	WHITE KILLARNEY	MRS. RUSSELL
BULGARIE (Taft)	MRS. WARD	MILADY
RICHMOND	OPHELIA	SUNBURST

Our prices never are higher than others ask if able to offer an equal grade of stock. Our "Select" grade is equal to what many offer as their best. Our "Special" and "Extra Special" grades are in a class by themselves.

SHORT AND MEDIUM BEAUTIES OF FINE QUALITY IN LARGE SUPPLY

CARNATIONS

Buyers will find it to their advantage to order Carnations of us. We have the quantity and our stock is widely known as always the most uniformly high quality large lot in this market. Remember—our prices are not higher than others charge, if they supply the same grade of goods.

VIOLETS

We handle the cream of the crops of the Hudson river doubles. Also a fine large pick of the fragrant home-grown singles. Sweet Peas are coming stronger daily.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

We can furnish fine Valley in quantity. You need it to go with the violets in the corsages, as well as for bride's bouquets, etc. It's as near indispensable as any flower on the list.

We have all the Specialties, such as fancy Cattleyas, Snapdragon, Pansies, Stevia, Daisies, Mignonette, Bulb Stock (Tulips and Jonquils are here) and every other flower that's in season.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies every day in the year.

most growers' shipments. Violets are again more plentiful and the quality is excellent, affording every incentive for the retailers to push their sale. Sweet peas have become more plentiful and of better quality; some excellent Spencer varieties are available in considerable quantity. Valley is equal to all requirements, and more. Cattleyas are coming stronger. These are the popular corsage flowers and they are selling in quantity, although at no high prices.

Tulips have arrived, jonquils having come a week or more ago. From now on there is likely to be a flood of bulbous stock, rising steadily as the weeks pass. Paper Whites were never more abundant and seldom less in request, prices having fallen to a point where there seems little incentive for the growers. Romans are not nearly so abundant. Freesia is more plentiful than it was last week. Easter lilies are offered in quantity. Stevia still is everywhere. The wholesalers in many cases are admonishing the growers to hold back some of these plentiful items, preferring not to crowd their counters for the inspection of the buyers.

Greens of all kinds are abundant. There have been considerable arrivals of boxwood since Christmas, stock delayed on the rail. Ferns are plentiful and there is nothing in the situation to indicate the approach of the flurry that some of the wholesalers predicted would appear after the turn of the year. Their calculations appear to be based on waste rather than on demand and it is apparent some of the ferns are not keeping any too well. It is not always possible to get asparagus strings and smilax at a moment's notice. They can be had for all early orders.

December Weather.

The warm weather of November continued until December 12, after which the temperature ranged much below normal. There was considerably more snow than usual in the month. The percentage of sun was slightly above normal, which may have been the most important factor in enabling the growers to bring in big crops for Christmas.

Lautenschlager's Surprise.

Fred Lautenschlager, well known throughout the country as well as in Chicago through his connection with Kroeschell Bros. Co., was married at Erie, Pa., on his way home from the S. A. F. convention at Boston, but kept it secret for four months, the announcement coming to his friends on New Year's day. His bride was Miss Margaret Marie Bemus. They will be at home after January 10 at 3500 North Herndon street.

Various Notes.

George Wienhoeber, who took over the store of Lubliner & Trinz January 1, used an advertisement of 300 lines in the Sunday Tribune to announce a formal opening for January 4. The store was handsomely decorated and never made a better appearance. Mr. Wienhoeber has with him, from the Fleischman staff, Peter Miller and George Mohn.

Bassett & Washburn sent four new carnation seedlings to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, who staged them at the meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia January 5. The seedlings were a new red, a dark pink, a rose pink, and a light pink. Mr. Washburn says if the production of cut flowers continues to increase, as it has, a new market will have to be developed for the surplus output, and that the time is not far off when all growers, large and small, will give a part of their glass to the growing of potted plants.

According to August Poehlmann the use of motor trucks to haul the cut to the city from Morton Grove has not proved much of an economy in money, but it has proved well worth while in other ways. The cost of two men and the usual allowance for interest, depreciation, repairs, etc., about equals the sum paid the express company when the stock was sent in by rail. There has been, however, a practical elimination of breakage, which formerly cost several dollars a day. Also, the trucks make city deliveries for the plant department, which has grown rapidly, carry boxes from the new factory to the store and do other work not covered by the record of express charges.

Wendland & Keimel now ship their cut to market in corrugated fiber board boxes made by the Lanzit Corrugated Paper Box Co., 503 South Jefferson street, using each box only once.

Josie Merle is the name of a new carnation that is making a reputation as a good shipper. It is a variety Peter Reinberg acquired last year from W. T. Symonds, of Decorah, Ia. It is near the color of Rose-pink Enchantress but has better form and keeping qualities.

The Chicago Florists' Club meets tonight, January 7, for the installation of officers. An exhibition of novelties also is announced.

Mrs. O. W. Frese had a close call New Year's day. She was standing before a window when a stray bullet entered, passing close to her head. The missile is preserved as a memento.

C. G. Anderson has a nice little nest of some 250,000 kentia seeds in his department at Morton Grove. There also is a splendid wide bench of cocos raised from seeds. The palm department is being steadily developed by Poehlmann Bros. Co.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says he believes the usual midwinter shortage of roses is in sight. He figures that, all the growers having had their roses and carnations in crop for Christmas, the cuts soon will decrease sharply. Mr. Michelsen anticipates, however, that this season there will be the largest supply of bulbous flowers this market ever has seen.

With the passing of New Year's John Degnan has settled down at his desk at Winterson's Seed Store to write the annual spring catalogue.

Sam Pearce sent in the first tulips seen in the market this year. They arrived January 2.

In spite of the many unusual features of 1914, Zech & Mann are able to report the money value of their sales is considerably the best of any year in the history of the house.

The travelers of the A. L. Randall Co., who now number ten, are preparing to take the road on the completion of the annual inventory, on which they have been assisting the last few days.

Adam Zender's son, Edward, has returned to St. Louis, where he attends school, after spending a pleasant holiday with his parents.

The Market.

The week has been filled with parties and other social functions and the demand for flowers has been heavy. We are informed that more corsages were sold last week than in any other week thus far this season. Funeral work has also been heavy.

There has been a shortage of carnations and of roses, except American Beauties. The output has been about normal, but the demand has been greater. Sweet peas, violets and valley are scarce. Lilies are almost off the market just now. Orchids are coming

BEAUTIES - CARNATIONS - ROSES

BEAUTIES—Our flowers are the finest coming into this market. The very short stem Beauties we do not advise handling at this time of year.

ROSES—Brilliant, Rhea Reid, Sunburst, Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, etc., exceptionally fine flowers in all length stems.

FANCY CARNATIONS—Our Carnation houses are the wonder of the trade. The flowers are so large and strong. Lilies, very long stems and large flowers. We solicit orders and ask for a comparison in quality with any flowers in this market. Growing all the flowers we sell, our customers are getting the benefit of the best methods and careful handling in a large modern range of glass. The advantages of buying direct of the grower are immense.

Various Notes.

E. G. Hill was in the city one day last week showing cut blooms of Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty. Ophelia has already made good here and will be largely planted this season. Hoosier Beauty looks good and will be given a trial. Mr. Hill also attracted considerable attention with his new yellow carnation. It is of large size and he claims it to be as free as Enchantress. Mr. Joy ordered a few hundred blooms to give it a try-out in the market before planting for another year.

H. M. Joy returned home in time for the holidays. He will take charge of the pot plants, having spent a year at Nahant in learning more about that end of the business.

It is understood there is to be a change in the personnel of the store force of Haury & Sons. One of the PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

New Year's festivities caused a lively demand last week for decorative plants and cut flowers. This season has, so far, been rather dull, and holiday trade was much behind previous years. Weather conditions have been arduous for the greenhouse men because of the low temperature, zero and below being reported for several nights during the early part of the week. This, with overcast skies, had a slight effect on the supply, but the holiday advance in prices tended to hold the demand within the limits of the supply.

Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held in Swarts' hall, Monday evening, December 28, with an unusually large gathering. The old officers were reëlected and will be installed January 25, when the eighteenth anniversary will be celebrated with a banquet.

President Cornelius Hartstra appointed Alexander Macrae and Robert Johnston to arrange for the anniversary, and several of those present signified their intention of being accompanied by at least one florist who is not a member of the association. One new member was added to the roster and several matters of a routine nature were discussed.

The Market.

New Year's business was disappointing, not so much in the amount done as in the prices, which were phenomenally low for the season. The quantity of flowers left over from Christmas, supplemented by the heavy cuts of the crops that have just missed the holiday, made a load that the market was wholly unable to carry. Pink roses and carnations of all colors continued the greatest sufferers, the prices on these flowers affecting all the others to some extent.

While there is less business than during the holidays, the accumulation of flowers has been worked off and the market, though weak, is in healthier condition. Beauties are going off a little. Red and white roses are really scarce at times. Spencer sweet peas, now about half of the total sweet pea crop, show signs of coming in more freely. Paper Whites are an awful glut. Early daffodils, primroses, freesias and a few gladioli are the novelties. Violets have been in excellent demand. Taking it all in all, conditions, while discouraging, are not nearly so bad as they might be and may improve in a fortnight or even less.

The Christmas Report.

While the greatest care is given to the Christmas report on market conditions, there are some lights and shades that should be added. Roses, for example, while most overdone, were also most used at Christmas. The sales of roses totaled at least one-half of all the sales of cut flowers, and probably more. Killarney, in which is included Killarney Brilliant, was offered in greater number than all the other varieties combined, and sold in greater number, so that, while Killarney was overdone, a little reduction in the output would have balanced supply and demand more evenly. Beauty, while it sold better than any other rose, is only grown on a half dozen places and Richmond, the next best variety, on only a few more, so that an increase in these varieties might easily change conditions. One reason why the carnation market broke so badly was because the flowers were not sent to the market early, as soon as fit to pick. Another reason was the large proportion of white; it looked like a Mothers' day, as one of the wholesalers put it. White carnations are little used at Christmas. Violets are not nearly so much grown here as they were a few years ago. Hightstown Lady Campbells are not the factor they once were. Some of the violet growers there now grow carnations. This induces the wholesalers to order the quantity of Marie Louise violets from the Hudson river district that they require and makes less danger of overproduction. Single violets will not keep on the plants, so that they do not figure so largely at the holidays. The et ceteras of the cut flower list are rarely in oversupply at Christmas. When well grown they nearly always sell at satisfactory prices.

Club Meeting.

E. J. Berlett delivered a rattling good address before the Florists' Club January 5, telling his audience that each one who works for the general good must advance himself in so doing. He applied the point to the club and next spring's national show.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. staged five splendid vases of carnations. Three were from Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, as follows: Bella Washburn, red; Helen Washburn, deep pink, and an unnamed light pink seedling. A vase of Mrs. C. Edward Akehurst was staged on behalf of C. Akehurst & Son, White Marsh, Md., and a vase of Mrs. Charles Seigwart for Charles Seigwart, of Baltimore. The Pennock-Meehan Co. also staged two fine vases of roses, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, for the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., and Hoosier Beauty, for the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

The Situation in Supplies.

The holiday business over, concluded in much more satisfactory shape than seemed possible four months ago, H. Bayersdorfer discussed conditions today. He said that his firm were pleased with business in the main; they had done well and were satisfied with the results. There were, however, conditions, Mr. Bayersdorfer said, that were most annoying. For instance, the steamer Roosheim, of the Holland-America line, that left Rotterdam October 28, bound for New York, with sixty-eight cases of moss wreaths, arrived January 2. These wreaths were badly needed to fill orders for customers before Christmas. Those customers naturally felt disappointment at the delay. Then there is the steamer Osterdyk, flying the flag of the same line, supposed to have sailed in September and to have some much desired mats on board. This steamer has not yet arrived. Mr. Bayersdorfer is inclined to believe that the British government has held up these steamers, believing them to contain contraband of war. The steamer Noordyk brought in a case of mats without warning and a number of other cases of supplies came in by way of Baltimore, also unheralded, so that the trials of a supply house in these chaotic times are manifest.

The jolly laugh of Charles Fox, Sr., enlivened the wholesale district January 4. Mr. Fox and Mr. Whilldin have the jolliest, happiest laughs you ever heard, just like boys without care.

H. H. Lineaweaver & Co., incorporate miners and shippers of anthracite and bituminous coal, have succeeded Smith, Lineaweaver & Co. This is a change in name only, as Mr. Lineaweaver, who has practical experience and ability of a high order, remains at the head of the firm.

William J. Morgan has returned from Bethlehem to this city.

John Kulp, who sold his retail business at Wayne Junction to C. H. Wiedenbacher last season, when he moved to his farm at Fort Washington, has now bought back the place. Mr. Kulp will improve the store and conservatory, put an automobile delivery car on the street and push the business generally.

C. H. Wiedenbacher, who has sold his business at Wayne Junction, has taken the store of Charles McMann, at Germantown avenue and Somerset street.

One of the most thoughtful judges of our cut flower market said there was no question that all the flowers grown could be sold at some price. It was for the growers to determine when that price went below cost.

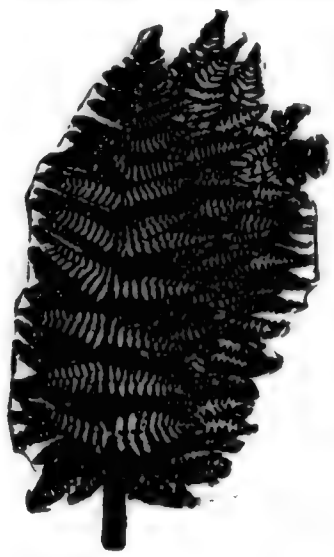
A New Line of Florists' Pottery

We have just completed an entirely new and distinctive line of Florists' Earthen and Glazed Ware that is a revelation.

There are wonderful glazed creations that have never been seen before—because they were never made before. This line is entirely different from any other pottery and will prove to be an instant seller. The designs are more than merely artistic—they are the product of positive genius.

There is something for every possible use or fancy—Porch Pots, Hanging Baskets, Lawn Vases, Flower Bowls, Jardinieres, Fern Dish Holders, Rose Jars, etc.

Hanging Baskets, Pots, Vases, Rose Jars, Fern Dish Holders, : : : : : : : Jardinieres : : : : : : :



We acknowledge no leaders in the matter of florists' pottery—all clay for pots is prepared by special machinery which can be found in no other flower pot factory in the west. This is but an example of Haeger thoroughness which is carried throughout every operation. You will see it evidenced in our packing and shipping—you will see it reflected in our promptness. YOUR SATISFACTION stands before everything else.

Send for a free sample of what you wish in flower pots.

There is a new catalogue and price list effective January 1st. It's ready now. Send for a copy.

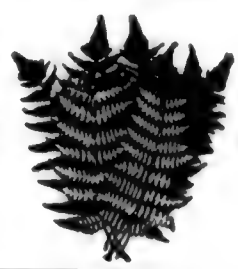
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

The market is light. The dark, cold weather is slowing up the cuts. Business, on the average, is not so good as last year. Violets and sweet peas are coming in fine. Poinsettias were not so popular as they should have been, and many growers were left with many on their hands. Cyclamens and azaleas were the most popular Christmas plants, but at that there was a surplus of large azaleas.

At the Monson Funeral.



Lakewood chapel was filled to overflowing at the funeral of John Monson, December 31. All those in the trade in the Twin Cities were represented personally and by flowers. A crescent wreath, measuring about fourteen feet across, made of bay leaves and Minnetonka roses, was sent by the men at the greenhouses of the Minneapolis Floral Co. Mrs. Monson was represented by a broken wheel, made of red roses and narcissi, one of the most beautiful pieces there.

The casket was covered by a blanket of orchids, white roses and valley, which was said by every one to be the most beautiful blanket ever made in Minneapolis or St. Paul. It was sent by the Minneapolis Florists' Club. The St. Paul Florists' Club sent a magnificent wreath of assorted flowers.

A much admired piece was a beautiful wreath of orchids, comprising at least twenty-five varieties, which was sent by Holm & Olson, of St. Paul. Another wreath, also much admired, was sent by the L. S. Donaldson Co., of Killarney, valley and hyacinths. Max Kaiser sent an odd wreath, of poinsettias, most artistically arranged. Holman Gerdes' spray of Richmond and narcissi was much admired. Many other pieces, too numerous to mention, were in the finest of condition.

The Market.

The New Year's business, taken as a whole, was more satisfactory than the Christmas business proportionately. Of course, the volume was not nearly so great as at Christmas, but sales were better all around. Stock was not so plentiful, although there was enough to take care of all orders. After the Christmas clean-up, the stock that came to the market and was quite good, and this fact helped considerably to dispose of the cut.

This year the burden has been entirely on the wholesalers, as the retailers have been buying much closer than ever before at a holiday. Inasmuch as stock was plentiful, they felt perfectly safe in buying from hand to mouth, and did not take many chances on future sales.

The absence of the usual slump following the holiday rush seems to augur well for the months to come.

Roses seem to be in fine condition. While the cut has diminished to some extent, the quality is high and the stock is moving readily. Carnations are still in large supply and consequently prices are not as good as they should be. The stock is moving well, however, and is cleaning up fairly well each day. Violets are still scarce, that is, Wisconsin-grown stock, and prices still maintain their high standard. Valley has moved well this last week, owing to an unusually large number of corsage orders that have kept the trade busy.

FOR SALE—A modern, up-to-date place, built in last four years, all walls concrete, 3 ft. 6 in. high, glass 4 ft.; carnation building, 50x200 ft., 8 cypress beds; rose building, 25x200 ft., concrete beds; plant building, 21 ft. 6 in. x 200 ft., part wood, part concrete beds, glass 16x24; propagating building, 11x100 ft., wood; 3 large cisterns, 3 concrete hotbeds, potting and shed building, about 35,000 pots, small barn and tool house, one 1-story dwelling, 18 large building lots, level land; concrete cellar; boiler house, 20x50 ft., made of concrete blocks, and a concrete cellar; good horse and wagon; will furnish gas for 6c per 1000, as we have our own oil and gas business and it takes our time, which is our reason for selling; $8,000 cash and $4,500 on time. E. Huston & Co., Sistersville, W. Va.

FOR SALE—Desiring to retire from business, successfully operated for the past fifty years, about July 1, 1915, I will offer for sale my greenhouses, located in a prosperous city of 16,000 population. Address No. 188, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

FOR SALE—Two good greenhouse boilers; on account of making changes with our heating, we offer for sale: 1 Furman 6 section boiler, only used less than one season, good as new, price $175.00; 1 Erie Economic return tubular fire box boiler, about 20 H. P., shaking grates, will heat about 7000 feet of glass, F. O. B. cars, $100.00; both are bargains; one 1¼-in. water meter, $15.00; expansion tank, $5.00. E. Rawlings, Allegany, N. Y.

FOR SALE—12 houses, 50,000 ft. of glass; hot water heat, 2 boilers; fully stocked and now conducting both retail and wholesale business; shipping plants to every state and Canada; residence consisting of 7 rooms and bath, hot water heat radiator in every room, separate boiler in cellar; hot and cold city water in kitchen and bath room; state paved roads on 2 sides of place; city car line passing on one side, car stops at gate for passengers; good growing soil; just outside corporation line of city of over 30,000; 5 steam railroads, 2 electric roads; American, Adams, Fargo express companies, making best of shipping facilities; as business conditions all over the country are improving, now is the only time you can pick up bargains such as this for several years to come; can give a convincing reason for selling; this is a big bargain, but if you have no money or can not get any, do not write. Address No. 184, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

We have been making a careful study of results obtained through our various advertising mediums, and, among the trade papers, we have found that we are obtaining the best results from the Florists' Review.

During the Convention in Boston, many visitors who came to our booth to inspect our advertising display mentioned the fact that they have seen a great deal of our advertising in the Florists' Review.

After careful investigation we are satisfied that yours is the leading Trade Paper and that the best results from advertising may be obtained by using its columns.

Yours very truly,

Penn the Florist.

The Market.

The cut flower market last week was simply a continuance of the holiday season. New Year's had no appreciable effect on values. Some of the leading retailers seemed well pleased with the results of the special celebrations New Year's eve, there being many decorations for dinners and dances. January opens with the announcement of many weddings and in society there is little evidence of economy. The automobile show opens this week and promises to be a brilliant success. Many orders for palm decorations have been given. The banquet season also has opened and the large hotels are crowded. There seems to be good reason for leading retail florists to anticipate a change for the better.

All last week the market was flooded, so that any tendency to change was downward, prices holding barely steady, and clean-ups were achieved only at considerable recession from regular values. American Beauties have held up well, as high as 50 cents being paid for the best January 2. The shipments of Killarney continue large. Of the specialties and newer roses there are none too many. On the older varieties the prices for large lots are shaded considerably from the quotations, the medium and short-stemmed stock being most in demand. Carnations were a drug during the holidays and many thousands were unsold.

The quality of much of the stock was superb and picklers got little or nothing.

Mums have made their farewell, but managed to see the old year out and the new year in, thus creating a record. Poinsettias had a bad season, demand light and quality on the whole below normal. The market is overburdened with narcissi, as low as eight bunches for $1 being quoted. Violets have gone back to the old figures of early December and shipments continue excessive. There still are too many orchids of the medium class and too few of the selects. Gardenias do not go above $3 per dozen for the best. Daffodils have arrived. There is a shortage in asparagus.

Various Notes.

Monday evening, January 11, will be inauguration night with the New York Florists' Club and there will be many features calculated to draw a large attendance.

The guarantee fund for the flower show, to open March 17, increased last week nearly $1,000. There is no doubt the full amount required soon will be subscribed.

Secretary John Young, chairman of the transportation committee for the carnation convention at Buffalo, is booking many names for the special car. A goodly company from new York is already assured. Exhibitors can take their flowers with them on the train.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business is far from satisfactory and prices are lower, particularly on carnations than we have had for several years at the commencement of the new year. There are occasional little spurts, but, on the whole, trade is not at all good in wholesale quarters. On the other hand, retailers continue to do a good business.

Roses are not doing well. The demand is good for short-stemmed flowers, which are moving better than the fancies. Beauties have taken a decided slump, and splendid specials are now sold at $4 per dozen, an unusually low price for this season. Of other roses Ophelia retains its popularity; so do Russell, Hadley, Killarney Queen, Sunburst and Ward. Carnations are selling at phenomenally low prices. A small number of select flowers make $4 per hundred, but the general average runs from $1 to $3.

Violets, both double and single, are fine in quality, but drag considerably. There are still some Nonin, Bonaffon and other mums. Mignonette is now good. There is a good supply of Golden Spur narcissi, campernelles and tulips. The last named move sluggishly. Freesia still sells finely. English primroses are coming from one or two growers. Yellow marguerites and cornflowers are moving well. Golden Spur daffodils sell better than tulips; the latter are still quite short-stemmed. Freesia is not yet abundant and sells well. Lilies and valley both move slowly. Cattleyas are in good supply, as are other orchids, but the demand is quieter. Gardenias sell fairly well. For green goods the demand is not good. Pot plant trade since Christmas has been somewhat quiet.

Various Notes.

John Barr, of South Natick, grows 40,000 carnations and his blooms are noted for their excellence. December 24 Mr. Barr shipped in 15,000 flowers, the largest single shipment he had yet made. He likes Matchless well, but it produces less freely than White Wonder. Champion is doing splendidly and will be more grown another season. Pink Delight and Mrs. C. W. Ward are great favorites with him, as are Beacon, Yellowstone, Yellow Prince and Mrs. B. P. Cheney. There are 30,000 rooted cuttings already boxed off and a similar number in the cutting bench.

Another meeting of the creditors of F. H. Houghton was held at the Boston Flower Exchange, January 2. This failure has given a great stimulus to the movement for a credit association to protect the growers and salesmen, something much needed in Boston.

Penn had a charming window of single violets, daffodils and yellow marguerites January 2. New Year's business broke all records and kept the force busy, table decorations being numerous. A large new basement store has just been secured at 40A Bromfield street, existing quarters being inadequate to care for the firm's increasing business.

Mann Bros. are handling some fine tulips and Dutch hyacinths in pans; also wallflowers, campernelle jonquils and marguerites. They still have white pompon chrysanthemums.

The present dull condition of the flower market and methods to be adopted to secure relief will be discussed at a meeting of growers, retailers and salesmen January 11. It is hoped that something can be done to improve existing conditions. The large growers should come out on this occasion and give their views.

At Carbone's, New Year's business was satisfactory. Christmas sales of cut flowers here were nearly double those of a year ago.

Thomas Stock, of Dorchester, is sending in splendidly grown double white and double pink bouvardia.

F. E. Shepardson, of Mansfield, is still sending in good flowers of Nonin and Bonnaffon mums.

John T. Gale, of Tewksbury, is having good success with both single and double violets this season.

In one of Wax Bros.' windows new table centerpieces are shown daily and prove an attraction. New Year's trade here was splendid. They had a large basket beautifully arranged with orchids January 2, including more species than I had before noted in any retailer's display.

N. F. Comley is sending in large quantities of sweet peas to his salesman, Henry J. Haas. Among carnations, his Beacon, White Enchantress, White Wonder and Pink Delight are noteworthy.

lady florist, is having good success with carnations and snapdragons this season.

The installation of officers and ladies' night at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club January 19 is sure to draw a large attendance. A splendid entertainment is being arranged.

F. L. Sly and W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, are sending in good double violets to the wholesale markets.

According to present plans, the Boston delegation to the Buffalo carnation convention will leave the South Terminal station January 26 at 10 a. m., arriving in Buffalo at 11:30 p. m. The fare one way on a 10-party ticket will be $9.67, chair $2. There will be a drawing room to be used by all who plan to carry flowers for the exhibition. A number from this section will take along exhibits and President Goddard will have a good bodyguard with him. All who have not yet notified him of their intention to go should do so without delay.

Burgess & Cooney, of Maplewood, are sending in large quantities of English primroses, which sell readily. They are growing carnations and Paper White narcissi in quantity.

Arthur H. Carr, one of the salesmen at the Boston Flower Exchange, was busy passing cigars January 2. It is a bouncing boy.

From Peirce Bros. the following roses are now good: Prince E. C. d'Arenberg, Richmond, Killarney Queen, Sunburst, Ward, White Killarney, Taft and Mlle. Cecile Brunner.

J. Newman & Sons say both Christmas and New Year's business was satisfactory.

chusetts Horticultural Society occurs January 9. The reports of the secretary, treasurer and chairman of the various committees will be read.

New Year's day is not kept as a holiday in Massachusetts and cut flower trade did not show a ripple in wholesale circles. The retailers, however, all report good business.

In one of Galvin's Tremont street windows January 3 were large baskets arranged separately with cattleyas, cypripediums, freesias, valley and Rose Ophelia. New Year's day business here was good.

Lively & Bond, of Holbrook, are one of the leading growers of callas and Paper Whites for the wholesale markets.

H. H. Bartsch says that Christmas trade with the W. W. Edgar Co. was ninety-five per cent of that of the year previous, a good proportion considering existing conditions.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. did a fine New Year's business, roses, violets and valley selling especially well. They continue to receive numerous orders for funeral work.

Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, has Miss Alice Coombs carnation now in splendid shape. He will go to the Buffalo convention and will have a number of his best seedlings on exhibition.

The Boston Sunday Herald had an interesting illustrated article on Boston's cut flower industry in its issue of January 3. Sales of cut flowers, plants, etc., were given on the authority of Henry Penn and T. F. Galvin as about $7,000,000 annually.

Patrick Welch is much improved and hopes to get back to his desk at 226 Devonshire street this week.

J. T. Butterworth is now cutting a large variety of orchids, including cattleyas, vandas, dendrobiums, odontoglossums, calanthes and cypripediums. Among the latter are Harefield Hall

The Market.

The New Year's as well as the Christmas business done by our wholesale and retail florists exceeded their expectations, both in the sale of plants and cut flowers. Of the former, azaleas, cyclamens and begonias were the best sellers. Poinsettias were plentiful, but they are regarded here as too common for presents and their sale this year was limited. Medium-priced stock of all kinds of flowering plants was in great demand. Although the cash sales fell back somewhat, it had no effect on the fine business done otherwise. A general increase in the demand for cut flowers, mostly put up in boxes, has been noted since the latter part of December, but the use of flowers for social functions has not reached the mark of last year. The carnival season begins January 6, lasting until the middle of February and forming a continuous string of festivities and entertainments. Some florists have been favored with fine orders for the various balls and all those in the cut flower and decoration business express the opinion that there will be a splendid ending of the winter season.

Various Notes.

Abele Bros. reported a satisfactory sale of flowering plants, especially medium-priced; likewise cut flowers.

P. A. Chopin had a large stock of plants and cut flowers and a visit to his place after the holidays found nearly the entire supply sold out.

Herman Doescher, growing for the wholesale trade, stated that last year's business was better. The general shipping trade on ferns, etc., is satisfactory.

C. Eble had an elegant holiday display and did as well as in former years.

C. W. Eichling had a fine stock of everything for gifts and sold out completely. He said it was much better than he expected.

Peter Kaul said the business, both for Christmas and New Year's, was good, both in plants and cut flowers.

The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. had an immense stock of plants, baskets and cut flowers and reported a fine sale.

Newsham & Scheurman, proprietors of the Orchid Store, stated that this year's business was a marked increase over that of last year.

F. J. Reyes & Co. made larger preparations than in former years, but hardly anything was left over after New Year's.

Mrs. Carrie Rehm reported a good business, both for Christmas and New Year's.

Max Scheinuk sold his Christmas plants at a good price, wholesale.

U. J. Virgin carried his usual big holiday stock and reported this year's business in every way as good as last year. R. E.

Vincennes, Ind.—Paul C. Schultz reports that his new No. 14 Kroeschell boiler "is working to perfection."

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

THE seedsmen of the south are confident this will be an excellent season for them because of the demand for seeds for crop diversification.

No seedsman ever lost money by pushing his sales in the early part of the season. March always brings as much business as can be handled.

THE seedsmen who specialize in tomato seeds will gather at Wilmington, Del., January 28, for the meeting of the Tri-State Packers' Association.

THE seedsman whose catalogue has its principal distribution locally is not hurrying the book—it is all right to have it ready when the snows begin to melt.

"WE have not advanced our prices on account of the war," in many seed catalogues, is almost too true. Except for beans, the prices average lower than for several years.

THE seed trade will find much of interest under the heading "Notes From Foreign Lands," which have been appearing almost weekly in this paper since the outbreak of war.

SEVERAL of the catalogues that last year went just over the even ounces have this season been kept a penny's postage weight lighter by the simple device of using slightly lighter paper.

THIS is the twenty-fifth anniversary year for Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, and both the general and wholesale catalogues carry two pages of history of the house, written by George C. Watson.

THE McVay Seed Co., of Birmingham, Ala., whose petition in bankruptcy was reported under the head of Business Embarrassments in the December 10 issue of The Review, will be sold out at public auction January 11.

ANDREW OSTBERG, the head of the A. Ostberg Seed Co., Chicago, was found dead in Riverside park, Minneapolis, December 29. He had hanged himself with wrapping twine from a low limb of a tree. His son Albert said the only motive he could think of was bad business conditions.

A HOMEMADE device for gathering crimson clover seed, which the southern farmer may make and use with a small outlay of time and money, is described in a bulletin soon to be issued by the Department of Agriculture, which may be had free of charge by applicants. The uncertainty of the foreign supply of crimson clover seed and the present high

POSTAGE.

In a year when scarcely any two seed catalogues contain identical provisions covering postage for the delivery of seeds, W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, put the matter differently from any of the others that have been heard from. Page 26 of the Annual says:

SEEDS DELIVERED FREE BY PARCEL POST.

By special act of Congress seeds were admitted to the parcel post in March, 1914. The former flat rate of 1 cent for two ounces of seeds or bulbs is maintained, however, up to and including eight ounces. Under this new law small lots of seeds can still be mailed at a uniformly low cost through the entire country, while larger quantities can be sent at reduced rates to neighboring zones.

We deliver free to any address in the United States, its colonies, and also to all foreign countries with which we enjoy the advantages of international parcel post, all seeds at prices quoted in this catalogue by the packet, ounce, quarter-pound, pound, half-pint and pint.

We deliver free also by parcel post beans, peas and sweet corn by the quart and four quarts to any address within 300 miles of Philadelphia, that is, within the first three zones, which include all of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, with parts of Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Vermont and New Hampshire, as shown in the map below.

For customers in zones outside the first three, who may order quantities of one to four quarts, we have deducted the cost of postage to the third zone and show amount of balance to be remitted in the table on the preceding page. Thus we aim to equalize, as nearly as possible, the advantages of the parcel post and at the same time make it safe and easy to order seeds by mail.

Two maps are printed, one showing the whole country, with zone circles, and a table showing the postage on

Asparagus Lutzi

This new Asparagus Fern has many qualities which render it superior to the old Asparagus Plumosus. It does not wind; it flowers profusely and seeds freely; its cultivation is very simple, and it only requires a cold house; it has no thorns. Even without water it will keep fresh for weeks when cut. A full description will be sent on application.

Nature's Millinery

Flowers are nature's millinery. The gentle sex at present writing wear them wherever a pin will catch hold—on the shoulder, the breast, or at the equator. Now, of recent years the female wash out on the line has not been very interesting, due to Parisian standards, but the time is coming soon when American women will cease to imitate along lavender lines, both in clothing and headgear. The style will be created in New York. The time will come when the Astorbilt fraternity will discard the imitation and wear real flowers on their hats. Society scrubs will follow and then the intelligent mass will trot along the line of least resistance. So we think within a reasonable time fresh flowers will decorate hats—and why not? Florists' ads will then run something like this: "Spring hats trimmed while you wait," "Send us your fall hat to be trimmed—we have a large variety of hardy fall trimmings," "Hats called for, trimmed and delivered daily," etc. And instead of stores filled with cloth, wax and feather flowers, there will be fresh flowers assorted according to season. My, what a harvest for good growers that would make! And the best of all would be the fact that lilies are perhaps the most appropriate under the circumstances. They keep longer, cover more space in decorating, and are very profitable to growers. That is, of course, if growers use Horseshoe Brand bulbs. America will have the greatest boom in the history of the world before very long—are you getting ready for the occasion?

Attention, Greenhousemen!

TOMATO—
Goetz's Best Yet

We especially recommend this new forcer as the best yet introduced. For forcing under glass it has no equal; as a producer it stands alone at the top of the forcing list. The fruit is smooth, large, bright red. Ripens all over at once; an extremely early setter. The skin is firm, but still thin, making it an ideal shipper. Goetz's Best Yet is offered to all who desire something especially choice for greenhouse forcing. The success with Best Yet as a forcer with the greenhousemen will be most astonishing.

A HYBRID SALES CONTRACT.

Negotiations for a contract by an Alabama firm to sell seeds for D. M. Ferry & Co. on commission were so grafted upon negotiations for an agreement for absolute sale or return that the Alabama Supreme court had difficulty recently in determining whether the result was a consignment on commission or a sale. The question became important in determining who was liable for taxes assessed on the seeds, D. M. Ferry & Co. or the retail merchants. The former paid the tax under protest and sued to recover the amount paid, on the theory that title to the seeds was in the dealers, and were defeated in the Circuit court, but, on appealing to the Supreme court, obtained a reversal of the judgment. The contract between the parties was evidenced by an order and an invoice and memorandum of shipment. The order called for seed to be sold on commission, the unsold seed to be returned with the boxes in good order when called for, and for payment then for all seed not returned. The invoice and memorandum of shipment recited shipment in compliance with the order, and directed attention to an itemized retail invoice on the inside of the box cover. Another clause read, "No allowance for exchange," and another, "We agree to buy back all unsold seed with boxes at prices billed, less discount, when our traveler calls." In rendering judgment, the Supreme court said:

"While, in the instant case, a portion of the contract has the words 'sell on commission' and the word 'consignment' written thereon, yet other portions (memorandum of shipment and invoice, etc.) make use of the words 'sold to' and agreement to 'buy back,' and nothing is said as to the title to the seeds or that the retail merchant is in fact the agent of the wholesaler, and, from what is therein contained, it is difficult to determine the real intention of the parties. The agreed statement of facts, however, contains the method of business, the course of dealing in reference to such transactions, and from such agreement it is disclosed that the retail merchant acquires complete dominion and control of the seeds, makes sales to whom he pleases at his own prices and on whatever terms he pleases, and makes no accounting whatever to the wholesaler. Indeed, from the agreed statement of facts, it appears the retailer deals with the seed as his own. He need not sell at all, but may give away the seed or use it himself. He is to account to the wholesaler for the seed not returned at the invoice price, less the commission, when the traveling man calls and adjusts the accounts, giving the retailer credit for the unsold seed at invoice price. This settlement is not to be made as the seeds are sold, but the settlement is to be made when the traveler calls; that is, on demand, as it were. The retailer sold to his customer in his own name, and the wholesaler was in no manner interested in the price obtained, but merely took back the unsold seeds, allowing credit therefor at invoice prices. When sold by the retailer, the proceeds of the sale were his own, and no duty rested on him to account therefor to the wholesale dealer.

"Under the agreed statement of facts as shown by the record, guided by the rules of law as found in the authorities consulted, we think it quite clear that the retailer was not a mere agent, but was in fact a purchaser of the seeds. It is shown that the retailer had the right to return the unsold seeds, and that the wholesaler agreed to buy them back at invoice prices. What, then, is the relation between the parties? * * * We are of the opinion that the real transaction between D. M. Ferry & Co. and the retail merchants, under the agreed statement of facts, was that of 'sale or return,' as disclosed by these definitions and authorities. The retailer was to pay for the seeds not returned at a certain price previously fixed by the parties, and at a certain time, that is, when the traveler calls, and he had the option of returning seeds not sold." S.

RECOVERY ON MISQUOTED RATES.

When seed, nursery stock or other freight is shipped from one state to another, the shipper will be presumed to know the rate which has been published by the railway company to which the freight is delivered, and in case the company's agent, through mistake, quotes too low a rate, there is no right to recover damages against the company. This is the gist of the decision of the Kansas City Court of Appeals in the case of Sloop vs. Delano, 170 Southwestern Reporter 385. Plaintiff, intending to purchase a quantity of timothy seed for shipment from a point in Missouri to Chicago, asked a freight agent of the Wabash railroad what the rate would be and was told that it would be 23 cents, whereas the rate was actually 29 cents. In reliance upon this statement, plaintiff bought and shipped seven carloads of seed. On discovery of the mistake, and on his being compelled to pay the true rate, suit was brought against the receivers of the road to recover damages, but the right of recovery was denied, on the ground that, since the actual rate was a matter of public record, the shipper must be presumed to have known it. It was also decided that the same principle must apply to a mistake made by a railway agent in showing a shipper the wrong rate sheet. The court said:

"The law charges shippers with knowledge of the lawful rates, and they will not be heard to claim the benefit of a lower than lawful rate on the ground that some railroad clerk has made a mistake in quoting a lower rate for a particular shipment. To permit shippers to impute negligence to carriers in quoting rates, and on that ground to enjoy the rate quoted instead of paying the lawfully published rate, would open a broad and ample way for the payment of rebates and for other

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Georg Arends, Ronsdorf, Germany.—Seeds of novelties and specialties in primulas and other plants; eight large, illustrated pages, printed in German.

Frank P. Putnam, Lowell, Mass.—A 12-page, illustrated catalogue of single, anemone and pompon chrysanthemums, the Putnam specialties.

S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.—''Isbell's Seed Annual,'' illustrated; 120 pages and colored cover. The vegetable lists are especially extensive, occupying the first seventy-three pages and including several pages of novelties.

G. H. Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—Wholesale list of seeds and bulbs, ''for florists and market gardeners''; sixteen pages, with the space about equally divided between flowers and vegetables.

Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan., with branches at Denver, Colo., and Oklahoma City, Okla.—A 112-page, illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, plants, nursery stock, tools and sundries; comprehensive stocks are listed in all departments, including tree seeds.

Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky.—''Seventeenth annual catalogue of Blue Ribbon seeds for the farm, garden, lawn and greenhouse''; also contains lists of plants, nursery stock, tools, insecticides and other supplies, with formulas for sprays; ninety-six pages, illustrated.

Wing Seed Co., Mechanicsburg, O.—Ninth annual catalogue, listing good-sized general assortments of flower, vegetable and agricultural seeds, but giving special prominence to the seeding and cultivation of alfalfa, in the growing of which the members of the firm were Ohio pioneers; ninety-six illustrated pages.

E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich.—Special wholesale list of gladioli, arranged alphabetically, but with offers, also, in ''color sections'' and in mixture.

Kennedy & Hunter, New York, N. Y.—A well printed, illustrated catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds, roots, bulbs, greenhouse plants, perennials, fruit trees and other nursery stock; fifty-six pages and a plain but attractive cover.

Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia.—An entertaining as well as instructive sort of catalogue, containing, in its 116 large pages, much that is out of the ordinary in both text and illustrations; its lists comprise garden, flower and field seeds, bulbs, plants, fruit trees and other nursery stock, implements, etc.

Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, England.—Wholesale catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds, well illustrated and clearly printed on a fine quality of paper; 108 large pages, including thirty pages of novelties and specialties. In the introductory matter is this notice: ''Owing to the uncertainty of deliveries and shortness of labor caused by the war, we can only accept orders on war conditions. At the same time, we anticipate but little trouble in this respect.''

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—Seventy-seventh annual edition of ''Dreer's Garden Book,'' compiled in the systematic and accurate style which is characteristic of this firm's catalogues, and which gives the books real value as convenient works of reference. At the beginning are the usual two indexes, one containing the botanical names, the other the common or English names. Included among the illustrations, also, are the usual full-page colored plates. Though a reduction in the size of the book, for the sake of economy in mailing it under the new postal regulations, might have been expected, it is enlarged instead, comprising 272 pages instead of last year's 256.

Calendars.

The Review has received 1915 calendars from: Clody's Flower Shop, Chicago, Ill.; the Clover Leaf Greenhouse, Cheshire, Conn.

IF YOU HAVE NOT THE WINTER-FLOWERING ORCHID SWEET PEA

in your greenhouses, see and ask your neighbor how they pay. It is still time to sow some now.

Now is the time to sow some of the Summer Sweet Pea Seed, outdoors or in cold frames, to have good crop for Decoration Day. I have only the best commercial varieties, like: Frank Dolby (lavender), Nora Unwin (white), Gladys Unwin (pink), etc.; 1 lb., $1.50; 5 lbs. of each, at $5.00.

My reselected Pink Spencer, White Spencer, Lavender Spencer, Lilac Spencer, Orange Spencer, Red Spencer, etc., at $5.00 per pound; in 5-lb. lots, at $4.00. Guaranteed over 90% true.

Countess Spencer, White Spencer (Burpee), Blanche Ferry Spencer, C. Routzahn, King Edward Spencer, at $1.50 per lb.; in 5-lb. lots, at $1.00, as long as surplus lasts.

...THE...
Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington
Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Corvallis, Ore.—T. H. Wellsher reports his Christmas sales the largest ever.

San Francisco, Cal.—Joseph Samuel, Inc., is the name of a firm recently incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000, to do business in San Francisco in flowers, plants, trees, etc., by J. Samuel, B. Samuel, R. Gordon, G. Gordon and H. Lesser.

Santa Monica, Cal.—The Mountain View Nurseries are enlarging the salesyard at 1044 Second street by fifty feet of frontage and are preparing to extend the lath houses. The pre-holiday rush was swelled with several eastern shipments of cut flowers.

McMinnville, Ore.—Better cuts and larger purchases of carnations and mums did not prevent a complete clean-up at the Pioneer Greenhouses, of which S. H. Maris is the proprietor. Potted plants likewise were sold out, so that orders had to be turned down.

Roseburg, Ore.—Mrs. F. D. Owen rented a separate store for the holidays and advertised freely. As a result she sold all her plants and cut flowers and had calls for more. While prices were low, the total receipts were good considering the general business situation.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Last week was surely a busy one for all. The Christmas business, heavy funeral orders and preparations for the New Year's tournament of roses at Pasadena kept everyone on the run and stock has been cleaned up remarkably well. Many of the azaleas that did not make the Christmas market are now being sold at almost as good as holiday prices and hardly any good plants were left over. Wholesalers say their out-of-town orders were considerably in advance of those of last year. One thing showed a big falling off, according to one shipper, and that was pepper branches. The eastern market for these is apparently not as good as formerly, possibly because of want of proper attention to shipping and routing. Native holly sold well; so, also, did the "Vancouver" berried stock. The larger sizes of Christmas trees were sold out early.

Various Notes.

C. Lewis, of the Freeman-Lewis Co., reported an excellent Christmas business and only two complaints out of the hundreds of orders sent out. One of these was on account of a plant that did not arrive in time, but investigation proved that this particular plant was ordered from another florist.

That irresistible smile of John Bodger, Jr., is more pronounced than usual these days, his Christmas present arriving three days ahead of time in the form of a fine boy—John of the third generation.

The cut and potted valley sent in by W. Armacost & Co., of Sawtelle, was said by the leading retailers to be the best ever seen in Los Angeles. Mr. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., said the bells were as big as Jerusalem cherries, but afterward changed it to California holly berries. The Richmond and other red roses from this firm were also of exceptional quality.

H. W. Turner was in with a splendid crop of roses and everything was cleaned up well for the holidays. Mr. Turner is again trying out a number of the new roses this season.

An unusually large funeral business was done at Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's December 30.

Smith & Dieterich's salesyard at Wall street has been completely renovated and rearranged; concrete walks have been laid and a new front has been added to the lath house.

All the wholesalers report an elegant Christmas business.

Owing to washouts, Christmas shipments to Arizona points were held up, causing considerable loss to the shippers. F. Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., is said to have lost heavily.

Gus. Martin, of Elgert & Martin, says they are shipping their entire cut to one wholesaler now and they find it more profitable than peddling the stock to retailers. It is a pity other growers would not come into line.

Big shipments of cold storage valley pips continue to be sent north by the Germain Seed & Plant Co. This firm is now digging its citrus and deciduous fruits, making a busy time in the nursery end, filling advance orders.

Looking over the sweet pea growers' plots at Montebello and in other sections, I have not seen a single good piece and there are no flowers worth mentioning in the market. Usually by this time there is a big supply of red that meets with a good demand.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The retail business for the six months just past will show better than

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Any florist on the Pacific coast not satisfied to do a local retail business can build up a prosperous wholesale trade by using space in The Review to let the buyers know where stock is to be found. This way:

We have found advertising in The Review to be very satisfactory. We have had orders from all parts of the United States, as well as from the Pacific coast, showing that your valued paper has a very wide circulation. At any time we have any special advertising to do we certainly shall send it to The Review.—Hogan & Kooyman, Oakland, Cal.

was expected early in the fall. A considerable decrease appears in large orders, and a decided increase in small ones. There has been a decrease in the total gross sales for the six months, which some firms estimate as high as twenty per cent. Unusually low prices received for cut stock has caused a part of this deficiency; the rest is due to a falling off in demand. Expenses have been cut to a minimum, so that the net profits may not have decreased in proportion to the gross sales. As the quality of the cut stock has never been better than that offered this fall, the public has reaped the benefit of splendid flowers at low prices.

Since the Christmas rush there has been a plentiful supply of roses, carnations, Paper Whites, Romans and some varieties of mums, which have cleaned up every day at normal prices, and no further oversupply of cut stock is looked for this winter. There will be no shortage of valley pips, as was feared a few weeks ago. There are now hardly any home-grown violets and it is expected that the supply from California will be sufficient from now on.

Potted stock is abundant, with poinsettias leading so strongly that they seem to be in oversupply. Other blooming potted stock, especially azaleas and cyclamens, have sold so freely that they will be cleaned up.

The seedsmen all report a good season's business; some claim an increase over the average. They have lately received shipments of Holland and Japanese ornamentals, which they were not looking for, thus adding materially to their lines of nursery stock.

The nurserymen have their fall stocks well cleaned up and have no complaint to make about their season's business.

The wholesale growers of cut stock have found a ready market at nearly normal prices ever since the glut of carnations and mums which occurred in the early fall, and while a considerable deficiency in receipts appears, they realize that the season might have been much worse than it was.

Various Notes.

H. J. Bigger, who has a florists' and nursery business at Oregon City, was in the city last week. He reports business excellent. He grows cut flowers and vegetables and gives considerable attention to growing vegetable seeds.

The holiday display of Otaheite oranges shown by Clarke Bros. attracted a great deal of attention. The oranges were home-grown.

Thos. Ellingham intends to put nearly

SUPERIOR-GROWN ROSES for IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg Has fulfilled every prediction made for it last season and is a big winner everywhere. There is no red rose grown that will make as satisfactory returns for the space occupied. Of exceedingly strong, sturdy growth, throwing splendid stems at all times; splendid foliage. The one best bet in red roses.
$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

Ophelia has proven of exceptional merit as a forcing rose; a great grower, clean and strong, very free, and a most beautiful color—brilliant salmon-pink, shading to orange. A fancy rose that you will be more than pleased with.
$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Killarney Brilliant This is the very last word in the Killarneys—an exceptionally strong grower, increased petalage and of heavier texture. A most brilliant and pleasing color; is doing well everywhere, and will be planted heavily this season.
$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer The most popular rose of its color ever introduced; has won its way to the very top on merit alone. A grand grower, very free, a splendid keeper and the most pleasing shade of pink; sells on sight, at top prices. Will be planted heavier than any other pink rose this season.
$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

All the new and standard varieties in quantity. Let us figure on your requirements for the coming season. We can make the price right for first-class, well grown stock.

W. H. De Graaff, of De Graaff Bros., bulb growers of Leyden, Holland, called on the trade last week. S. W. W.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The stores all did a good business at Christmas. The prices in some lines were not quite so high as in former years, but the average was about the same and a good clean-up was made. Carnations were about as scarce as usual at Christmas, and as a consequence they realized high prices, reds selling at $3 per dozen. Since Christmas, trade has been good and there is no overstock of any kind of flowers. Carnations continue scarce and growers now are getting fair prices. Chrysanthemums are about cleaned up, but bulbous stock is in, in fairly liberal quantities, and it helps to relieve the situation. Violets are now being sold at many of the street corners; the prices of these were high at Christmas, but as a rule they sell so cheaply as to be hardly worth handling.

The frost of last week, while hard on the coal supply, should have its compensations for the growers of bedding stock. Last year so many geraniums and other plants were carried over outdoors as to interfere seriously with the sale of young plants, but there should be no complaint on this score in the coming season.

DAHLIAS FOR CUTTING.

What are the names of good white, pink and red decorative or peony-flowered dahlias that will do well here, in central Alabama? I want varieties suitable for cutting. E. C.

In decorative varieties I would recommend Catherine Duer or Jack Rose, for scarlet; Mme. Van den Daele, shell pink; C. W. Bruton, bright yellow. In peony-flowered varieties try Bertha von Suttner, salmon-pink; Queen Wilhelmina, pure white; Lady Seville, orange scarlet. All these are splendid sorts for cutting. C. W.

SPRENGERI FROM SEED.

I am about to sow some Asparagus Sprengeri seed and I know but little about it. Will you please tell me whether I can sow it in flats, then transplant to other flats and grow the seedlings there? Is a shelf over steam pipes the right place in which to start them? What sort of soil is best for the seed? How deeply should the seed be covered and how moist should it be kept? How long will it take to germinate? Can I get a paying crop next winter from seed started now and planted in the house next August? Any other information will be gladly received.

E. G. C.

Seeds of Asparagus Sprengeri may be sown in flats filled with light, sandy soil. No manure is required in the seed boxes. A shelf over the steam pipes will be a satisfactory place in which to start the seed, provided the soil in the flats is kept moist. A safe rule for the depth to which the seed should be covered is to cover with soil to about the diameter of the seed, or a little more.

The time required for germination depends in a great measure on the freshness of the seed and the evenness of the conditions as to heat and moisture. A temperature of 60 degrees at night will answer, and, with fresh seeds, some of them may show above ground in three weeks. The seedlings may be transplanted to flats, and when large enough may be planted out on benches containing four to five inches of rich soil, where they should produce some good growths for cutting next winter.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A LARGE attendance of the nurserymen of the middle west is expected at the public sale of the Phoenix Nursery Co., by the receiver, at Bloomington, Ill., January 16.

E. S. THOMPSON, Benton Harbor, Mich., has secured a satisfactory settlement with the Big Four railroad on a claim for fire that destroyed his evergreen nursery.

CHARLES B. PETERSON, who has been in the nursery business for many years, will open a nursery next spring on the East Mille Lac road, near Aitkin, Minn., on land he owns there.

PERHAPS the nursery trade, which has its own troubles, fails to appreciate its good fortune in having the bulk of its patronage in rural communities, where business is better than it is in the cities.

AN automobile was the prize given by the W. F. Cobb Co., of Franklin, Mass., to E. A. Corthell for selling the largest amount of nursery stock of any of the company's agents. Such a prize should add to the agent's results next year.

IT is said that the chestnut bark disease is imported from eastern Asia on nursery stock. Officers of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture have destroyed, or coöperated in destroying, diseased nursery stock in many orchards and nurseries outside of the present general distribution of the disease.

INSPECTION IN MINNESOTA.

In his report for the years 1913 and 1914 the Minnesota state entomologist gives the total number of nurseries in his state as 130 and the total acreage as 3,000. Only 117 nurseries are licensed, as some do not ship stock.

The movement for a uniform inspection law in all the states, led by the American Association of Nurserymen and the American Association of Horticultural Inspectors, is endorsed, and the provisions of the tentative bill are for the most part approved. The entomologist, F. L. Washburn, believes there should be some means of a nurseryman's obtaining a more prompt settlement of an appeal from an inspector's decision than a full meeting of an inspection board, such as is provided in section 2 of the suggested bill, would be likely to allow. Mr. Washburn believes, too, that the Minnesota law's definition of a dealer, i. e., one who grows less than fifty per cent of the stock he sells, is better than that of the law proposed by the A. A. N., which defines a dealer as one who grows no nursery stock. His reason is that a dealer might, under the latter law, grow a little stock and still be essentially a buyer and seller.

Mr. Washburn gives as the two enemies for which the nurseryman in his state must particularly watch, the San Jose scale and crown gall, although oyster shell scale and the woolly aphis of the apple are apparently on the increase in Minnesota. Cases of San Jose scale are rare, but crown gall is almost everywhere present. Its effect on the apple is not certain, but on raspberries it is distinctly injurious, and large lots of this stock are destroyed in the course of inspection because of the presence of crown gall.

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.
CHARLES L. SMITH,
Oct. 13, 1914. Pennsgrove, N. J.

EXCUSE FOR NOT READING NOTE.

Contained Waiver of Warranty.

The maker of a note given for nursery stock is entitled to defeat liability on it on the ground of mistake, if it appears that in signing the note he unwittingly and excusably failed to ascertain that it contained a waiver of a warranty of the stock, according to a recent decision of the Oklahoma Supreme court in the case of McKinney Nursery Co. vs. McDonald, 143 Pacific Reporter 191.

Defendant gave plaintiff a note containing a clause in which defendant recited that the note was "given in settlement for nursery stock that has been delivered and found to be in good condition, and it is expressly agreed and understood that the responsibility of McKinney Nursery Co. for same now ceases and determines, and that in receiving above-mentioned stock, I assume all risk on same, except for the written guaranty which is stipulated in said order given for this stock, which is a guaranty of replacement for the first year at one-half the purchase price of stock that fails to live, and that no promise or agreement not herein expressed has been made by said McKinney Nursery Co., its agents or employees."

The trees, for a balance on the purchase price of which this note was given, had been planted out at defendant's residence, with roots covered with soil and unseen by him, but tops in plain view, when and where the note was given. The trees had, a short time theretofore, been taken to defendant's residence in his absence and planted by plaintiff upon defendant's prior order therefor, in which order he had agreed to pay $450 as the purchase price of the trees at the time of delivery. The order contained the following provision:

"In consideration of the above contract we promise to deliver healthy, well-grown trees and true to name. The value of any article not furnished will be deducted on settlement."

Defendant attempted to show on the trial that, as he first came to know upon transplanting, the trees were diseased and some of them dead at the time he executed the note, resulting in loss of value equal to the amount of the note; that it appeared to him, from an examination of the tops at the time he executed the note, that the trees were in bad condition, if not dead; that having eyes that were not strong and being a poor reader, he did not read the note, nor was it read to him, but upon the assurance of the plaintiff's agent that the trees were in a good, healthy condition, and that the note contained the above-quoted provision of the prior contract and would not affect plaintiff's obligations under the contract to furnish him good, healthy trees, the defendant executed the note without reading the same or having it read to him.

Note Continued Contract.

In deciding the case in defendant's favor, the court said:

"One who fails to read or have read to him a writing which is plain and unambiguous in its terms, is prima facie bound by the same and guilty of such negligence in his ignorance of its provisions as will preclude him from obtaining relief therefrom upon the ground of mistake as to the same.

"And the mere fact that his eyes are not strong and he is a poor reader, is not alone sufficient to warrant a finding that he is free from negligence in failing to ascertain the contents of the writing; but where the writing is not in settlement of a demand, but is mutually intended to continue in force a certain part of a prior contract, with which the payee represents it is identical, it is, in such a case as this, for the jury to say whether he is guilty of negligence which deprives him of his right to relief upon the ground of mistake against a release of a warranty contained in the contract and implied by law, in the absence of the contract.

"In view of another trial, it seems proper to suggest that the alleged erroneous statement of the agent as to the contents of the note would seem to indicate fraud rather than mistake, in the absence of evidence of his ignorance of such contents and belief that it contained the term in question, as he would ordinarily be presumed to have known what the note contained and that it did not contain the omitted terms." S.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market

New Year's trade in this city did not amount to much, although Christmas was fairly good and in some cases was better than last year. Because of the severe weather cut flowers were none too plentiful, brought good prices and cleaned up well. The plant trade was fair. The Hadley rose is a winner and brought as high as $5 per dozen at retail. Pans of Proserpine tulips sold well, but begonias, azaleas, ferns and cyclamens moved slowly.

Various Notes.

James Morrison and Miss Mae Mansfield were married last month, in Agawam. Mr. Morrison is a grower for Mark Aitken, while Miss Mansfield has been employed at the store. After a wedding trip to New York they are at home on the River road, Agawam.

A visit to the large new greenhouse of Sinclair & Sons, at Smith's Ferry, is worth while. It certainly is a fine house. The carnations, though planted late, are coming along nicely. Eureka carries a fine lot of buds. This carnation is being grown by quite a number hereabouts and is a fine red. Other crops grown at Sinclair's are sweet peas and snapdragon, while between the sweet peas was a fine crop of lettuce. The old range of glass will be removed from Holyoke, where there are some fine orchids, along with some good ferns, of which quite a number of varieties are grown. F. J. C.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The later Christmas reports seem to have been quite satisfactory and many were pleased that it was possible to offer their stock at reasonable prices, to which fact they attribute the volume of business. The wholesalers were able to dispose of large quantities of stock at the cheaper prices, but the growers are the most disappointed, as they saw the large crops coming and counted on getting the usual holiday prices and making up some of their early season losses.

The cut flower business was quiet after Christmas and New Year's was hardly up to expectations, so that all will welcome the new year with hopes for a revival of business generally.

Various Notes.

Samuel McClements has been on the sick list since Christmas, confined to his home with a severe attack of tonsillitis.

Wm. Colligan, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has been confined to his home since before Christmas with blood poison from a boil over his left eye. He is convalescing.

Miss E. B. Maxwell, of Wilkinsburg, had the misfortune to have her large new auto truck disabled just when they were making Christmas deliveries.

P. S. Randolph & Sons had their truck loaded with plants tied up on the avenue on the night of December 23.

Pete Godeni landed in front of a trolley car with the truck of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. and was out of business for a couple of days before New Year's.

Clarke.

The growers of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. have this year organized a basket ball team, and have played six games, losing three and being victors in three. December 30 the genial superintendent, F. Kocher, invited the playing members and the rooters to his home. His wife and daughter served light refreshments during the evening. An enjoyable evening was spent.

TURN OVER

that new leaf and forget all that you have said about Poor Business. He's a dead one and so deeply buried under the "Heaviest-ever" Holiday Trade that we cannot even hear him grunt. It takes a hard knock to clear the vis on of some of us. Surely Christmas business deserves notice. It shows us florists that the people want our goods, and we should wake up and keep them coming—both people and flowers.

The next big days that loom up are Easter and Memorial Day. The seedling plants of Silver Pink snaps that we offer should give some blossoms at Easter and a bumper crop at Memorial Day. They are healthy, branched, and ready, and the price is only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000.

Other varieties are: Yellow, $5.00; Garnet Gem, $8.00, and Nelrose, $6.00. We specialize in snapdragons, and our expert packing makes delivery safe regardless of distance or weather.

Don't forget that it is also seed-sowing time. Prepare early for a big spring trade in snaps. New crop seed of our Silver Pink at $1.00 per pkt., 3 for $2.50, 7 for $5.00. Cultural directions free. All orders cash.

Along with that "new leaf," turn over your vacant space to snaps and send along your order for the most profitable variety in existence. See next ad for figures.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

The latter half of 1914 was quiet here. Business in all lines has been dull and florists have had about the same experience as others. Counter trade has been only fair, but there has been a steady demand for funeral work, which has been the backbone of the business. Christmas sales equaled those of 1913.

The firm of Devine & Crawford, 57 East Main street, has been dissolved, Russell E. Crawford taking over the business.

The Wm. R. Yeager Co., 78 East Main street, had an exceptionally fine lot of poinsettias just right for the holidays and also did well with Lorraine begonias.

The Century Flower Shop, 321 De Kalb street, had a nice batch of Enguehard mums that sold well for Christmas. Some excellent cyclamens and azaleas were noted in this store.

P. J. Callahan, formerly with the Wm. R. Yeager Co., opened a stand at Marshall and De Kalb streets for the holidays and did a good business with greens. W. H. C.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The New Year's as well as the Christmas business, from the general report, exceeded expectations. The volume of holiday business was great, probably greater than a year ago, but the credit sales were much more in evidence than the cash sales. Plants sold extremely well, especially the moderate priced ones, although azaleas found a ready market. Cut flowers found an excellent market and brought splendid prices.

New Year's day trade was especially heavy this year and the amount of cut flowers and corsages sold during holiday week was enormous. The market has now settled down to normal, with prices as usual and the supply, especially on roses, somewhat short.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a large sale on red immortelle automobile wreaths.

The Bradley Flower Shop reports a good week's business, with the demand for cut flowers mostly in evidence.

G. W. Doswell & Son were rushed with corsage work during holiday week.

Herbert Zur Muhlen's holiday business ran mostly to plant sales, although he disposed of a quantity of cut flowers. R. F.

MATCHLESS A GREAT SUCCESS

The Market.

Trade in general has been good. The weather has been quite favorable, with the exception of one or two days when the thermometer registered 3 degrees below zero. Funeral work has been abundant and all had a share.

Various Notes.

Ernest Chamberlain reports that business is not so good in his new stand as it was when located on Purchase street, although when called on he was busy with several large funeral pieces.

Ed. S. Shaw, of North Dartmouth, is cutting sweet peas of finest quality.

Post & Gray report an excellent Christmas business, much above their expectations.

Fred Reynolds reports a heavy run of funeral work, this being the best week since he started in business.

John Leal, employed by Edward Davis, who a few days ago was taken to St. Luke's hospital suffering from the effects of coal gas poisoning, we regret to say did not recover. F. R.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather has been bright and pleasant, and stock is blooming nicely. Roses are fine, while carnations, though good, are splitting to some extent, especially the Enchantress varieties. The market is slightly overstocked with narcissi.

Owing to the large number of social affairs during the holidays, trade has been brisk. New Year's business was much better than last year; this was due to several New Year's dances and parties, which demanded a large number of corsage bouquets. Funeral work has been about normal, while wedding work has figured up well.

Various Notes.

Several good wedding jobs and the usual run of funeral work have kept Mrs. Ryno busy.

Addison J. McNutt reports business good.

C. W. Crouch's force has been busy during the last week. Corsage work has been plentiful.

A. H. Dailey turned out a great deal of funeral work last week. Plants have been in great demand. He furnished his share of flowers and decorations for the numerous social affairs.

Last week was a busy one with Chas. L. Baum; local trade was fine, while he received several large orders from out-of-town agents. R. E. M.

NEWPORT, R. I.

John B. Sullivan, florist, who is a member of the House of Representatives of Rhode Island from Newport, was defeated for the position of speaker. He becomes the floor leader of the minority, however.

Practically all of the florists report good business at Christmas and nearly all made good clean-ups. Potted plants sold well and made-up baskets were a feature.

Much interest is being manifested in the coming shows here and never before has there been such activity as at present among the growers. Arrangements are being made by the big seed concerns of other cities to grow their sweet pea novelties here in preparation for the annual show of the American Sweet Pea Society in July. The newly elected executive committee of the Newport Horticultural Society and the committees of the Newport Garden Club have begun active measures to be ready for the opening of the big display.

Carl Jurgens began cutting his ice supply on Green pond Tuesday, December 29, the ice measuring more than eight inches. W. H. M.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Notwithstanding the severe cold, business, both wholesale and retail, has been remarkably good. The market in general is lower than it was a year ago. Large shipments arrive daily and are disposed of rather fast. Extra fine American Beauties are seen and bring fairly good prices. Carnations have been good sellers. The shipments have been good, with far more white than colored. Easter lilies are quite plentiful and meet all demands. The calls for valley have been larger this last week and elegant stock is on the market. Orchids, which are smaller on account of the season, are cheaper and move more freely. Cypripediums sell rather slowly. Snapdragons and forget-me-nots sell well. Jonquils and Paper Whites move quite easily.

Various Notes.

George B. Hart is much pleased with the holiday trade. There were more customers, but the lower prices kept down the receipts.

The Rochester Floral Co. reports that just about as many customers were cared for at Christmas, but sales were much smaller than last year. New Year's trade was quite slim.

J. B. Keller Sons had a quite good holiday trade. They report one large decoration at the state armory, which took several days.

Oliver Mixner, of H. E. Wilson's force, is improving satisfactorily.

H. E. Wilson is showing some fine white Dutch hyacinths in full bloom, which sell quickly. Christmas trade, although not up to its usual high standard, was satisfactory, considering the present state of things.

George Kramer, who has been working during the holidays with S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, is again in town.

George T. Boucher says he had a good Christmas trade, extending well over to New Year's. H. J. H.

The Market.

The coming of the new year did not bring anything new in the way of business to the trade, especially so for the wholesale stores. There still is a large surplus of all varieties of stock, carnations being in heaviest oversupply. There was only a fair demand for New Year's decorations and the street boys were in their glory. Lexington street, from Liberty street on the east to Eutaw street on the west, was literally lined on both sides with venders of surplus Christmas stock. The week's business brought no special demand for anything and, while a great deal of stock was disposed of, prices were ridiculously low for this season of the year and at present give little prospect for anything better.

Various Notes.

C. Harry Wagner, formerly with Halliday Bros., now represents the Meyer-Stisser Co., seedsmen.

Stevenson Bros. are sending some fine Killarney Brilliant to the Leo Niessen Co.

James Witters, for some years foreman for Samuel Feast & Sons, at their Beechfield greenhouses, is no longer with the firm. Lawrence Upman and Edward Wooten are in charge of the rose range.

James Glass has purchased a new Dodge touring car. Mrs. Glass, who has been ill since July, has recovered sufficiently to again attend to the markets, being at the stall for the first time Christmas eve. In her absence Miss Mamie Glass has filled her mother's place there.

Wm. J. Halliday has had a fine display of cattleya and cypripedium plants in flower, which showed up well as a window decoration.

Pierce & Co. are occupying their new store, the House of Flowers, having moved in January 1. This firm has recently been incorporated.

The next club meeting will be January 11, when final arrangements will be made for the ladies' night, January 25. F. C. Bauer, chairman of the entertainment committee, requests the attendance of its members at a meeting to be held at the club rooms at 7:30 January 11. W. F. E.

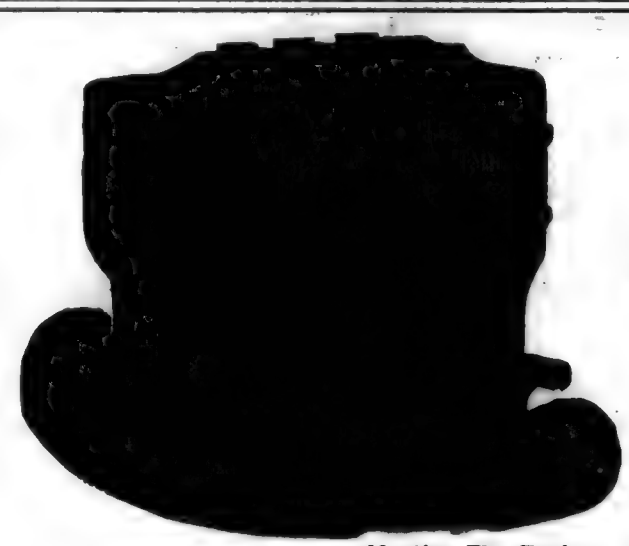
Greenhouse Heating.

ATTACHING A GENERATOR.

The general accuracy and helpfulness of the suggestions given in The Review's Heating Department are sufficiently indicated by the frequent receipt, at The Review's office, of letters containing such statements as this: "A year ago we rearranged the piping in our greenhouses in accordance with instructions received from your paper, and the results were so satisfactory that we are now coming to you for directions about the installation of the heating system in our new house." However, a query and reply published in the issue of December 10, 1914, under the title, "Attaching a Generator," was considered objectionable by some of the generator manufacturers, as not doing full justice to their apparatus; so two of the firms sent in good-natured protests. The Review, of course, would greatly dislike to create any impression that would be in the least unfair to the manufacturers or misleading to those who ask for information. Therefore, in order to do justice to all concerned and throw as much light on the subject as possible, the question about the generator is here reprinted; then follows the reply which aroused the objections; next come the letters of the two objectors, and these, again, are followed by a second reply from The Review's expert, written after the protests had been submitted to him.



We are heating a greenhouse, 28x100, by the overhead, downhill hot water system, with a pipe running to the expansion tank from a 4-inch main directly over the boiler. The top of the main is only about eight inches below the bottom of the expansion tank. Now I wish to attach a mercury generator, and of course I shall be unable to locate the generator between the top of the main and the bottom of the tank. Will good results follow if the generator is located at some point below where the expansion pipe is connected with the main? A. B. R.

In order to secure any benefit from a generator, it must be used in connection with a closed system, as a generator really is nothing more than a safety valve and vacuum valve combined. Hence, unless the expansion tank can be put under pressure, no effect will be secured from the generator. However, the generator can be attached to the system, either on the flow or on the return pipe, provided the expansion tank is removed and an air valve is inserted at the highest part of the main. This, however, might cause trouble, since air might collect in the main and hinder the circulation. To correct this difficulty, unless the expansion tank now in use is capable of being put under a pressure of 100 pounds, I would suggest that it be replaced with a small, riveted steel tank, with a water column on the side and an air valve in the top. With a reasonable amount of attention, the main can then be kept free from air, and by using the circulator the water can be carried under pressure.

We have just noticed your reply to A. B. R. in the December 10 number of The Review. Your correspondent asked a simple question and your reply may mislead him.

In the first place, a mercury generator is to be used on an open expansion tank and never a closed one, as you have stated. The expansion tank can be made of the lightest tin, so far as the working of the generator is concerned, with its top entirely open, or it can be of the usual type of tank, with a 1-inch overflow and open and free to the atmosphere.

The generator is attached to the expansion pipe at some point between the bottom of the expansion tank and where the expansion pipe joins the heating system. It is best practice to take the expansion pipe from an overhead main near the boiler and drop down to the generator, which should

In all parts of the country progressive, pushahead florists are recognizing what sluggish steam lines mean to the temperature in the greenhouse. Unless the pipes are properly drained, the temperature is bound to fluctuate—result: poor stock. With the

you can be sure that the steam lines will not only be properly drained, but that every inch will be an active heating surface, for the Morehead System returns and feeds the condensation pure and hot to your boiler—placed above ground, thus establishing a steady, uniform temperature for the growing stock. It saves heat, time and fuel. Write today and let us tell you more about it. It will be worth while to know.

be located on the boiler room floor, or thereabouts, and from the top of the generator the expansion pipe should extend up to the tank, which should be thirty inches or more above the top of the highest pipe or radiating surface, if possible.

No air valve is necessary in the top of the tank, and the only difference between an ordinary hot water job and one with a generator, so far as A. B. R.'s case is concerned, is that one has a mercury generator attached to the expansion pipe while the other has not.

Honeywell Heating Specialty Co.

We note an article in your Christmas number, December 10, page 130, regarding generators. When your engineer answered the inquiry he evidently was not familiar with the Kroeschell generator, and under the circumstances we are inclined to excuse him this time. The reply, as written, is certainly detrimental to the sale of generators, and to guard against a repetition of this mistake we enclose herewith two copies of printed matter referring to the Kroeschell generator, and would be pleased to have you give one copy to your engineer; the other copy can be retained for your office files.

We have installed hundreds of Kroeschell generators throughout the United States and Canada; these generators have been installed to meet almost every condition that may exist in greenhouse heating, and of the great number of generators sold over 99.6 per cent are still in operation, and giving perfect satisfaction. We wish to emphasize that less than one per cent of the large number of generators sent out have been returned.

Our generators are fully guaranteed to do what is claimed for them, and if the purchaser, for any reason, is not satisfied after he has installed a Kroeschell generator, it can be returned and the purchase price will be cheerfully refunded. We wish to call your particular attention to the fact that an open expansion tank always is used with the generator—not a closed tank, as your engineer states.

Kroeschell Bros. Co.

The reply to A. B. R. was written with a perfect understanding of the construction and working of the various generators now on the market, and, instead of being an attempt to get in a "kick" against the merits of generators, it was intended to aid A. B. R. in making the connection so as to get the best results from a generator under the conditions mentioned; namely, when the expansion tank is only eight inches above the top of the main. While it is true that generators are ordinarily used in connection with open expansion tanks, it is equally true, on the other hand, that whenever a generator is connected and working, it virtually produces what is a closed system, in which the water is under pressure.

If the generator is connected with some point of the system other than the expansion pipe, which is the idea involved in the question of A. B. R., then, as stated in my reply, no pressure can be obtained if the present tank is an open one and is left in place. Of course there would be no difficulty whatever in connecting the generator to the expansion pipe between the main and the expansion tank, were the distance three or four feet, but, with a distance of only eight inches, it was deemed better to suggest the use of a closed tank in connection with a generator.

So far as the writer's knowledge goes, the manufacturers of all of the generators on the market insist that the open air expansion tank be located at least thirty inches above the highest part of the system, and more if possible. The use of a closed tank, as advised in my reply to A. B. R., would practically have the effect of elevating the tank.

TESTIMONIAL

WEVER, IOWA, December 28, 1914.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: We have just been painting the greenhouse material and hotbed sash we received from you, and we wish to write you a short letter in regard to the quality of this material.

We knew, of course, when we first saw the goods you sent us that we had something extra fine in quality, but when we came to paint it and examine it closely we were more than pleased.

In fact, the hotbed sash and greenhouse material was absolutely free from knots, worm holes and sap, and if they were defective in any way we have not found it yet.

We have bought several hundred hotbed sash locally and have always got what we considered first-class sash, but your sash are ahead of them every way, not only in quality of material but especially in construction and workmanship, and, best of all, we saved forty cents on every sash.

If you wish to refer anyone to us, or to print this letter, you are at perfect liberty to do so. Yours very truly, EDGAR BEEBE & SONS.

The above are responsible gardeners and farmers, and it is with pleasure that we print this verbatim copy of their letter, the original of which we have in our office.

The purchase from us was made only after due consideration of the estimates of other manufacturers covering the same material. Their order consisted of several hundred hotbed sash, material for three greenhouses and a carload of pecky cypress bench material. Their verdict is the same as that of many other well satisfied customers who use our material.

Send us your inquiries and be happy, as they are.

New Year's festivities caused considerable business for some. Cut flowers were chiefly in demand and some good decorations were made. A number of floral remembrances were sent to the new city officials, who went into office January 1. Funeral work has been heavy all through the holidays.

Various Notes.

Karl Zeidler reports a light business for New Year's, but he had a large quantity of funeral work, which kept the force busy. He is working up a large stock of plants for his spring trade. His bench of sweet peas is doing splendidly since the bright weather has come. A fine lot of longiflorums will soon be ready to cut from.

Julius Niednagel & Sons had their usual good New Year's trade. They continue to have a fine cut of Ward and Richmond roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. sent out a large quantity of cut flowers New Year's. They had the decoration of the Vendome hotel for Christmas and New Year's. Geo. Blackman was 53 years old Sunday, January 3, and his annual banquet to the employees was held Saturday, January 2.

W. D. Macer says he was busy sending out cut flowers and plants for New Year's. He had a few plants left over, but not many. Cyclamens were his best seller for the holidays.

E. L. Fenton is getting his White Wyandottes ready for the poultry show, January 18 to 23, of which he is assistant superintendent.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting nice Killarney and Russell roses again, since the weather has turned clear. Killarney has that good pink color which makes it a favorite. E. L. F.

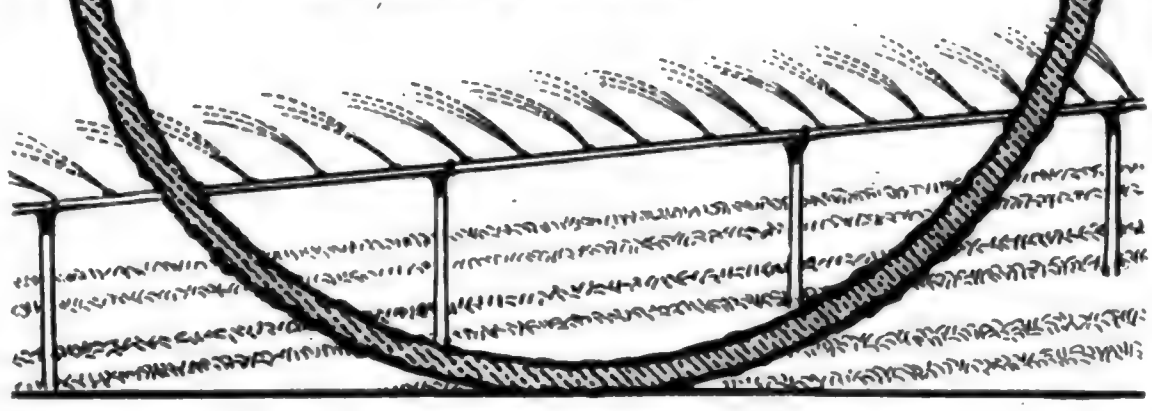
This Year Insure Your Field Violet Plants Against Dry Weather by Installing a Skinner System Rain Machine

IN THESE DAYS, when you growers are, with surprising rapidity, overcoming or controlling obstacles, resulting in your greater success—why stop short of effectually and economically protecting your field-growing violet plants from dry weather?

The Skinner System Rain Machine, or Overhead Irrigation, will do it at a surprisingly low cost.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass., who has done so much towards developing the growing of violets, claims great things for his Skinner System. He is a pretty safe man to follow. Tell us how big a space you want to irrigate, and we will tell you about what it will cost you.



SPECIAL OFFER

To prove to yourself beyond all doubt that our System is the System to buy, and that it will do exactly what we say it will—order one of our Complete Portable Lines, and try it out. It consists of a 50-foot line of pipe, fully equipped with nozzles, turning union, roller bearing supports and our quick detachable coupling, on which patents are now pending.

We will ship it to you for $11.75, f. o. b. Troy, Ohio. If you send money with the order, we will do one of two things—either prepay freight east of the Mississippi River, or send you two sets of nozzles, one for greenhouse and one for out-of-door use. State which you want us to do. If you haven't our Irrigation Bulletins, send for them.

How One Long Island Grower "Cut His Eye Teeth."

IT'S an old Long Island saying that when a man buys his experience dearly, he "gets his eye teeth cut."

Three or four years ago we were asked to estimate on a big house for a grower at Northport, Long Island. We lost the order. The price, so we were told, was too high. A year afterwards this same grower wanted us to come down and give him a figure on strengthening and bracing that very same house. We didn't care much about doing it, because it's always rather unsatisfactory to try to fix up the botch work of some one else. But we did, however, put in practically an entire system of supports, in construction something like our Giant Arch. The result is as good as could be expected under the conditions. Later, when this same grower wanted more greenhouses, he gave L. & B. the order. Here are the houses.

Don't it look to you that if fewer men cut their eye teeth on just price, and more sharpened their wits on quality, many bank accounts would be larger?

It's so in all other kinds of business—and after all business is just business—no matter what is your business.

When ready to talk over this business of building—with an idea of solidly building your business, we shall be heartily glad to hear from you.

500,000 CARNATION CUTTINGS.

We are devoting our entire plant to the growing of carnation cuttings. Our stock plants are grown cool and not allowed to flower, so all the strength goes to the cuttings. Experience had proved beyond question that these are far superior to cuttings taken from flowering plants. We have an abundance of stock and our propagators are instructed to use only perfect cuttings. These are now rooting nearly 100%.

We invite you to come and see our stock.

GOOD STOCK for you for another season means SUCCESS; POOR STOCK means FAILURE.

Our guarantee goes with every cutting and, if not satisfactory, may be returned and money back.

CARNATIONS—Continued.

CARNATION CUTTINGS, READY NOW.
BEST QUALITY—STRONGLY ROOTED.

Our big new range of steel frame houses, each 60x500 feet, is planted this year wholly in carnations. The plants are in the PERFECTION OF HEALTH AND VIGOR. You will find it greatly to your advantage to secure your young stock from these fine modern houses. All cuttings are most carefully selected from plants grown cool and are ROOTED IN LOW TEMPERATURE. No cuttings are sent out until they are strongly rooted and sure to grow.

PELARGONIUMS.

THE WONDERFUL PELARGONIUM, "EASTER GREETING."

In offering this "beautiful plant" to the retail florist, we feel we are placing you in a position to offer plants to your trade that no plant-loving man or woman can resist buying. A pelargonium that blooms from March to October. In fact, the best plant—flowers and foliage—ever produced. We are one of America's largest growers of "E. G." We have 20,000 for sale now. If plants are not perfectly satisfactory, return, and money will be cheerfully refunded. Good, strong, healthy A-1 stock from 2½-in., $10.00 per 100. Cash, or reference.
J. N. Spanabel & Sons, E. Palestine, O.

Think of EASTER GREETING as a wonder, not as a pelargonium. 50,000 sold in 1914 and not a complaint. Our guarantee is ironclad; we have no disclaimer to dodge behind. We are now booking orders for when you want them; our stock is fine. Price, 2¼-in., 3-in. and 4-in., $10.00, $12.00 and $18.00 per 100 in any quantity. Lucie Becker, pink sport, 2¼ and 3-in., $12.00 and $15.00 per 100. S. C. Templin, "E. G." Specialist, Garrettsville, O.

The principle—Two layers of glass with a ½-inch layer of dry still air

Get ready for your winter garden

Glass must be used whether you garden for profit or simply to enjoy having vegetables and flowers when they are a luxury and sell high.

And you must have Sunlight Double Glass Sash if you want to get the best results at the least cost of money and labor. They have become the standard throughout the best and largest gardens in the country for very good reasons:—

Three reasons why

1 The air space enclosed between the two layers of glass makes a transparent cover that affords better protection than the mats and shutters on the old single sash. And, it never has to be put on and off. It is always there though invisible.

2 This air space saves more than one half the labor.

3 It makes far earlier and stronger plants.

Our inexpensive greenhouse

A handy man can set it up in a few hours. It is framed of cypress and covered top and sides with Sunlight Double Glass Sash which can be removed at will for use elsewhere or for repairs.

Get our free catalogue

It gives full particulars. If Professor Massey's booklet on hot-beds, cold frames and a small greenhouse is wanted send 4c in stamps.

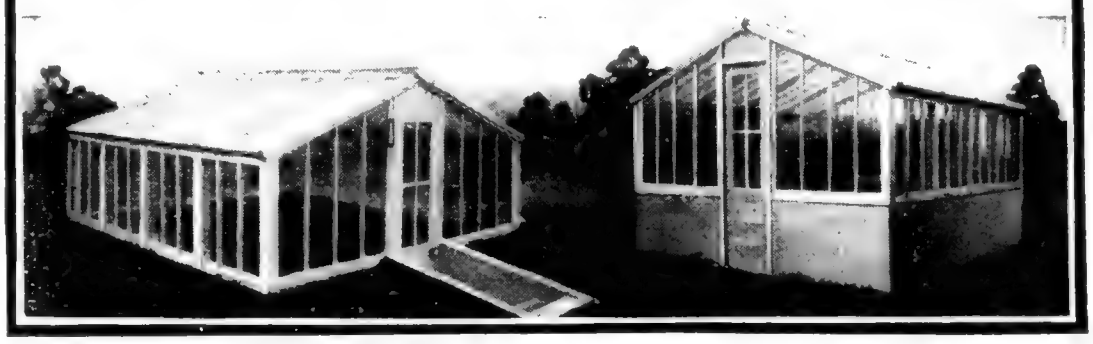
And you must have Sunlight Double Glass Sash if you want to get the best results at the least cost of money and labor. They have become the standard throughout the best and largest gardens in the country for very good reasons:—

Three reasons why

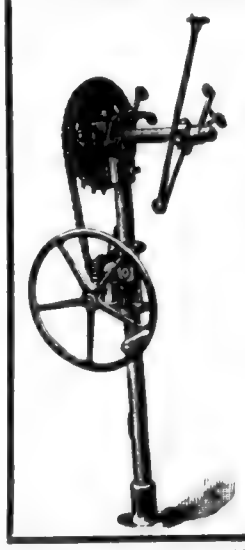
1 The air space enclosed between the two layers of glass makes a transparent cover that affords better protection than the mats and shutters on the old single sash. And, it never has to be put on and off. It is always there though invisible.

2 This air space saves more than one half the labor.

3 It makes far earlier and stronger plants.



Our inexpensive greenhouse



A handy man can set it up in a few hours. It is framed of cypress and covered top and sides with Sunlight Double Glass Sash which can be removed at will for use elsewhere or for repairs.

THE OBJECT

The desirability of any object will be reflected in the care and zeal with which one seeks to secure it. No man who embarks in the lily growing business needs to be told that his ultimate revenue will largely depend upon the care and judgment exercised in securing good bulbs. In this connection Horseshoe Brand is the better part of judgment. —Ward.

Autocars Best in Three Years' Test—Horses Discontinued

Max Schling, Florist, tells how he covers New York City and Distant Suburbs with these Reliable Delivery Cars.

ELIMINATION of horses, particularly for long hauls, and the substitution of good motor delivery vehicles is a significant sign of the times. Of the more than 1700 business concerns using the Autocar, scores have entirely discontinued the use of horses. Max Schling, Florist, 22 W. 58th St., New York, who has an extensive trade in both city and suburbs, is an example. In reference to the work his Autocars are doing, he recently wrote us:—

"In April, 1911, we bought our first Autocar. Just at that time our spring business carried us far out of town and we worked the car daily on routes such as Greenwich, Norwich, Bridgeport, Norfolk, New London, Seymour, New Haven and other cities in Connecticut; Irvington, Ardsley, Ossining and almost every other city and town in New York State, fifty and sixty miles and more away, and many cities in New Jersey, decorating houses and gardens in cities like Port Washington and East Hampton.

"Stretches of 120 to 130 miles in one day happen very often with weights of 500 to 600 pounds, starting on such days at six o'clock in the morning and returning at seven or seven-thirty in the evening without trouble.

"A year after our first purchase we added one more car, and after having for two years very good service from both cars, we gave up horses and wagons entirely. At present we are working our own two Autocars besides three other Autocars which are contracted for by the season, and storm or no storm, they go out daily, and the expense of delivery against former years we have just cut in half.

"In the severe snow storms in the early spring of 1914, the cars did very hard work, and our only loss was the loss of three sets of chains."

WE were one of the first to secure the foreign stock last year of this great rose, so have given it a thorough trial. From the very first bloom we saw we liked it very much but it has shown in every way such splendid qualities that now there is not a man on our place but says it is the best rose he ever saw. Good for the dealer, because of its great beauty and good keeping quality. Good for the grower, because it grows like a weed—free from disease, is an all-year producer, and very free.

We strongly advise growing grafted, as it is much too slow own root.

We are grafting 75,000 but expect to plant 25,000 ourselves. Write us for prices of it and other grafted roses. We are offering for March delivery the following: Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Russell, Hadley, D'Arenberg, Elgar, Killarney Brilliant, Ward, Sunburst, White and Pink Killarney, and Richmond. CARNATION CUTTINGS.

Here are two of last year's introductions that we believe to be good commercial varieties, and we will grow these in quantities ourselves:

Champion, red, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Philadelphia, light pink, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

DRACAENA TERMINALIS. Surplus, highly colored stock 500 of these handsome plants. 5-inch, $3.00 per doz.; 6 inch, $7.50 per doz.

AZALEAS. This fine stock just coming in; they were a little backward for Christmas. In all colors and sizes, 75c to $4.00 each.

ENGLISH IVY, strong stock, 20c to 35c each.

SHAMROCKS for St. Patrick's Day, 1-inch and 2-inch pots, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Prices on larger lots on application.

ARAUCARIA EXCELSA, 50, 75c, $1.00 each.

ARAUCARIA ROBUSTA COMPACTA, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

RUBBER PLANTS, 25c and 35c each.

PANDANUS VEITCHII, highly colored, 4-inch, 50c each; 5-inch, 75c to $1.00 each; 6-inch, $1.50 each; specimens, $2.50 to $3.50 each.

CYCLAMENS, mostly in light colors, but have some good dark and salmon to mix in, 5-inch, $5.00 per doz.; 6-inch, $7.50 per doz.; 7-inch, $1.25 each. These are extra fine and in full bloom.

KENTIAS

We have gone into the growing of KENTIAS on a large scale and can well be classed as the WESTERN HEADQUARTERS for these serviceable Palms. Our stock is complete and the prices we quote should show a considerable saving in express charges.

M. RICE COMPANY

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES THAT EXCEL

1220 RACE STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Attention, Retailers!

During the next thirty days we will cut 150,000 flowers of GOLDEN SPUR. Everyone knows this large, golden, trumpet Narcissus, called by some Jonquil, by others single Daffodil. Our flowers are from Holland grown bulbs, and are much superior in size and substance to French and English Golden Spur and Trumpet Major.

The price, until further notice, is $5.00 per 100. In lots of 500 or more, $40.00 per 1000. Inquiries invited from those who can use large quantities. I am in a position to take care of your large or small orders, and will prepay shipments and guarantee safe arrival to points as far as Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, New York and Boston. If you are in the market, telegraph or write me.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SUN SHINES SOMETIMES

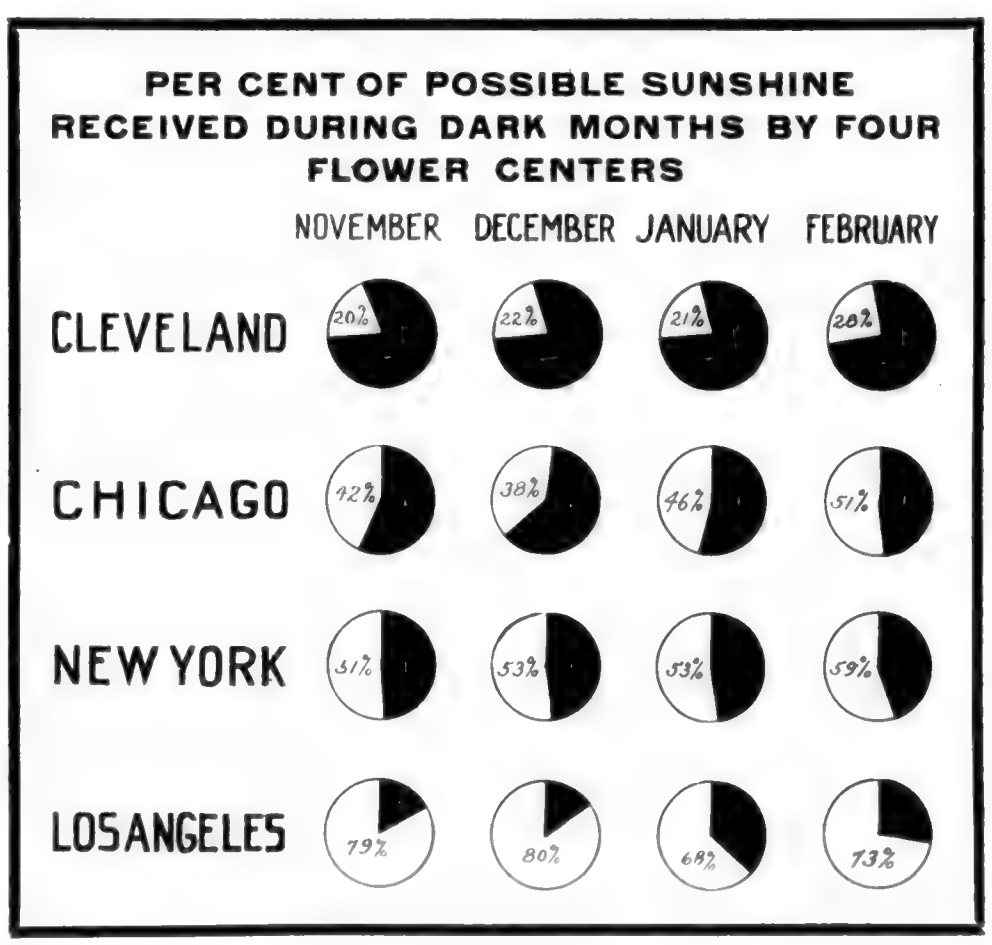
IT'S FAIR SOMEWHERE

Oh, somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright,
The flowers are blooming somewhere and growers' hearts are light,
And somewhere blooms are plenty, and somewhere prices soar,
But there is no joy in Roseville—Old Sol comes out no more.

—Adapted.

YOU don't need to call the attention of the rose grower to the lack of sunshine at this time of year. He is only too well aware of it. He can tell the time of year without a calendar; for when his red roses look like a sunset reflected in the Missouri river, and his pink varieties assume a hue that defies the powers of the most expert exhibition judge to classify and would give dyspepsia to an artist of tender temperament, he knows that the months of December and January are here. November and February are not welcomed with enthusiasm, but they are not quite so bad as December and January.

These four—November, December, January and February—are aptly grouped as the dark months of the year, and they are so termed in this article. In the table on the two pages following, these months are appropriately set in black-face type, so that comparison will be easy, to show just how bad these months are for the flower growers of various sections.



Wanting When Wanted.

Not only is sunshine scarcest when it is needed most, but also where it is needed most. The sections of the country where greenhouses are most numerous are least favored with sunshine, and, conversely, in the places where there is more than enough sunshine at all times of the year nobody cares particularly about growing flowers. The first line of the stanza above, adapted from that famous ballad, "Casey at the Bat," is the strictest truth. At such places as Phoenix, Ariz., or Santa Fe, N. M., there is, at all times, an abundance of sunshine, but on the other hand, there is extremely little opportunity for making use of it.

There is a large variation, too, within the sections where the greenhouse industry is of importance. The graphic illustration on this page shows how considerable is the difference in the amounts of sunshine during the four dark months in four of the largest flower producing centers of the country. The table on the two pages following will enable the readers of The Review to ascertain how each one's locality compares with other sections in the matter of sunshine.

Possible and Actual Sunshine.

In making these comparisons, it is well to have the terms involved well understood. Possible sunshine is determined by the number of hours the sun is above the horizon, the number of hours it might shine if no clouds, fog or smoke obstructed its rays. Actual sunshine is, on the other hand, the number of hours the sun's rays really fall upon the earth at the point of observation. However, it is not necessarily dark when the sun is not shining, although, without doubt, the light bill is larger in January than in July. The degree of darkness depends upon the denseness of the clouds, smoke, etc. If the sun comes above the horizon, say at this time of the year, at about 7 a. m. and sets, in the theoretical sense of the word, at about 5 p. m., the possible hours of sunshine will be calculated to be ten. The sun may shine the whole ten hours, or it may not be visible at all, or it may appear from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. The actual hours of sunshine would be in each of these cases, respectively, ten, none and three. It more commonly happens that there is a bright day followed by a few dark days rather than that there are a few hours of sunshine each day during the month when the summary shows an average of only a few hours per day, as at this season.

For the four cities represented in the diagram on this page the number of possible hours of sunshine is nearly the same, for they are not far from being in the same latitude. This is particularly true of the first three; Los Angeles is 7 degrees farther south than the others, and so has a larger number of possible hours of sunshine, but the difference amounts to no more than fifteen to twenty hours per month in winter.

Cloudy Cleveland.

In the number of actual hours of sunshine received, however, they are by no means alike. Cleveland gets only about half as much sunshine as Chicago, which, in turn, receives considerably less than New York and less than two-thirds of that vouchsafed to Los Angeles. Comparing the extremes, we find that Cleveland has little more than one-fourth as much sunshine as Los Angeles. It is said that the cocks take a vacation in Cleveland during the winter because they don't know when to crow. Perhaps that's nature-faking, however, and we want to avoid the big stick.

There are other places as cloudy as Cleveland, some in the same section, some clear across the continent. In the comparisons made here, the figures for the four dark months alone are considered; even Cleveland has enough sun in summer. It is only during the two months on either side of Christmas that the growers are at all concerned about Old Sol. The half dozen cities worst off at this period are Cleveland, Ithaca, N. Y.; Erie, Pa.; Elkins, W. Va., and Seattle and Spokane, Wash.

Here are the average hours of sunshine per month in your locality:

Not a Matter of Latitude.

Oddly enough, the two extremes in the matter of sunshine during the dark months, if we leave out of consideration the southwest, are both on the Pacific coast. In these four months Spokane receives 253 hours and Seattle 266, while Los Angeles gets 927.

It should be said in parenthesis that the figures used in this article are averages for periods extending from twenty to forty years, taken from the latest bulletins of the United States Weather Bureau covering this subject.

From the odd observation just noted it will be seen that the variation in sunshine is not dependent upon longitude. Nor is the variation in actual hours of sunshine dependent wholly upon the difference in latitude, although possible sunshine is. As evidence of this, notice that Bismarck, N. D., which is not far from the Canadian border, receives for the four months considered, 623 hours, while Galveston, on the Gulf of Mexico, has 646 hours, and their totals for the year vary about in the same proportion.

How do they compare with those in other flower-growing centers?

Cleveland is 5 minutes of latitude farther south than Des Moines, Ia., yet receives only 268 hours of sun to the latter's 623 hours. Boston and Detroit, which are in almost exactly the same latitude, receive 602 and 426 hours respectively.

The Explanation.

The number of actual hours of sunshine received in a particular locality depends for the most part upon the atmospheric conditions of that place. The difference in latitude plays a small part, but not an important one, in the variation. A locality in the northern part of the country with a clear, dry atmosphere will receive more sunshine than one in the extreme south which is so situated that it is frequently covered with cloud.

There are, broadly speaking, four regions in this country where the hours of sunshine are considerably below the average; these are northern New England, the upper Ohio valley, the Great Lakes basin and the north Pacific coast. These are all cloudy regions. The general reason for the cloudiness, according to meteorologists, is the same, the meeting and mingling of a warm, moist body of air with a colder one. The cold air reduces the temperature of the moist air below the critical point, as it is called, producing cloud or fog.

Each of these four regions is a meeting place for constant currents of warm and cold air that are flowing over the surface of the earth, and the continuous mingling of these currents produces general cloudiness. These currents of air may be compared to the currents of water that produce the dreaded fogs of Labrador, for precisely the same reason. The fact that in this latitude the sun is not so strong in winter as in summer, and therefore cannot do so much toward dissipating the moisture, accounts mainly for the worse conditions in the dark months, as we have termed them.

Little Sun, Large Growers.

It is one of nature's pranks, or one of the unfortunate coincidences of the human lot, whichever way you choose to put it, that the large growers are in the cloudy sections. The two states, New York and Pennsylvania, which lead the other forty-six in the production of flowers, are among the darkest during the months when florists feel the absence of Old Sol the most. Neither New York nor Pennsylvania, however, suffers to an equal extent from lack of sunshine throughout its entire territory. The eastern sections, where the largest city of each is located, do not fare so badly as do the western parts. No place in Ohio, however, is ordinarily favored by a large amount of sun at this time of year, although, of course, there are years when conditions are much worse or much better than in other years. Illinois, which is behind all three of these states, as well as Massachusetts, in number of greenhouse establishments, but leads them all in total glass area, suffers from lack of sunshine at this time of year, though perhaps not so badly as the sections referred to above.

Generally speaking, the only state within hailing distance of the largest flower centers of the middle west that has an abundance of sunshine at this season is Colorado. Denver receives 809 hours for the four months, while Pueblo goes as high as 917. Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri are above the average, and the cities of the eastern seaboard about the same.

How the other sections rank can be found from the accompanying table. This presents the average number of actual hours of sunshine for each month, the total for the four months printed in black-face type, the total for the year, and the per cent of the total possible received for the year.

The Practical Application.

In the past greenhouse establishments have been located more or less by chance. In the beginning a man chose a site for a greenhouse about as carefully as he selects a peg on which to hang his hat in a restaurant. Eventually some attention began to be paid to character of soil and contiguity of markets. In the last few years it has become apparent that large places are fearfully handicapped if not located where a railroad sidetrack can be run to the boiler-shed, and attention therefore now is paid to transportation. But we never heard of but one man who investigated the amount of sunshine various localities received when considering a choice of locations for a new range. Investigation often shows that physical characteristics of the country round about a good market give one locality much more or much less winter sun than is available at another spot only a few miles away. Other things being equal, the importance of obtaining the greatest possible amount of winter sun is obvious. No large greenhouse establishment ever will be built in a city; if a large range is planned it will go a few miles into the country. If another twenty, or thirty or even fifty or a hundred miles will put it outside the city's cloud belt, increasing the hours of winter sun even in small degree, the gain in quality and quantity of winter crops will offset all the disadvantages.

AZALEAS DROPPING LEAVES.

Our azaleas, principally the white ones, are dropping their leaves. The leaves appear nice and green, but when the plants are shaken, just loads of the leaves drop off. Can you tell me the cause of the trouble? D. V.

This is probably due to the azaleas having become dry at the root in transit from Belgium. The trouble is often aggravated by the plants being too long in the cases before forcing. This has been true of many shipments in the present season, owing to the European war. Soak all the balls in a tub of water on arrival. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Newark, N. J.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed December 29 in the United States District court by Timney & Kugel, who started in business at 41 Market street last September. Assemblyman-elect H. E. Wolf was appointed receiver by Referee Atwood L. De Coster. The petition, filed by George Furst, attorney for the florists, states that the liabilities are about $2,500 and the assets about $1,500.

Boston, Mass.—William H. Tomlinson, who conducted the Rosemere Conservatories, at 38 King street, Dorchester, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities are scheduled at $3,097.35 and assets at $684.14.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

IS THIS A RECORD?

I see in The Review that Christmas business was good with most of the florists, some fifty or sixty per cent better than a year ago. Really, that's nothing. I can beat that double, and then some. Listen to this: My Christmas sales this season in cut flowers were 125 per cent greater than a year ago, while plant sales increased seventy-five per cent. I attribute the gain to advertising. Besides the newspaper, I used handbills and the screen in the moving picture theaters. One way or another, I managed to let most of the people in town know that flowers make the most appropriate of gifts. L. B. Westholder.

CARNATIONS AND TOMATOES.

Carnations with us do not pay for the space they occupy, so we have grown tomatoes between. We aim to have good tomato plants in 3-inch or 4-inch pots and plant a row on each side of the bench. We do not pull any carnations out, but just tie every other plant in a little more closely. That gives the tomatoes about eighteen inches in the row. They soon grow out of the carnations.

We hold the tomato plants to two shoots, breaking out all side growth, and as soon as they crowd we trim the foliage in half, as we must have carnations.

We do not raise the temperature, as it does not retard the tomatoes. They grow nicely, bloom well and set fruit. We tie all wood closely to cane or lath stakes, preferring these to string, as the fruit gets heavy when there are five or six sets on. We tie the canes to horizontal wires and these to cross wires between the purlins. That makes a rigid contrivance when we get five or six sets of fruit. We cut the tops out, keeping all side shoots out and mulching with cow manure.

The varieties we have tried are Comet, Lorillard, Sutton's Earliest of All and Bonny Best. We have found Bonny Best so far ahead of the rest that now we grow it exclusively. It produces the finest, smoothest, most even-sized scarlet fruit we have ever seen. It is common to find from eight to sixteen and often more full-sized tomatoes to a setting.

As to revenue, in June our tomatoes brought more money than the carnations did the whole season, and kept it up till the last of August. We were getting 15 cents per pound and our tomatoes were purchased in preference to outside fruit. Here in northern Illinois, at least, southern shipped-in stuff does not compete with ours. We start planting in the middle of February and plant some in March. That gives us a continuous crop.

Benj. B. Pohlmann.

THIS LADY DOESN'T ADVERTISE.

I wish to call your attention to the article in The Review of January 7 under the heading, "The Christmas Lesson," on which, I am sorry to say, I disagree with you; otherwise what The Review says and does is gospel to me. I cannot approve this article, and I will tell you the reason why. To begin with, we are located at 3704 North Western avenue, Chicago, and have two houses, each 25x100, devoted to the growing of pot plants. It is only a little cubby hole compared with the big fellows; still, we were not able to sell our products and so did not experience any prosperity at all. Now I can hear you say, "Raise something a little better than the other fellow." We do this, for we specialize in Primula obconica, and, without flattery, I can say that we grow them better than anybody in the city of Chicago; they are beautiful beyond description. I invite any grower, any retailer or reporter for The Review to come to my place and inspect these plants. Still, the demand was not up to the supply; we could have filled many more orders if we had received them. But there's the rub, we didn't.

I hope I have succeeded in giving you the other side of the story. I wondered, when I read one report after another of the good plant business, why ours fell off fifty per cent from the business of last year. Then I read of Mr. Washburn saying that next year everybody would give more glass to the growing of plants and less to cut flowers. Then came your item on top of that. If there is nothing done to check that report, there will be a glut of pot plants every year, just as in cut flowers, since everybody is led to grow more and more all the time. I have so far seen only reports of good plant business. I move that The Review invite the other side to tell its story as I have told mine; then the report will be "Ja, Bauer, das ist ganz was ander's," as the old German saying goes. As I have before said, we were much discouraged with our Christmas business.

We would like to see this letter in print if possible in the next issue. I am writing it in behalf of Mr. Stoll, my husband, who does the growing, but, of course, I help also, and so I know what I am talking about."

THE NEW YORK CLUB.

[A summary of an address by Harry A. Bunyard, January 11, on assuming office as president of the New York Florists' Club.]

The New York Florists' Club was organized in 1887 and incorporated in 1891. It is a serious institution. It sets the example. Especially are its awards considered standard; they have a broad commercial value.

I want my administration to be creative, constructive and progressive and to carry out especially one idea that is not new but of great moment to the members. That is, for the New York Florists' Club to have and own a permanent home, where we can meet for social and business intercourse, hold our meetings and entertain our out-of-town members and friends; a home built for posterity. It is possible! Surely, we are big enough and broad enough and have sufficient financial responsibility among our members to handle such a proposition and sustain it without drawing upon our present surplus. Real estate bargains have never been more plentiful than now. If we can raise $10,000 for a flower show guarantee, surely it would be possible to sell sufficient bonds to raise funds to secure a building. I would suggest the issuing of such bonds at a popular price, say $50 each, so that at least every member could secure one or more; these to be secured by a second mortgage. In this way, a building could be purchased and altered, the first mortgage being held by one of our depositories or by a trust company.

Affiliation with the S. A. F. is now a concrete fact. By virtue of my office as president of your club, I become automatically a director in the mother organization and as such, am the connecting link between you, and it will be your business to instruct me as your ambassador, so to speak, to carry out your wishes and ideas compatible with the best interests of the dual societies. I can but mirror your ideas, however, and present them in proper form, and endeavor to have them approved by the balance of the directors, who in their turn, will present them at the S. A. F. annual convention. For the first time in the history of the club, you will have the right to discuss in open meeting, your opinion and desires regarding the S. A. F. and how its policies and work may be enlarged. I cannot and do not wish to act alone and must have your sincere support so that I can uphold the dignity and honor which has been confirmed upon your club so that good results shall be derived from this new, big idea.

"In union there is strength," and while the S. A. F. has given us this opportunity, cannot we look around in our vicinity and see if we, too, cannot offer the right hand of fellowship. I would recommend a committee to report upon the number and membership of the local gardening societies and their objects, for possible affiliation in some form or other.

The international flower show next March affords unrivaled opportunities for the trade to exhibit and advertise. So I say, wake up! The honor of the Florists' club, the trade and our city is at stake. We have got to make this flower show a success. Our indefatigable secretary is doing good work, but must have your moral and financial support.

Our membership is now 464 and includes 156 S. A. F. members in good standing. New membership is always in order and we desire all the members we can secure, but our main effort must be to get what members we now have attend the meetings. We must have a sustained interest; we must keep it alive. Our motto is, "All one," with a rose for an emblem. The rose is partly expanded; so, like the flower, let us too expand, but never fade, and make our membership 500 or more for 1915.

BOILER BURSTINGS.

West Point, Ia.—Al. Burns has installed a new boiler to replace the old one, which sprang a leak during the cold weather recently and caused the loss of a large number of plants.

Sharon, Mass.—The bursting of the boiler at the greenhouses of Mrs. Jennie P. Snow, December 26, at a time when the thermometer was ranging from zero to 2 degrees below, caused a good deal of damage. By means of heaters and charcoal fires most of the stock was saved, but the cost of getting back into running order cut a big hole in the profits of a rather dull season.

Florists' Review,
508 S. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

A few weeks ago I started a small card in the Retailers' Telegraph Delivery department of The Review.

I have paid you only $2.50 so far. And this is what happened:

I received orders for Wyoming delivery at Christmas amounting to $142.50.

I think that is doing fairly well.

Respectfully yours,

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

WHY DO VARIETIES RUN OUT?

Average Life Short.

A recent letter from a customer, complaining that in the mum world there are altogether too many novelties, that they are unnecessary, and that properly handled the varieties in cultivation should increase in vigor and beauty every year, is one of the reasons for these remarks on why varieties run out. Granted that excessive propagation is not good for any plant, there must be some fundamental reason why the varieties pass on ultimately to that bourn from which no mum ever returns. It is true that some varieties have a great deal of natural vigor and last longer than others. An excellent case in point is the old Major Bonnaffon, still grown extensively, at least in the west, as a commercial cut flower, but showing nothing like the splendid characteristics that it had fifteen or more years ago. But, as a rule, the average life of a mum is comparatively short.

Probably the principal reason is explained by a recent writer, Felix J. Koch, in the Technical World Magazine. This article, reprinted in the Literary Digest a short time ago, was interesting reading for me, and seemed to throw a clear light on the subject. Mr. Koch says, "The newest leaf of an old tree is not really new at all, but it is as old as the tree itself." The average man, accustomed to think of spring as the rejuvenating period when everything is started out into new life, does not often think of this, but assumes that nature is renewed in all respects and, given favorable conditions, should go on indefinitely. This is the same argument that some men put up in regard to mums. Given new cuttings and healthy stock and surroundings, they should be rejuvenated, and, instead of deteriorating, they should be as good as or better than they were in the previous year.

Can Tell Age by Growth.

Mr. Koch states that Prof. H. M. Benedict has proved beyond question that he can tell by the growth of fruit trees whether a branch is from a cutting or a seedling, or, in other words, whether it is from a young plant or an old one, and says that every man who is the possessor of a magnifying glass can do the same thing, the secret of this being disclosed by the venation of the leaf, which becomes closer as the plant grows older. He proceeds: "Practical fruit growers have for some time insisted that cuttings do show relation to the age of the parent tree. They observed this in the bearing qualities of the tree. But botany has always said this is impossible. Now we are able to prove that practical nurserymen are in the right! The principle involved is that of senility, or the gradual loss of power even when all external things are favorable. Senility applies to youth as well as old age in this connection, says Prof. Benedict; in fact, it is most marked in the earliest stages of some animal forms, especially human beings. In plant life the embryonic tissues, whereby the plant grows, partake of the age of the plant itself. This is the point which contradicts formerly accepted botanical principles. In other words, the new twig which presents itself on the older branch in the springtime is not a new growth, as has been thought; it is as old as the tree itself. As the plants grow older the multiple cells which carry the nourishment in the leaf become smaller in size and greater in number. It was by noting marked differences here and establishing a more or less uniform scale that the botanist was able to establish this new principle."

Only Three Years at the Top.

Personally, I think this statement makes it clear why not only mums, but roses, carnations and other plants, to use a common term, run out. This running out process is doubtless helped along by the more or less unnatural conditions of a greenhouse. Three years seems almost as long as the average mum can maintain its place at the head of the list as an exhibition flower. Merza and Col. Appleton are two exceptions that occur to me at this moment, but finally they went the way of all mums. The variety Wm. Turner, which was imported in 1910 and distributed to the trade in 1911, may be said today to be on the crest of the wave of popularity. Just how long it will stay there is a question. As an interesting item in regard to increasing stock, I may state that the stock of Wm. Turner in America at the present time was all provided from ten stock plants I imported in the spring of 1910 from England. The descendants of these ten plants must be over half a million today, judging from the enormous sales this variety had last spring. How many millions of plants the variety Major Bonnaffon has produced would be an interesting problem that could be worked out by some florist during the long winter evenings.

SOIL FOR CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Will the soil I take from my carnation benches next spring be all right to fill my chrysanthemum benches with? If so, how much manure should I add?

E. C.

If you want really good chrysanthemums I would not advise you to use the old carnation soil, but procure fresh pasture loam, to which is added one-fourth of well rotted cow or horse manure; also add some fine bone a few weeks before housing the compost. If only the carnation soil is available, I would add one-third rotted manure to it and give it a couple of turnings before housing. The best plan is to spread your old compost in the field and lay it down in grass for a couple of years, to get some fiber in it.

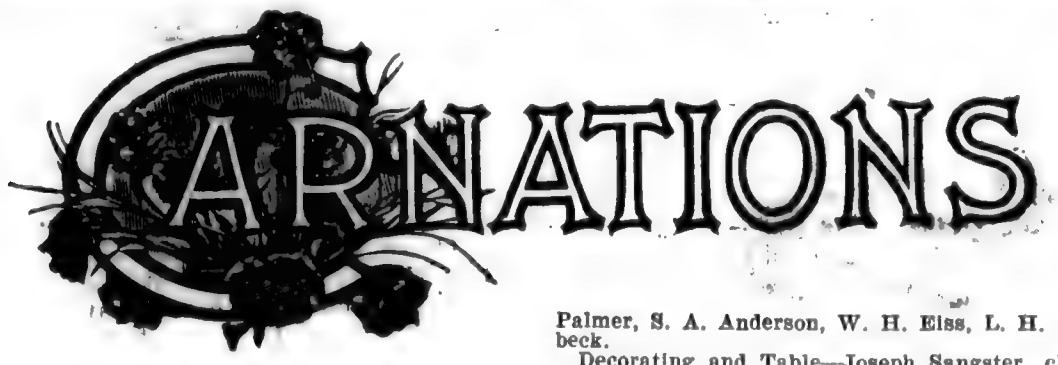
NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS



Rheims, France.—This district has been under shell fire for weeks and the efforts of some of the smaller nurserymen to save their stock have been almost beyond belief. Concussion breaks much glass not hit and some sashes and houses had been reglazed three times before the supply of glass and putty was exhausted.

London, England.—So generally have the French horticulturists responded to the call to arms that the Societe Francaise d'Horticulture of London has suspended its meetings. When the action was taken there were only five members of the society in England, three of whom were Swiss, one a Belgian, and one a Franchman, too young to take part in the war.

Darmstadt, Germany.—The grass and tree seed interests here have suffered a loss of business with the countries with which Germany is at war, but have been able to conduct business with America as usual, via Rotterdam. The business of Conrad Appel, which has been conducted uninterruptedly for 125 years, has passed through many wars and is continuing in this one the same as in the Franco-Prussian conflict of 1870, some of the employees then with the house still being active.

Berlin, Germany.—Correspondents in Möller's Deutsche Gärtner Zeitung advocate the translation into German of names of varieties of plants raised in France, England, Belgium, etc.; in fact, to boycott the languages of the allied nations. In case those words are avoided which are incapable of translation or of pronunciation in another tongue, this step would be preferred to the renaming of the varieties, which was first suggested.

Ghent, Belgium.—Although exports to neutral countries were larger than usual this year because of the cutting off of trade with some European nations, next year will in all likelihood find a far different situation. A sudden drop in temperature in the latter part of November caught the growers unprepared, killing nearly all azaleas which had not been brought into the greenhouses, for ice formed on the coldframes, and touching the leaves of the palms. The growers, many of whom are completely discouraged, pay little attention to their stock, use coal sparingly—too sparingly for such subjects as palms—and do little propagating. Between the war, a hard winter and a lack of cash in the growers' pocketbooks, the prospect for plant stocks for export next season is not promising.

THE CHRISTMAS MARKET.

I notice a number of comments on the congestion of the carnation market in some of the large centers at Christmas. Some seem to think that it signifies a waning of the carnation's popularity. A closer scrutiny of the reports from over the country, however, convinces me that it does nothing of the sort and that there were more carnations sold this year than ever before. The facts as I see them are these: The weather conditions this fall have been ideal for the production of greenhouse crops, which resulted in uniformly large cuts of carnations in the smaller establishments all over the country. Establishments that usually have to draw on the large markets for a few hundred or a few thousands of blooms to help out in filling holiday orders, this year had plenty of their own. Consequently, the large markets were not drawn on as heavily as usual and congestion naturally followed. The illustration on page 11 of the Review for January 7, showing the house of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., is one of the many instances noted that prove my contention. That was certainly a fine cut for the week, one that almost any of us would be well satisfied with, providing the cut has been satisfactory up to that time. It is, however, not nearly so good as was reported to me a few days ago by a visitor. He claimed to have cut such varieties as O. P. Bassett, Mrs. C. W. Ward, etc., one bloom per plant during Christmas week, and he did not bat an eye while he said it.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The Approaching Convention.

I would like to call the attention of the members of the American Carnation Society to the central location of the city of Buffalo, where we hold our twenty-fourth convention January 27 and 28. While we are in the midst of business depression that affects all, let us not forget that better times are in store for us, and everyone that can possibly spare the time should endeavor to attend this year from east and west. No one can say that it is too far away this year. We are expecting a fine display of carnations, both novelties and standard varieties. Reports from every section indicate that quality was never better. Come, join with us, see how we conduct our business and exhibitions, give encouragement to the officers, show them that you appreciate their endeavors in trying to make this the best floricultural society in this country.

S. J. Goddard, President.

Convention Committees.

The local Buffalo committees for the convention are announced as follows:

Finance—Wm. F. Kasting, chairman; W. J. Palmer, S. A. Anderson, W. H. Elss, L. H. Neubeck.

Decorating and Table—Joseph Sangster, chairman; Felix Alberts, William Grever, Edward Slattery, Charles Felton.

Entertainment—J. Benson Stafford, chairman; Albert Keitsch.

Press—Edwin C. Armbrust, Emil C. Brucker.

Banquet—W. A. Adams, chairman; Charles Schoenhut, Charles Sandiford, Joseph Streit W. H. Sievers.

Ticket—Robert Scott, chairman; Edward Stroh, E. C. Brucker, W. J. Peake, William Legg.

Reception—J. F. Cowell, chairman; George Urban, J. J. Albright, David A. Seymour, C. T. Guenther, Barnard Myers, R. E. Boettger, Charles Hewson, William Donaldson, Henry Elbers, L. C. Wilkie, W. C. Stroh, Charles Keitsch, H. B. Filer, F. P. Kull, R. O. King.

Executive—S. A. Anderson, chairman; Wm. F. Kasting, W. A. Adams, Jos. Sangster, Robert Scott, J. Benson Stafford, J. F. Cowell.

Secretary's Appeal.

Do you feel kindly toward the secretary? Well, you can lighten his work at the convention considerably by sending in your annual dues before he starts for the place of meeting. It might also save yourself more or less inconvenience and delay in not having to wait to be waited on at the desk. The time for filing entries free of charge will expire January 17. That date falling on Sunday, no charge will be made for entries reaching the secretary by Monday, January 18, but $2 will be charged for each entry made after that date. Indications point to a large gathering and one of the best exhibitions ever staged. All members are urged to make every effort to attend. A large attendance promotes enthusiasm.

A member asks for a discussion on the relative merits of cuttings taken from the flower stems and those taken from the short blooming shoots. Give the matter a little thought and let us have the benefit of your experience. There will be other matters up for discussion, too.

Carnations Registered.

The following carnations have been registered by Richard Diener & Co., Mountain View, Cal.:

Chamoise.—White seedling x Sunset; chamoise yellow striped with pink; three inches; vigorous grower and free bloomer; wiry and upright; does not split under glass; very fragrant.

Chief Dennison.—Seedling crosscs; scarlet; four inches; vigorous grower, producing 4-foot stems; nonsplitting calyx; very fragrant; will make fine commercial variety.

The following registrations have been made by Albert Roper, Tewksbury, Mass.:

No. 316.—Unnamed seedlings; light pink; two to three inches; tall grower with long, stiff stems; free bloomer.

No. 326.—Unnamed seedlings; flesh pink; three to three and one-half inches; tall grower with stiff stems.

No. 360.—Unnamed seedlings; dark pink; two to three inches; very tall grower with stiff stems and clear color.

A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Propagating Bouvardias.

There are two principal ways of propagating bouvardias; namely, by soft-wooded cuttings and pieces of root. No good soft cuttings are available at this time, but pieces of the thicker roots, placed in a warm propagating bench, will not be long in sending out growths. B. Humboldtii, if dried off somewhat, pruned back and then started up in a warm house, will soon give a crop of nice succulent cuttings, which will root easily. These can be grown along till fit for 7-inch pots by the early part of August. Old plants of B. Humboldtii, carried over for four or five years, give the best results, far better than can be had from young stock. The stock plants can be kept dry for the balance of the winter, stored below a bench.

Show Pelargoniums.

Show pelargoniums are now starting into active growth and, with chrysanthemums and other plants out of the way, can be given more space. Fall-rooted cuttings should be well rooted in 3-inch pots and will soon be in need of a shift. Keep the tops pinched out of all strong shoots for some time yet. Spread the plants out occasionally and be sure not to allow green or white fly to get any foothold on them. Gas is the surest remedy for white fly, but fumigation or syringing will take care of green fly.

Spiræas.

It does not pay to start forcing spiræas before the month of January, as a large percentage of them are sure to become more or less blind unless they are allowed a reasonable rest. Any of the white-flowering sorts, such as Gladstone, compacta grandiflora, Japonica or astilboides, can be started now. Queen Alexandra, Peach Blossom and the new hybrids of Astilbe Arendsi will start much better a little later in the month. Queen Alexandra is better for Memorial day than for Easter. It is yet too early to start plants for Easter; the end of the month is sufficiently early. Give spiræas 60 to 65 degrees at night, with plenty of water, and be sure not to expose them to any heavy fumigant, as their foliage is delicate and easily scorched.

Calceolarias.

The calceolarias are now growing satisfactorily. They are quite at home in the cold winter months and all they ask for is a cold house, not over 45 degrees at night. Do not allow the plants to become potbound. Give them a compost consisting of two parts fibrous loam, one part old dried and lumpy cow manure and one part broken charcoal, flaky leaf-mold and sharp sand. They like a fairly porous soil, but at the final shift it should be well firmed in the pots. In the earlier pottings use somewhat more leaf-mold and less manure. Fumigate once a week and green aphis will give no trouble.

THE CHICAGO CLUB SHOW.

Some Excellent Stock.

For many years it has been the custom of the Chicago Florists' Club to hold an exhibition of novelties and other stock in connection with its January meeting, and the evening of January 7 saw a splendid little show. There were close to sixty vases, nearly all first-class stock and some of it of special excellence. All the exhibits except one were arranged on a long table in a narrow banquet room at the Bismarck hotel. The group of Poehlmann Bros. Co. had a place by itself. In the center was a tall Beauty vase filled with Mrs. Russell roses of such unusual quality as to excite general comment. The flowers, just breaking bud, were fully as large as Beauty at its best. There also were three vases of last season's novelty carnations, Gorgeous, Philadelphia and Champion, all of which seem at home at Morton Grove.

The only plant exhibit was by J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, which consisted of a plant of the undisseminated begonia, Mrs. J. A. Peterson, and three different sizes of Begonia Melior, with a cyclamen or two. The judges on plants were Frank Pasternick, Albert Erickson and W. Allen. They scored Melior 88 points; Mrs. Peterson, 85 points, and made special mention of the cyclamens.

Pink Sensation Was Fine.

Next came the exhibit of F. Dorner & Sons Co., La Fayette, Ind., twelve vases. The special feature was a splendid lot of Pink Sensation, appropriately named, though yet comparatively unknown. There also was a good vase of Good Cheer, which also is being sent out this year. Champion, last year's novelty, showed up well and Salmon Pink Gloriosa came in for close scrutiny. The seven other vases contained seedlings under number, varieties of promise you may be sure, else they would not have been there.

Adjoining the Dorner exhibit were five vases from Mt. Greenwood cemetery, all under number and only one of them, 140-9, white, shown in any quantity.

Bassett & Washburn had four good vases: Belle Washburn, red; Helen Washburn, deep pink; No. 4, medium pink; No. 2, flesh pink. The named varieties look good enough to Mr. Washburn so that they probably will be put on the market next season.

The Chicago Carnation Co. contented itself with showing two vases, one of Peerless Pink and one of Aviator, both in good shape.

Pyfer & Olsem had two vases of White Killarney, another of Killarney so good that experienced growers mistook it for Killarney Queen, and a vase of the Wilmette strain of Killarney Brilliant.

Ernst Amling, Maywood Ill., was represented by a vase of the commercial grade of Mrs. Russell, with which he has had excellent success this season.

Akehurst from Maryland.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, sent an excellent vase of the new carnation, Mrs. C. Edward Akehurst, grown at White Marsh, Md. It is a heavily fringed, rose-pink flower and showed up well considering its long journey.

The South Park Floral Co., Newcastle, Ind., showed its new rose, George Elgar, which may be described as a yellow Cecile Brunner; also Souvenir d'Guillard, a light pink French novelty.

The Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., sent Carnation Keokuk, a maroon seedling raised in the college greenhouses.

P. J. Olinger, Newcastle, Ind., was represented by a vase of a red seedling which he plans to disseminate under the name of Radium.

Arvid Anderson, Moline, Ill., showed a white seedling, No. 100.

C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb., was represented by two good vases: Nebraska, red, which has been seen before, and C. B. Towle, a medium pink that made its first appearance.

A group of orchids grown by Vaughan's Greenhouses and sold by the E. C. Amling Co. to H. N. Bruns, contained some excellent cattleyas, lælias and oncidiums.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., had the largest exhibit in the hall. The center of interest, of course, was a fine basket of Hoosier Beauty, but Ophelia showed up so well that it came in for its full share of approval. The new Irish yellow rose to be introduced in 1916 was not seen to advantage because of the colored lights under which it was shown. Alice Coombs, the new light pink carnation, a Roper variety, being sent out this season, was shown in excellent condition. There also were good vases of Champion, Enchantress Supreme, Gorgeous, Benora, Pocahontas and Yellow Prince.

What the Judges Said.

At the end of the table stood a basket of Carnation Superb, from the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. Many of those present considered the name well chosen, but the judges reported they did not find it in condition to score. Perhaps this illustrates the Kentuckian's observation that if all men thought alike there would be no horse races, or it is possible the judges were waiting a chance to score the variety 100 points, as a committee of this club once did with a Witterstaetter seedling, now long since forgotten.

The judges on roses were John Poehlmann, H. N. Bruns and George Schuman. They scored Ophelia 90 points; Hoosier Beauty, 85; Souvenir d'Guillard, 85, and made special mention of the others.

The judges on carnations were C. W. Johnson, George Asmus and William Tricker. Of the varieties scored the following gained enough points to be entitled to the club's certificate: No. 39-12a, from Mt. Greenwood cemetery, 86 points; No. 31-12a, from the same exhibitor, 87; Belle Washburn, 86; Helen Washburn, 85; Aviator, 85; No. 53-11, from F. Dorner & Sons Co., 86; Good Cheer, 85; Pink Sensation, 90.

WHITE INSECTS ON FERNS.

Will you tell tell me whether the white insects referred to in The Review of December 3, page 22, under the title of "White Insects on Ferns," are the same as those on the enclosed fern leaf? If so, what strength of nicotine solution would you recommend for the dip? D. V.

Yes, these are the same insects which trouble nephrolepis. The manufacturers of the nicotine extracts usually give directions on the packages for the strength to be used in spraying or dipping plants. You will find Aphine a good and safe remedy for these and similar insects. C. W.

SCALE ON BOSTON FERNS.

Will you kindly let me know how I can get rid of the lice on my Boston ferns? I have grown ferns for a number of years, but have never before been troubled with the pest as I have this year. I enclose a sample leaf. J. H.

This scale insect causes much trouble and loss to the fern grower and is not an easy pest to dispose of, but the first step would be to cut off all fronds that are as badly infested as the one sent for examination. Then try dipping the plants in a 1-to-50 solution of tobacco extract, being careful to protect the plants from the sun for a day or two after the treatment, else the young tips of the fronds may be injured by the tobacco. A solution of Sulpho-tobacco soap may also be used as a dip, but be careful not to use too strong a solution. This treatment may have to be used several times, at intervals of a week.

MAY BE ASPIDIUM ANGULARE.

A friend of mine called my attention to a fern which she has as a house plant, and which is suffering from some cause. I enclose a part of one of its fronds. What is the matter? Is it a case of too much dryness? What variety of fern is it?

William Scott, in "The Florists' Manual," speaks of "The Book of Choice Ferns," published in seven volumes. Who are the publishers of the work and what is the price of it? Is it the latest and best authority we have on the subject? T. F.

The fern in question is apparently Aspidium angulare, but the small section of a frond forwarded is not a satisfactory specimen for identification. It is most likely that the plant has suffered from dryness.

"The Book of Choice Ferns" was published by L. Upcott Gill, London, England, and the price is about $10. It is well gotten up, beautifully illustrated and an admirable book of reference so far as it goes, but is not complete in regard to trade varieties of ferns, from the fact that it was written a number of years ago. W. H. T.

THE WITTBOLD STORE.

One of the oldtime stores of Chicago is the North Clark street establishment of the George Wittbold Co. It has been a landmark these many years for people riding the main stem of the north side car lines; everybody in the city knows where it is. Recently it was thought desirable to modernize the store by putting in new fixtures. Of course the refrigerator, which was supplied by Buchbinder Bros., is the main feature. The accompanying illustration shows the display box and a section of the wall cases. The workroom is at the rear of the store. It is interesting to note that the improvement made in the appearance and facilities of the store met with a quick response in the way of increased business, as it nearly always does.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Bowen Sweet, who has been overseer of the City cemetery for more than thirty years, was reëlected at the recent municipal inauguration.

Carl Jurgens is to reconstruct one house in his range this summer. It was built by his father about fifteen years ago, entirely of wood, and has been maintained unpainted ever since, to test the durability of such a house.

T. J. Gibson had the house decorations of palms, holly and cut flowers at the Friend-Duby wedding last week.

The Garden Association is arranging for a flower show, to be held about March 15, in some hall to be decided upon later. It is the intention to have an exhibition of home flowers which have been growing for at least two months in a room of a private house or in an enclosed piazza, not a greenhouse. Several prizes are to be offered.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been only fair. There seem to be quite a few funerals, but the demand for funeral flowers has been light. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and prices are down. Carnations are bringing from $3 down to $1 per hundred and quantities go begging at that. The rose market is well supplied and the prices are much lower than in former years. First-class Richmond and Killarney bring from $4 to $8 per hundred; shorts, $2 and $3. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful and find ready sale. Paper Whites, stevia and Romans are plentiful. Jonquils are cleaned up daily. Quite a few poinsettias were left from the holidays, for which there is no market. The demand for violets has been light. There is a plentiful supply of greens.

Blooming plants are plentiful and find fair call. First-class azaleas, cyclamens, Lorraines and primulas are offered. H. L. W.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Robert H. Black, Albert Lea, Minn.—"Seeds and Bulbs that Satisfy," a 24-page, illustrated catalogue, in handy pocket form.

Chamberlain & Co., Wellesley, Mass.—An 18-page gladiolus catalogue; an alphabetical list, with descriptions but with no illustrations, is followed by offers of special mixtures.

Rochester Egg & Poultry Co., Rochester, Minn.—An illustrated seed catalogue, with lists, also, of poultry supplies, garden cultivators and other specialties; thirty-six pages and colored cover.

The Luther Burbank Co., San Francisco, Cal.—"Burbank Seed and Nursery Book," containing eighty illustrated pages, with a neatly designed colored cover that shows some of the Burbank novelties. In each department, seed and nursery, several pages of Burbank specialties are followed by general lists of standard varieties.

Wm. Henry Maule, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—"The Maule Seed Book," a 176-page, illustrated catalogue, comprising extensive lists in all lines of seeds, besides plants, fruits and other nursery stock, implements, etc. The flower list is distinguished from the rest of the book by being printed on pink paper.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—The twenty-fifth anniversary edition of Michell's general seed catalogue, with a "brief history of the House of Michell," and with views made from photographs of different departments of the business. Besides complete and well arranged assortments of seeds, large lines of plants, fruits, nursery stock, implements and supplies are offered in the lists. The illustrations include several full-page colored plates. Though the book contains 228 pages, it apparently does not exceed the one-pound weight limit.

Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb.—"Griswold's Twenty-fifth Seed Annual," an illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants, nursery stock, poultry supplies, implements, insecticides and sundries; the list of vegetable and field seeds occupies sixty-five of the total 128 pages.

Williams Seed Co., Norfolk, Va.—Seventh annual catalogue of vegetable, farm and flower seeds, fruit trees, insecticides, farm and garden implements, poultry supplies, incubators, etc.; sixty-four pages, illustrated.

The Ratekin Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia.—A 32-page, illustrated catalogue of fruit and ornamental trees, shrubs, roses, vines, etc.; the fruit department is especially comprehensive.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Wholesale catalogue for seedsmen and dealers only, who buy to sell again"; sixty-four clearly printed pages, with pictures of some of the specialties; for descriptions of varieties the user is referred to the retail catalogue. From the same firm has also been received "The Silent Salesman's Assistant," intended to supplement the work of "Burpee's Annual." The "Assistant" contains sixteen pages and is so bound and folded as to be convenient for pocket use. The stock listed consists principally of seventy-six specially selected varieties of Burpee vegetables, but a little space is given to sweet peas and a "Gem Collection of Annuals."

THE FIRE RECORD.

Phoenixville, Pa.—A fire of unknown origin, which threatened to destroy the greenhouse of D. I. Rossiter, on Nutts avenue, December 27, was checked by the speedy arrival and work of the firemen.

Muskegon, Mich.—Fire of unknown origin broke out over the boiler room of the Lakeside Greenhouse, owned by George F. Morrisett, December 31. The damage was estimated at $400, but the subsequent loss of plants may increase the amount.

Catonsville, Md.—A defective chimney was the cause of a small fire at the greenhouses of John Cook, on Edmondson avenue, January 1. The engine company quickly extinguished the blaze and the loss amounted to only about $50, which is covered by insurance.

Fort Smith, Ark.—George Rye is gloomy, for, says he, business for the last ten days has been the poorest he has ever seen; two shipments of roses were lost for want of buyers. Then, Saturday, January 9, he lost 3,000 cuttings and much stock by fire when the benches caught from the boiler.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

John MacDonald, Yonkers, N. Y., expressed the general opinion of the craft here that the season, thus far, has been satisfactory. Mr. MacDonald handles considerable seeds in bulk and finds it a profitable branch.

John White, Jr., Elizabeth, N. J., saw the greatest jump in business the day before Christmas. He was agreeably surprised. The season shows fewer large sales, but more of those of moderate amounts, so that they average up well.

Chas. L. Doerrer, Westfield, N. J., completed his new range, together with a handsome 3-story brick store building, in time for holiday business. The store is 24x48 feet, thoroughly modern and most attractive. Just at the busiest time, C. L., Jr., met with an accident, his automobile running into a ditch and pitching him headlong through a greenhouse. He fortunately escaped with a severe laceration of one eye, which is healing nicely.

Chas. L. Stanley, Plainfield, N. J., was glad to be able to take part in the holiday rush. He had a siege of illness when he could least afford the time.

Anson V. Norton, Somerville, N. J., figures that just now dwelling houses bring greater revenue than some greenhouses and so he has built a handsome dwelling, with plans for more greenhouses later.

Joseph Weiman, Flemington, believes that if the smaller New Jersey growers who consign their surplus would make greater efforts to increase their home trade by offering special inducements, they would often relieve the congestion and help business generally. He is working along this line with success.

J. F. Horn & Bro., Allentown, Pa., whose conservative report in The Review on holiday business was carefully figured out, predict a banner spring trade and are preparing to handle it. They are enthusiastic over Carnation Enchantress Supreme.

Ernest Ashley, Allentown, noted when abroad last summer the large and varied assortment of bowls filled with hyacinths, Roman and miniature, narcissi, etc. He tried the experiment here with success and believes good sales can be made. A glass bowl is much more attractive on the table than a pan, however well it may be dressed up. He grows large numbers of Golden Spur, Paper Whites and Soleil d'Or in boxes a foot deep, planting the bulbs close together but in an ample depth of rich soil, and thus produces the finest blooms. He has discarded the shallow flat after many years' use. Formosa lilies are receiving a top-dressing of cow manure, with weekly applications of the same in liquid form. W. M.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Prices are taking their annual tumble after the holidays. Milady and Ward roses are finding great favor with the public. Killarney Brilliant has shown fine color during the dark weather. Carnation Philadelphia, a bright pink, is also a great favorite. The florists find no difficulty in disposing of the few freesias and jonquils on the market.

Club Meeting.

The trustees of the Minneapolis Florists' Club called a special meeting on hearing of the death of John Monson, and decided to send the floral blanket described in the Minneapolis letter last week, and made by the L. S. Donaldson Co.

The regular meeting was called at 8 p. m., Tuesday, January 5. Two new members were admitted, Mr. Cargill and Mr. Jensen.

The proposed flower show for next fall was brought up for discussion. The committee asked for two more members, to be added to the present three. The three members originally in the committee are Mr. Desmond, Mr. Calprice and Mr. Pier. The two new members added are Theodore Wirth and R. A. Latham. The members of the committee said they will try to get the coöperation of all the merchants, so as to make the show a success.

The bowling committee's report showed poor attendance. Mr. Desmond said that if the members did not attend more regularly he would resign as captain. In two or three weeks our team will meet the fast St. Paul team.

The dance committee reported that the dance will take place at the Royal Arcanum hall, 3011 First avenue, south, Tuesday night, January 19. Mr. Latham was made chairman of the decorating committee.

The arrangements for the lunch were turned over to the Lady Florists' Club. All the twenty-four members present were provided with tickets. A special meeting will be held January 15, at Allen Trager's bowling alleys, 43 South Third street.

The special committee on back dues will report at the next meeting every member not paid up, and the said members will be dropped from the membership list.

At a special meeting of the State Florists' Club, at Holm & Olson's, it had been voted that $1 paid by each member should admit the Minneapolis and St. Paul Florists' clubs as a whole. The Minneapolis Florists' Club sent a reply to the communication from the state association, stating that the local club could not see its way clear to pay a dollar for each member, and asking them to make another proposition. C. B. L.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Springfield Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, January 5, when the members and invited florists were the guests of the Leedle Floral Co.

The benches in the roomy packing sheds had been converted into banquet tables, on which a substantial kraut supper was served by the employees of the host, under the supervision of the veteran grower, Rama C. Campbell.

Extemporaneous after-dinner talks were given by a number of those present, including J. G. Botkin, of Urbana, O., and Floyd Anderson, of Xenia, O., after which all were entertained for a half-hour by Carl Stillwell, the magician, introduced through the courtesy of H. N. Siebenthaler, a former member of the club and of the florists' trade.

The members then adjourned to the office, where the annual election of officers was held, resulting in the choice of the following: President, Charles C. Leedle; vice-president, Charles W. Schmidt; secretary, Arthur J. Todd, and treasurer, Clifford Paden.

Mr. Leedle was originally engaged in mercantile and manufacturing pursuits, having long been associated with the A. C. Evans Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of corn planters, but for the last ten years has been engaged in the rose growing business, first with the Leedle Floral Co., of which he is vice-president, and later with the Leedle Rosary Co., of which he is president. The latter company has recently completed the concrete walls for the extension of three 30-foot houses for a distance of eighty-five feet each, which will be erected this coming spring as early as weather may permit. The additional capacity will be devoted to the growing of cut roses, in which this company specializes.

Mr. Schmidt is at the head of the Schmidt & Botley Co., Mr. Todd of the Reeser Plant Co., and Mr. Paden is superintendent of the Geo. H. Mellen Co. Ge Dale.

LANCASTER, PA.

The weather last week was bright and pleasant, the thermometer on several days registering above 50 degrees.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club will hold its annual banquet January 21. It will be preceded by a visit to the Strasburg florists. The party will leave Center Square on the 1 p. m. trolley. President Barr's second inaugural address will be a feature of the evening and will cover the scope of work to be taken up by the club in the coming year. The banquet will be followed by bowling, for which a number of handsome prizes will be awarded. A cordial invitation is extended to any neighboring florists to attend the banquet. Names should be sent at once to L. S. Landis, secretary, R. 6, Lancaster, Pa.

Miss Katharine Seibert, a courteous and efficient member of the sales force of B. F. Barr & Co., entertained the employees of the store at her home, at 138 East New street, January 6. Mrs. C. F. Edgar and Miss Grace Taylor won the prizes in "500."

Harry A. Schroyer furnished the elaborate decorations at the reception given by the Hamilton Club, January 8, to the Supreme and Superior court judges of Pennsylvania, in honor of Chief Justice J. Hay Brown, of Lancaster.

One of the largest debutante events of the season took place January 4, when Miss Leavitt Wickersham was introduced. Chas. F. Edgar, for B. F. Barr & Co., had the decorations at the auditorium, which were superb. Nearly all the local florists were represented in the corsage work and fancy basket offerings. H. H. Battles, J. J. Habermehl's Sons and Pennock Bros., all of Philadelphia, were also contributors.

Mrs. L. H. D. Moore, of the Rosery, had several important decorations last week. H. K. R.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Stock was plentiful last week and business was really above expectations. The local growers are cutting a lot of fine roses, more than during the holidays. Some fine American Beauties are arriving, but the price on them is low, as it also is on other roses. Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond are plentiful in the special grades; the demand is greater for the short-stemmed flowers. The local growers are cutting more carnations every day, and of better quality, but there has been so much funeral work that the white varieties are practically cleaned up. Sweet peas have improved wonderfully in quality, but fancy stock is short in quantity and there are not any too many of the smaller grades to fill the demand. Violets are plentiful and the quality is excellent. Narcissi, both white and yellow, were never more abundant or less in demand than at present. The price has fallen to a point where the grower gets nothing for his labor. Stevia still is plentiful and of good quality. This flower, it seems, always finds a market. Cattleyas are plentiful and the demand for them is good, while the prices are a little lower than a year ago. Easter lilies are coming in large quantities. Freesias have made their first appearance on the market and were readily bought up.

Various Notes.

J. L. Peppard, vice-president of the Peppard Seed Co., has purchased an elegant residence in the country club district.

Samuel Murray reports business is still good, with plenty of decorating to do. Business in general is better than he expected at this time of year.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had another of those large decorations last week. They are cutting some fine roses, carnations and snapdragons.

Arthur Newell reports business all that could be expected and it is surprising how fancy boxes of plants and basket work are still selling, especially for hospital work.

Ed. Ellsworth has a nice lot of Easter lilies that will be in for Easter. His place is devoted to pot plants and everything is looking well.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that consignments are coming in heavily, but they are able to dispose of it at a fair price without any trouble.

Nelson Jarrett has his greenhouses well filled with spring bedding stock and ferns, all of which look good.

S. Bryson Ayres Co. is sending in a large quantity of sweet peas, which are excellent, especially the butterfly type.

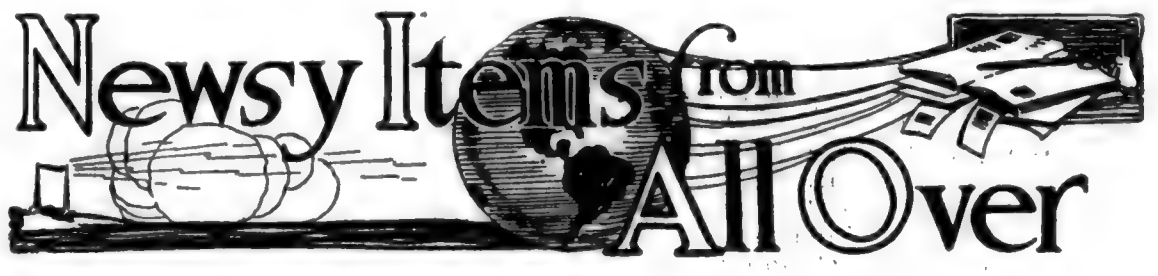
William Foith is sending in a fine lot of roses and carnations. Mr. Foith's hip trouble is much improved. W. J. B.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

During the last week business has taken a slight spurt. While stock is still plentiful, on Saturday the wholesale houses were able to clean out, but at rather low prices compared with the usual standard at this season. Carnations are still plentiful, but are selling a little better. Roses are in good supply in all grades and only the better grades are being sold out; the shorts are in little demand, except for funeral work, of which only a little is being made up, in spite of the many deaths. Beauties were among the slow movers of the week and some good ones were being offered at low prices, with few buyers. Tulips and freesias were first seen this week, but only in limited quantities, which were soon sold. There was a large supply of greens and some were left over. A fine lot of Spencer sweet peas are coming in and are being moved quickly. Paper Whites are practically a drug and can be bought at any price. A few Golden Spurs are coming in and are much in demand.

Various Notes.



Some of the local growers are already thinking of erecting new houses during the coming spring and summer. Among others, Charles Hochstedt, of Hamilton, and Wm. C. Erdman, on Belair road, are planning additions to their ranges.

Jesse P. King, of Mount Airy, is sending some good Spencer sweet peas to the Pennock-Meehan Co.

John Wilheim is cutting some of the first tulips of the season.

Charles Ball, of Philadelphia, and George Hermann, of New York, were among the trade visitors during the week.

The incorporators of the firm of Pierce & Co. are E. W. Pierce, Lawrence Kreuder and William Larkins W. F. E.

Huntingburg, Ind.—The firm of Morgen & Seubold was dissolved December 31, Peter Morgen continuing the business as sole owner.

Topeka, Kan.—James Hayes had the decorations for the inauguration of the new state officials January 1, one of the largest jobs ever done here. He used principally wild smilax, American Beauties and Easter lilies.

Charleston, W. Va.—Mrs. J. W. Alexander will carry on the business established a number of years ago by her husband, who died December 11. The original range, consisting of three small houses, has grown to over 75,000 feet of glass.

Phoebus, Va.—Mrs. Carrie Monroe, the "Phoebus progressive florist," whose divorce from William Terry was noted in a recent issue, was married December 31 to William Grigsby, at the Knox Presbyterian church, at Norfolk, Va.

Fort Collins, Colo.—Papers have been filed for the incorporation of the Espelin-Warren Floral Co., to do business in trees, shrubs and flowers, with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Thomas J. Warren, Ethel T. Warren and Carl A. Espelin.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—The annual meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, held December 31, resulted in the election of the following officers for this year: President, W. Jamison; vice-president, J. Featherstone; secretary, E. W. Neubrand; treasurer, C. J Weeks; press secretary, Thos. A. Lee.

Grand Ledge, Mich.—Doty & Huggett have erected an office at their greenhouses. They speak well of their holiday trade.

Mitchell, S. D.—The Newburys recently opened a downtown store and find it a quite satisfactory investment. An office is still maintained at the greenhouses, to care for the large shipping trade of the concern.

Albany, N. Y.—At its annual banquet, January 7, the Albany Florists' Club installed the following officers for the coming year: President, Frank R. Bilson; vice-president, Thomas F. Tracey; secretary and treasurer, Robert Davidson, reëlected; trustees, Fred Henkes and Fred Goldring.

Orlando, Fla.—Ed. Berno, who formerly conducted the Berno Floral Co., at Mansfield, O., is commencing a florists' and nursery business here under the same name. The concern is capitalized at $25,000 and has a tract of land on East Colonial drive, which will be improved at once.

Johnstown, Pa.—George Walker, for some time employed in William Schmidt's greenhouses, and his brother Bruce, connected with the Johnstown Tribune, have purchased the store of William Schmidt, in the Franklin building, and are moving the stock and equipment to quarters in the Crystal Annex, on Market street, where they will open to the public February 1. Among the furnishings in their modern and handsomely fitted store will be, according to a local newspaper, "special casings for flowers of airproof construction."

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The supply last week continued strong, while the demand was indifferent. Shipping business, however, is fair. The cut of roses is still large, but there are indications of its letting up somewhat. For the present, plenty of good ones of all varieties may easily be had. Carnations, too, continue to be plentiful. Narcissi are a glut and many more are coming in than can be used by the retailers. The supply of lilies is easily sufficient for immediate needs. Callas are excellent, but meet with no especially strong call. The offerings in violets, orchids and valley are sufficient for present requirements. The first jonquils of the season made their appearance during the last fortnight. Other offerings include Roman hyacinths, stevias and wallflowers.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell was the first in the market to offer jonquils this season.

P. J. Olinger made a trip to Indianapolis, Ind., this week.

Among recent visitors was Mrs. Lampert, of Xenia, O. C. H. H.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The warm weather has caused a large increase in the supply. Roses and carnations, with the exception of special grades and novelties, can practically be had at the buyer's own price. Red roses have been far more plentiful than usual, but are fast going off the market. Sweet peas are sent into the market in large quantities, but have been selling fairly well at from 75 cents to $1.25 per hundred. Gardenias are more plentiful, but maintain $2 to $4 per dozen. Some exceptionally fine locally grown lilac has appeared. There is little demand for it, although the prices obtained are good. Both double and single violets are hanging fire, and fine northern stock can be obtained at 50 cents per hundred. An extra fine quality of stevia is selling readily at $3 per hundred.

Club Meeting.

The members of the Florists' Club of Washington spent an enjoyable evening Tuesday, January 5, as guests of the officers, who had provided an elaborate entertainment in connection with the regular monthly meeting. About 100 were present. The feature of the evening was a real moving picture show. This exhibition was given by Sidney B. Lust, manager of Warner's Features, Inc., who was given a most vociferous vote of thanks upon the conclusion of the entertainment.

A series of monologues and songs were presented by Leo Garner, a talented amateur, and Prof. Wall, a member of the Sheldon School of Business Science, Chicago, gave a short talk on the benefits to be derived from such gatherings as these. Additional entertainment was provided by a Victrola presided over by Mr. Houser, manager of the Victrola department at the store of E. F. Droop & Co.

A Dutch supper was served during the evening, and the meeting was declared to have been one of the most successful ever held by the club. Among those present was Dr. W. W. Evans, of Hamilton, Va., who brought with him a choice collection of carnations of his own production, which were exhibited for the benefit of the club. William F. Gude acted as toastmaster.

Various Notes.

Ernest F. Hoehl, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, called on the local trade last week.

William F. Gude has declined reëlection to the presidency of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, as this office and the many other organizations with which he is connected are taking up considerably more of his time than he feels he can devote to such purposes. He has, however, consented to allow his name to remain on the ballot for election to the board of directors.

C. L. L.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business last week kept the majority of florists on the run from Sunday morning until Saturday night. Funeral work, decorative work, weddings and parties constituted the chief demand. The season of social activities seems to be at its height. The supply of cut flowers has been unusually good. Roses have arrived in large quantities and of excellent quality. Sunburst leads the varieties in yellow, while Mrs. Shawyer is the best pink rose. Rhea Reid and Richmond roses are both of fine quality, with good color and long stems. Beauties are being received in fine shape and command good prices. Carnations are scarcer than any other flower, owing to several dark days. Violets are plentiful, both single and double, and meet with a big demand. Valley is in good supply, with long, stiff stems and good flowers. Narcissi are now overabundant. Sweet peas are somewhat scarce. Gardenias and cattleyas are readily available. Cecile Brunner and Fireflame roses attract attention, but do not sell so well as the larger varieties of roses. Callas and Easter lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

January 2, Miss Marguerite Flick, who was home for the holidays from Guerin hall, St. Mary-of-the-Woods College, gave a delightful dinner at the English tea room, announcing the engagement of her sister, Miss Ruth R. Flick, to Richard I. Blossom. Three quaint hats of straw lace, filled with Killarney and Sunburst roses, formed the charming table decoration. Toward the end of the menu, each guest was given a corsage in which was hidden a small card announcing the engagement. Miss Flick is a graduate of St. Catherine's Academy, in this city, and of St. Mary-of-the-Woods. She is a member of the Flick Floral Co. Mr. Blossom is an artist and is connected with the S. F. Bowser Co., of this city. The wedding will take place in the spring.

Herbert Zur Muhlen, of the Auger Flower Shop, reports a rushing demand for funeral work last week.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey furnished the elaborate decorations for the annual banquet of the S. F. Bowser Co., at the Anthony hotel, January 4. The decorations consisted mostly of red roses. A small French boutonniere was given to each guest at the affair.

The Country Club dance, which was held at the Commercial Club ballroom, January 6, was the occasion for beautiful and effective decorations, which were carried out by the Flick Floral Co. Numerous cases of southern smilax were used and many thousands of roses.

Recent visitors included A. W. Herre, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and John Van Zonneveld, of Sassenheim, Holland. R. F.

Dighton, Mass.—Wm. Macker is building another greenhouse on Main street.

Plymouth, Mass.—Fritz Schlecht, proprietor of the greenhouses on Allerton street, opened a store for the holiday season at 11 Court street.

Watertown, Mass.—Alfred Davenport was held up by three men on his way home from Boston late at night January 6. They demanded his valuables, but after talking for a short time ran away when he had given them a $2 bill.

New Bedford, Mass.— At the annual meeting of the New Bedford Horticultural Society, January 4, the following officers were elected: President, D. F. Roy; vice-president, Frank C. Barrows; financial secretary, W. K. Smith; treasurer, W. A. Luce; secretary, J. M. Taber; executive committee, F. G. Tripp, C. W. Young, J. H. McVicker, J. W. Webster, A. E. Griffin, J. Gathby and L. J. Hathaway, Jr.

Hartford, Conn.—John Coombs has added a second automobile to his delivery service.

Concord, N. H.—C. V. Kimball has sold an interest in his business to S. R. Baker, of Belmont.

East Bridgewater, Mass.—J. K. Alexander is sending a large shipment of dahlias to the Panama-Pacific exposition. Mr. Alexander's dahlias are to be grown and exhibited in connection with the Massachusetts state exhibit, and are in competition for the gold, silver and bronze medals offered for the finest growing exhibit of dahlias. This exhibit is to occupy 2,728 square feet of space and is to be in the form of a large circular bed. Mr. Alexander had an exhibit of equal proportions at the Louisiana Purchase exposition, in 1904, winning the silver medal, the highest honor awarded to any American firm. H. Cannell & Son, of Swanley, Kent, England, were the winners of the gold medal.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Demoralized is the word to describe the New York wholesale cut flower market all last week, and especially on Saturday; night arrived with every icebox full. Such a condition in January has never been known, according to wholesalers who have been thirty years in this business.

Prices are hard to quote. There was literally no bottom to anything. Shipments were exceedingly large. There was no shortage in any department, and values were at the mercy of the large buyers.

American Beauties have dropped to less than half the quotations of the first week of the new year. Naturally, the whole rose market falls in line when Beauties retreat, and so the novelties and specials dropped also. The general list, including the Killarneys, were taken by the department stores.

The carnation shipments have been enormous. Special sales of these were advertised in nearly all the retail windows at 25 cents per dozen, but the supply on Twenty-eighth street continued inexhaustible. A few of the novelties held at fair prices.

Lilies are abundant and low in price. Valley, too, is off. Gardenias hold fairly well and are not yet in oversupply.

Orchids have been the greatest disappointment. Some good cattleyas were sold Saturday at 10 cents each. The best could be had for $25 per hundred.

Mums are still here, but are almost unsalable; excellent stock is hard to clean up at $1 per dozen, flowers worth three times that three weeks ago. All the other seasonable flowers are here, and plenty of them—daisies, pansies, hyacinths, bouvardia, sweet peas, wall flowers and forget-me-nots.

Club Meeting.

There were 150 present when the new officers of the Florists' Club were installed, January 11. President Bunyard read an excellent address and appointed standing committees as follows:

Legislative—W. F. Sheridan, chairman; P. O'Mara, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., John Donaldson, F. R. Pierson, Jas. McHutchison, J. G. Esler.

Essay and Lecture—Leonard Barron, chairman; J. Harrison Dick, J. Austin Shaw, John H. Pepper, M. C. Ebel.

Exhibition—Max Schling, chairman; Joseph A. Manda, Jas. Bell, A. N. Kinney, John Birnie, J. K. Allen, J. A. Muller.

House—Philip Kessler, chairman; Geo. Mustoe, Meyer Othile.

Annual Dinner—Chas. Schenck, chairman; J. B. Nugent, Geo. E. M. Stumpp, W. F. Sheridan, Thos. Boothe de Forest, A. L. Miller, W. E. Maynard.

Outing—F. W. Armitage, chairman; Louis Schmutz, Jr., A. J. Guttman, E. W. Holt, Victor I. Morgan, J. W. Wagenfohr, A. M. Henshaw, J. Hauck, A. T. Burns, Jr., Peter Denyse, Jr., Jos. J. Lane, L. W. Tuthill, R. G. Wilson, Alf. Demeusy, Jr., E. A. Manda, Samuel Redstone, J. A. Buerlein, Emil Schloss, J. W. Reimels, A. H. Donaldson, Victor Dorval.

Awards—W. H. Duckham, chairman. Rose Section: Frank H. Traendly, F. R. Pierson, Robert Simpson, Wallace Pierson, Chas. H. Brown, W. P. Ford, L. B. Coddington. Chrysanthemum Section: Charles H. Totty, Jas. E. Scott, Peter Duff, Thos. Head, J. Canning, F. H. Wilshire, William Tricker. Sweet Pea Section: Geo. T. Schuneman, Henry Weston, Chas. Knight, W. A. Sperling, A. E. Hogg, H. Mamitch, P. W. Popp. Carnation Section: R. T. Brown, Eugene Dailledouze, Frank Niquet, Louis Reuter, Chas. Weber, H. E. Froment, Julius Chevalley. Gladiolus Section: I. S. Hendrickson, Arthur Cowee, H. C. Riedel, A. R. Kennedy, W. H. Long, J. A. Rassbach, Ed. Sceery. Orchid Section: Joseph A. Manda, Henry Hurrell, August Junge, John E. Lager, Jas. McManus, Julius Roehrs, Geo. Baldwin. Plant Section: W. A. Manda, Philip Cox, Anton Schulthels, Jr., Fritz Dressel, F. L. Atkins, Anthony Manda, H. D. Darlington.

P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck, staged a fine vase of Buddleia Asiatica and was awarded a cultural certificate. J. A. Peterson, from Cincinnati, brought Melior, Glory of Cincinnati and Mrs. J. A. Peterson begonias, highly commended and granted certificates. Chas. Weber exhibited Laura Weber carnation. A cultural certificate was awarded the pink seedling carnation, Mrs. C. Edward Akehurst, shown for Akehurst & Son, of White Marsh, Md., by the Pennock-Meehan Co. The Geo T. Schuneman Co. made a fine display of sweet peas in many varieties and was awarded thanks and cultural certificates.

Mr. Shaw read resolutions on the death of David Mellis. Messrs. Ebel, Sheridan and Rickards were appointed to draw up resolutions on the sudden death of Charles McTaggart.

A motion in favor of the club's annual dinner was unanimously carried.

J. G. Leikens, David S. Ward and Herman Weiss were elected to membership and Louis Strauss and Andrew Schlevogt were proposed. Resignations of C. Vermeille and Theo. Roehrs were accepted with regret.

The reports of the trustees, secretary and treasurer were read. The club's balance is $6,868.35, a gain of $1,164.64 over the preceding year.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Totty, Hendrickson, Pepper, Traendly and Kessler will report on the president's address in February.

Various Notes.

Louis H. Schaefer, wholesale seedsman, of Albany, N. Y., was a recent visitor.

Archibald Henshaw, of Henshaw & Fenrich, has returned from England.

Charles Weathered is again on deck, after a six weeks' struggle with his old enemy, rheumatism.

Miss Mabel Conklin, bookkeeper for H. E. Froment, was among those held two hours in the subway by the accident and fire that came near to being one of the big city's greatest tragedies.

There was a fire in the upper stories of Young & Nugent's headquarters, on Twenty-eighth street, Tuesday, January 5, but fortunately the damage was prevented from extending to the florists' department.

Messrs. Dierks and Arenwald are no longer with C. Abrams, of Brooklyn, and contemplate opening a retail store in New York city.

Meyer Othile, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, accompanied by C. Abrams, of Brooklyn, rested last week at Atlantic City. Owing to an accident to his feet, H. C. Riedel was unable to participate in the bowling club's Thursday evening competition.

The annual dinner of the Northern Westchester County Horticultural and Agricultural Society will be held at New Castle Inn, Thursday evening, January 21. The society's regular business session will precede the banquet.

John V. Phillips, of 272 Fulton street, Brooklyn, has been established since 1874, over forty years. His son William is now manager.

A. L. Young and Samuel Keller are doing jury service.

Lena Hart, of Madison avenue, had charge of the elaborate decorations for the Armour wedding.

Among recent visitors were Wm. F. Kasting, of Buffalo; C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J.; Thos. Roland, of Nahant, Mass.; E. Allan Peirce, of Waltham, Mass., and Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa.

W. E. Marshall, the seedsman, is making his annual western trip.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. enjoyed its regular quarterly meeting Saturday, January 9, followed by a banquet. J. Austin Shaw.

The Horticultural Society of New York's exhibition of plants and flowers, to be held Wednesday, January 20, at the American Museum of Natural History, is open to all, whether members of the society or not. The day of the exhibition has been changed to Wednesday, as it was thought this would be more convenient to gardeners than Saturday, the day upon which former exhibitions have been held. Schedules will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York. W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., will lecture at 4 p. m., January 20, in the east assembly hall of the museum on "The Home Vegetable Garden."

OBITUARY.

Charles C. McTaggart.

Charles C. McTaggart, traveling representative of W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, was instantly killed by an Erie train at noon Sunday, January 10, near his home at Kearney, N. J. He leaves an aged mother, to whom he was greatly devoted. Mr. McTaggart was 45 years of age and was esteemed and beloved by all who knew him. He was born in Scotland. His first experience in the seed trade was with Peter Henderson & Co. He was with Weeber & Don six years and with Thorburn & Co. two years. During the last five years he has been head salesman for Marshall & Co. He was a member of the New York Florists' Club and the National Association of Gardeners.

George Petrie.

George Petrie, until recently employed in the greenhouses of W. A. Riggs, Auburndale, Mass., died January 6 in the Newton hospital. The deceased, who was a trained gardener, was a native of Deeside, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and, since coming to New England, had worked for the Spaulding estate, H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, and others. He was unmarried and leaves no relatives, so far as known, in America.

John Fallon.

John Fallon, a retired florist, 73 years of age, died January 7, at his home on the Middle Neck road, Great Neck, L. I. He was born in Ireland and is survived by several children.

Belleville, Ill.—Just to show the prosperousness of the florists' business here, Adolph G. Fehr gives a list of his additions, two houses for carnations, each 28x150, last year, and a rose house, 28x150, and a plant house, 20x150, this year. He has built a concrete boiler house and put up a 60-horsepower boiler to heat the range by steam. The farm, where he grows about 20,000 plants, went into winter quarters in good shape, says Mr. Fehr.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

EASTER is just eighty days from the date of this issue.

THIS is the time of year everybody expects to pay bills. It's a good plan to send a second statement as a reminder to all whose checks have not come in by January 15. Do it now!

IF "A Beginner," at Portland, Ore., had not torn the printing from his letter-head, destroying all means of identification, it would have been a pleasure to answer his inquiry of January 4.

OUR British friends know a good chrysanthemum when they see it, but they have execrable taste in names. For instance, who could do worse by a fine flower than naming it Mrs. G. Drabble? And now, when that splendid white throws a magnificent yellow sport, think of dubbing it W. Rigby! The country estates over there have mellifluous titles; if inventive faculties are lacking, why not use the names of the castles?

A NEW chrysanthemum that has made a hit in England is credited to E. G. Hill Co., although it has not yet been heard of on this side of the Atlantic. The name is Richmond and it is attracting much attention as a late yellow for market. Within a week Thomas Stevenson, who is credited with having procured the stock from Hill's, secured with it the first-class certificate of the National Chrysanthemum Society and the award of merit of the Royal Horticultural Society.

C. W. JOHNSON, secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, has compiled a table covering the work of the committees examining seedlings and sports for the season of 1914. The table shows thirty-four varieties were before the committees, being scored a total of sixty-seven times. Eighteen of the varieties came from one exhibitor, E. D. Smith & Co., the other sixteen sorts being submitted by nine different exhibitors. The Review reported the scoring as it progressed from week to week during the season.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

Some indication of the trend of the general business situation will be found in the following developments of the week:

The monthly report of the United States Steel Corporation showed unfilled orders on hand December 31 aggregating 3,836,643 tons, an increase for the month of 512,000 tons, and the first increase since August.

Bank clearings at Chicago for the first week in January exceeded by nearly two per cent the clearings for the same week last year, the first increase since the war began. Early in October the shrinkage was in excess of twenty per cent.

LADIES' S. A. F.

Mrs. William F. Gude, president for 1915, has made the following appointments:

Directors for two years: Mrs. Jos. Manda, New Jersey; Mrs. J. F. Wilcox, Iowa; Mrs. Geo. H. Cook, District of Columbia.

Introduction committee, 1915: Mrs. Julius Eppstein, San Francisco, chairman; Miss Bertha Meinhardt, Miss Marie Esler, Mrs. John Poehlmann, Mrs. Fred Breitmeyer.

Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Sec'y.

PRIZE FOR SECURING MEMBERS.

On assuming office as president of the Society of American Florists, Patrick Welch stated, in his address as published in The Review of December 31, that he had decided to offer a special inducement for the purpose of "stimulating" the effort to obtain new members. He said: "An increased membership will better enable us to continue our campaign of education, at our national flower shows and at our annual convention garden. Many of our young men, traveling through the country, were some sufficient stimulant offered, could assist in increasing the membership and I am willing to offer the stimulant—a watch and chain to cost not less than $150, the funds for which I will raise among my friends, to be awarded to the member who will send to the secretary, John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city, the largest number of names of new members between January 1 and July 31, 1915."

In accordance with President Welch's plan, the following "rules governing the contest for the membership prize" have been prepared:

1. Any S. A. F. member desiring to enter the contest shall first register by sending his name and address to the national secretary, John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, on or before March 1, 1915, who will return application blanks immediately.

2. The contestants shall forward to the secretary at least once a month a list of new members secured, accompanied with fee, $5 for each annual member and $30 for each new life member. Each annual member shall count one, but each life member shall count five in the contest.

3. The secretary shall publish a list of the new members thus secured, and accredit the contestants securing them, in a notice in the trade papers monthly. No one shall be considered as entitled to the prize unless at least fifty memberships have been accredited to him.

4. The prize shall be selected by a committee of three, two of whom shall be appointed by the president and one by the winning contestant.

FOLLOW MY LEADER.

Have you noted the results of the special feature article on "The Tango Bouquet" that appeared in The Review for December 31? In the words of the erstwhile popular ditty, "Everybody's doing it now." The article described the ways in which retailers blessed with originality were overcoming the disuse of corsage flowers for dances, by making bouquets for the shoulders and arms—putting them out of the way of the dancers. There were pictures showing the flowers as worn. When the article appeared in The Review these bouquets were entirely new; now they are everywhere, built along the exact lines of the description in this paper. Hundreds of florists and others are using the idea—and most of them give cheerful credit for it to Max Schling and The Review. A few are just plain plagiarists.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

THREE YEARS.

Hammond, W. A., Ashland, Va.
Friedley, F. A., Cleveland, O.

TWO YEARS.

Staudt, Theodore, Rockville, Conn.
Wild, Thomas, Roscoe, Pa.
Leisy, Chas., Mantua, N. J.
Schultze, F. E., Little River, Fla.
Mirring, A., East St. Louis, Ill.
Eklund, O. W., Wayzata, Minn.
Zeidler, Karl, Evansville, Ind.
Demmler, W. H., Eau Claire, Wis.
Pederson, P., Chicago, Ill.
Braucht, Le Vere, Des Moines, Ia.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

THE CALL OF TIME.

The classified plant ads in The Review have established a reputation as reliable business bringers; in fact, those who use them regularly frequently have to call "time" so that they can catch up with their orders. Like this:

Please omit our classified ad for one issue of your valued paper. We have so many varieties and so many orders and inquiries from the ad that we need a week to catch up and find out what we should advertise for later issues.—J. P. Siebold, Lancaster, Pa., January 9, 1915.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

A comprehensive report is especially difficult at this time because of the uneven conditions in the market. The demand is erratic; some days are brisk while others are dull, and the orders run so peculiarly that busy days in one wholesale house are dull days in another, and vice versa. Also, while some growers are cutting heavily others are sending in so little stock that one marvels at the contrast. Consequently

You Can Make Money on Our Cattleyas...

THESE Orchids are strictly home-grown, fresh, long-lasting. Fine stock; large, beautiful color. They will give satisfaction no matter how critical your trade is—and the price? It's less than you would expect to pay for such fine flowers. Reasonable. Send for a special quotation if you can use 100 or more.

GOOD ROSES—Moderate Prices

While we have all the roses, here are the ones on which we are best supplied today—you will recognize these as the ones in special demand:

KILLARNEY BRILLIANT WHITE KILLARNEY MRS. RUSSELL
MRS. WARD MILADY SUNBURST

Our prices never are higher than others ask if able to offer an equal grade of stock. Our "Select" grade is equal to what many offer as their best. Our "Special" and "Extra Special" grades are in a class by themselves.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

A fine crop grown specially for a January cut—plenty good short and medium.

FANCY CARNATIONS

All the new and best varieties. The largest supply of fancy carnations in this market.

VIOLETS

almost any specific statement regarding market conditions is open to individual contradiction.

On the whole, demand has improved. Most of last week was dull, but the present week opened with the best day's business of the year to date, and a day that compares favorably with normal standards. Taking the market as a whole, the supply of stock is greater than it usually is at this date and prices still rule low, but the annual January change is beginning to be apparent. Roses are shortening up, not with all growers but with some, and the prices of carnations are not so far away from those of last year as they were. One must not understand that the price of carnations is rising sharply, for such is not the case, but it will be remembered that at this time last year prices went down rapidly, so that returns to growers should hereafter make a somewhat better comparison than has been the case so far this season. The difficulty of the carnation situation is that the regular store trade that can use carnations at fair prices, does not anywhere near consume the daily receipts. The overstock must be jobbed off at low prices. The quality of much of the stock is excellent, although there are many splits.

There is a noticeable shortening in the supply of Killarney and there also is a noticeable deterioration in quality, particularly color, as a result of the dark weather. Red roses have been overabundant, as the demand has fallen off faster than the supply has decreased since Christmas. Mrs. Russell has ceased to be in large supply. The explanation offered is that the wood is being used for propagating, but the form and color of many of the flowers seen lead to the suspicion that some of the growers can not cut much that is a source of pride. Ophelia is scarce, also because the wood at the moment is more valuable than the flowers. On the other hand, the wood of Hadley is not cherished; too many of the growths have come blind. White roses are plentiful, but the market takes readily all the yellow roses that are offered.

The principal change in the market situation is on cattleyas. The crops that missed Christmas are now being cut and the supply is far heavier than is needed in the stores that order by the dozen. The result is that the stores that buy by the hundred are picking up bargains—passing them on to the public. Eastern violets are a broad, deep river, which proverbially flows slowly.

Easter lilies continue abundant and there are in certain quarters large quantities of rubrums. It has been surprising the way jonquils have been taken; the supply increases slowly and the stock is sold at sight. Not many tulips arrive and most of them are poor. Sweet peas continue to drop the buds, but the supply nevertheless increases and some excellent Spencer sorts are seen. Stevia continues abundant and Paper Whites are everywhere. Valley is cleaned up with difficulty. Freesias are selling fairly well, but at lower prices. Some good mignonette sells, but the poor stock is not wanted; it is the same with snapdragon.

HOME-GROWN "CATTS"

These Cattleyas are extra fine. They are grown right here at home, where we can get them fresh and unbruised by rehandling—send them to you in as good shape as though you cut them in your own greenhouse. A big crop is on. Prices very cheap—a fine chance to sell orchids low and still make the usual margin of profit. Write us about it if you can use a quantity.

PURITY FREESIA The pure white kind $3.00 to $4.00 per 100

FANCY STEVIA The full-flowered kind $1.50 to $2.00 per 100

VALLEY We always have the stock you need.

The Change at Kennicott's.

The forethought of the late E. E. Pieser was seen in a letter found among his papers after his death, in which he asked that his shares of stock in Kennicott Bros. Co., with which he was associated the greater part of his life and of which he was president at the time of his death, be sold to Harold B. Kennicott in case Mr. Kennicott cared to assume his father's place in the business. Mr. Kennicott took over the shares January 12 and will in future devote his time to the business. The business was established in 1883, by Flint and Amaza Kennicott, being one of the first wholesale cut flower establishments in Chicago. Incorporation followed in 1892. Since the death of Flint Kennicott, the founder, approximately one-half the stock has been held by his widow and the other half by E. E. Pieser. The purchase of the Pieser stock by the son of the founder now brings the business back wholly into the hands of the original Kennicott family. The officers of the company will be: President and treasurer, H. B. Kennicott; vice-president, F. Kennicott Reilly, president of Reilly & Britton Co., a well known publishing concern, and nephew of Flint Kennicott; secretary, Max Ringier. In the reorganization of the working force, George Gobel, who formerly has looked after the market interests of the Adams express, has succeeded N. P. Miller.

The Kidwell Interests.

No sooner had J. F. Kidwell disposed of his city business interests, putting the management of the stores on younger shoulders, than he proceeded to provide himself with another occupation. The last house of a new range is just being finished at Downers Grove. The new establishment is only two blocks from the Kidwell residence. It is a mile and a half from the Wellworth Farm establishment. There are three houses each 27x250, and one house 48x110. It will be run under the name of the J. F. Kidwell Co., which concern also operates the old Muir stand on Michigan avenue, growing ferns and miscellaneous pot plants, both for retail and wholesale.

The Kidwell family interests now include two separate greenhouse establishments at Downers Grove, one for cut flowers and one for pot plants, and three retail stores in the city, five establishments in all.

Club Meeting.

In addition to the flower show reported in another column, the Chicago Florists' Club had, as an extra attraction to bring out the attendance at the meeting January 7, the annual installation of officers, which retiring President French conducted with due eclat. The roster for 1915 is:

President—William J. Keimel.
Vice-president—James Morton.
Secretary—Guy W. French.
Treasurer—Paul R. Klingsporn.

Each of the officers made a nice little speech on being presented to the club. President Keimel appointed two
